212 PER CENT INCREASE

In analyzing the socialist votes reported in last week's Appeal, there were twelve-eight places where the report gave the vote of either last November or the present city election for comparison. Most of the comparisons were with votes cast at the previous city election—just five months ago. The socialist vote in these twenty-eight towns and cities five months ago were $4,472; at the last election the socialist vote was $11,650. This shows an increase of 212 per cent in five months. It is not fantastic—it is general. This increase holds good all over the nation, and there is no valid reason why it will not, then, the socialist vote today is something like $800,000 in the nation. This has been done in FIVE MONTHS. We have report every two months before the presidential election. In this time—we ought to make a gain equal to what we have in the last five months, at the very least. This would give us—and will give a Socialist vote of not less than 1,000,000 next year. With this great vote, chaotically among the wage-earners of the nation, the two old prostitutes will have to get married to prevent the socialist vote winning at the next election by a plurality. That combined in several of the cities in the recent election to present, shows what they will do in the future. While that event occurred, there are millions in the old parties who will have their eyes opened and will come out behind the socialist ticket. With this showing, every socialist should make the chief aim of his life to spread the Gospel of the New Civilization that is to be. One year of life under socialism will be worth a hundred under the present competitive hell. We are going to build a socialism in our time!
The trend in American Politics

The most exciting event in the recent white elections is the affinity of the two old parties and the collapse of the Socialist party, as the representatives of the two great parties for the first time in a generation, have come together in the face of the class character of the present political struggle as being of national significance. As a result, we have the first true representation of the two great parties in the American political system. The elections of 1912 were a milestone in the development of the two-party system, and the outcome was a victory for the Republican party. The success of the Republicans in this election was due to the fact that they were able to appeal to the working class as well as to the middle class. The Democratic party was able to appeal to the working class, but it was not able to appeal to the middle class as effectively as the Republicans. This was due to the fact that the Republicans were able to present a more effective program for the working class, and that they were able to present a more effective program for the middle class.

The economic struggle

The towns of New York, Boston, and Chicago are in the midst of a great economic struggle. The working class is fighting for better wages, shorter hours, and an end to child labor. The middle class is fighting for lower taxes and an end to the federal deficit. The working class is supported by the Socialist party, and the middle class is supported by the Republicans. The outcome of this struggle will determine the future of the two-party system in the United States.

The economic struggle is not only a struggle between the working class and the middle class, but it is also a struggle between the old parties and the new parties. The old parties are the Democratic party and the Republican party. The new parties are the Socialist party and the Progressives. The old parties are fighting for the establishment of the two-party system, while the new parties are fighting for the abolition of the two-party system. The outcome of this struggle will determine the future of the American political system.
HINTS TO THE APPEAL'S WISE WOMEN

BY JOSEPHINE CONGAR

Our Correspondents,—In order to make our work at the greatest possible point possible to the cause of Women's Rights, we must have a large number of wise and understand women workers. While I am a strong believer in the right of women to enter into all branches of life, I must confess that I am not in favor of making women workers for hire. I believe that women should be free to do what they please, and not be forced to work for hire.

While working for the cause, I have found that a wise woman is worth more than a foolish one. She has a better understanding of the subject, and is more likely to succeed in her work. She is also more likely to be taken seriously by the public, and to be listened to with respect.

On the other hand, a foolish woman is more likely to be taken advantage of, and to be misunderstood. She is also more likely to be disappointed in her work, and to lose heart. I therefore urge all of our readers to be wise in their work, and to be careful in their actions.

Sincerely yours,

JOSEPHINE CONGAR.

THE AMERICAN WOMAN'S SUFFRAGE ARCHIVES will hold a special meeting in Washington, D.C., on April 11, for the purpose of selecting a suitable building for the archives. I hope that all of our readers will try to come to this meeting, and to support the cause of women's rights.

How to Vote

Your right to vote and to be heard is a sacred one. It is not to be treated lightly. It is not to be taken for granted. It is to be fought for, and to be defended at all costs.

To vote is to have a voice in the government of the country. It is to have a say in the laws that are made. It is to have a say in the future of the country.

If you do not vote, you are giving up your right to have a voice in the government. You are giving up your right to have a say in the laws that are made.

I urge all of our readers to vote, and to use their vote wisely. It is a precious right, and it is to be treated with respect.

Sincerely yours,

MISS H. G. B. S.

A Chance to Make Money

I was born in a poor country, and I was always poor. I was always hungry, and I was always cold. I was always without a roof over my head. I was always without a clothes to wear. I was always without a place to sleep.

But I was never without a hope. I was always hopeful. I was always confident that someday I would be able to change my life. I was always confident that someday I would be able to make money.

I have made a lot of money, and I am very proud of it. I have made money by working hard, and by being honest. I have made money by being persevering, and by never giving up.

I urge all of our readers to make money, and to be successful. It is a precious right, and it is to be treated with respect.

Sincerely yours,

MISS H. G. B. S.
The anthracite miners' strike is at last settled, if we can believe the capitalist papers. The fact is, indeed, that the miners have gone back to digging coal for the men whom God, in his infinite wisdom, has given control of the property rights of this country. And the arbitration committee, composed of capitalists and capitalist friends, has given its decision, which is hailed by the coal barons as a victory for organized labor.

The papers that are paid by the capitalist class and run in the interest of that class, are, therefore, rejoicing over their own defeat. Have you ever seen a man joyfully spreading the news that he had been licked? If a man did so, would you not look for an explanation of his queer conduct?

Apply this to your own case, you miners who have been striking and are now fortunate enough to be permitted to continue in the service of the bosses. A capital of claims what you have licked them and are telling the world about your victory. If they were really so glad to have you win, why did they use the militia, the coal and iron police, the Pinkertons, the special deputies and all sorts of injunctions against you? Why did they not grant all your demands at once without waiting for an arbitration committee to decide the questions pending between you and them? And, by the way, is it not strange that we now hear of E. E. Clark, one of the members of that same arbitration committee, as the probable successor of Carrol D. Wright in the office of U. S. Commissioner of Labor? The Capitalists, then, do not only rejoice over your victory, but are here to reward the men who decided the strike against them. If a man had helped you to lick a bully, and the bully were to reward his helper, what would you think? Think about this now.

There are also a number of labor papers that declare themselves satisfied with the decision of the arbitration committee. They do not find anything strange in the peculiar joy of the capitalist press over the defeat of their own class. They do not see anything wrong in the proposed reward for one of the men who allegedly defeated the coal barons. If you had licked a man, and he were then to offer a reward to you, and a friend of yours what you have licked them and are telling the world about your victory. If they were really so glad to have you win, why did they use the militia, the coal and iron police, the Pinkertons, the special deputies and all sorts of injunctions against you? Why did they not grant all your demands at once without waiting for an arbitration committee to decide the questions pending between you and them? And, by the way, is it not strange that we now hear of E. E. Clark, one of the members of that same arbitration committee, as the probable successor of Carrol D. Wright in the office of U. S. Commissioner of Labor? The Capitalists, then, do not only rejoice over your victory, but are here to reward the men who decided the strike against them. If a man had helped you to lick a bully, and the bully were to reward his helper, what would you think? Think about this now.

Now let us look at your so-called victory a little closer. You have been digging coal for quite a while, now. And now we hear that you are going to get a ten per cent increase in wages. You have demanded a twenty per cent increase. But never mind that. Will that ten per cent increase buy as much or more from the pluck-me-store as your smaller wage did? Will the rent of your shack increase, or not? Wait and see. And will the price of coal not be higher for the consumer? We shall wait and see about that, too.

By and by, when it will dawn on you that you and the consumer pay for this increase in your wages somehow, we shall have more to say to you.

Those who are employed by the day will now work only nine hours for ten hours' pay. Do you believe that the coal operators will pay for this out of their own pockets? A short reflection on your past experience will tell you that either you or the general public will have to pay for this. The dividends of the coal barons will not be permitted to fall off on account of your victory.

The main contention in the whole strike was the recognition of the union. The arbitration committee has not recognized you as an organization, at least not directly. True, they recognize your president as the representative of your organization. But they could not help doing that without making the whole arbitration a farce. In your hopes to control your own conditions in the mine districts you have nevertheless been disappointed. Non-union men will be working by your side as before. And the coal barons will try to get rid of the most active and intelligent union men as before. They will hound them out of their houses; get out injunctions against them preventing them from walking on the streets of the town, and from working. They will punish you and your delegates and organizers as they have done lately with your comrade Wood in Florida, or as Cunningham has done in Virginia. You will not be protected in your rights by the capitalist government, and your enemies will not be punished.

Now, what can be the reason for the queer joy of the capitalists over their own defeat? Think a little. Have you really gained by the decision of the arbitration committee? If you think you have and you are satisfied, all right. I have nothing more to say to you. But if you are not satisfied, then tell me whether the whole capitalist maneuvers since the appointment of the arbitration committee have had any other purpose than that of throwing sand into your eyes?

And why are they trying to cloud your judgment? They want you to feel proud over a victory which you have not won, so that they may catch you so much better off your guard. They need your votes for the next presidential election. And the more they can create the impression that one of the capitalist parties is your true champion, the easier will be their victory at the next presidential election. The trap is already laid and baited for you. After pulling you into security with this talk about your victory, they will spring this political trap on you. This trap killed all labor movements. They are not wide awake to their own class interests and acted accordingly. And if one or two of your prominent leaders should happen to play a role in this game, watch out for them. Think of Powderly, Sargent, Madden, Clark and others, and keep your eyes open. There is no capitalist party in the world that will use its power in your interest.

Do you want to win out against the operators? Do you want to take the sting out of the Cunningshams, the Jacksons, the Baers, the Markles? Here is a way to do it easily and without fail: Vote Socialism by forming a local in your town. Vote the straight Socialist ticket at all elections. Nominate candidates on this ticket from your own ranks. And elect these comrades as judges, sheriffs, mayors, councilmen, representatives and governors. Then, when the coal barons do not treat you right, you can go on strikes as before. But you will order the militia and it will be on your side. You will issue injunctions against the coal barons. You will swear in special deputies and they will keep out the scabs and the Pinkertons. You will have the political power in your hands, and you can then use it in your interest, the same as the coal operators formerly used it in theirs. And you will win the strike, and the result will be a victory for every man as well as for yourselves. And by and by, when your comrades in other states will have done the same as you, you will be able to control the national politics as well as the state politics. You can then go on your last strike and take possession of the mines yourselves. You can operate them in your own interests, which are the interests of the whole working class, and you will then be your own employers and free men. Vote for Socialism!

The Irresistible Advance of "Socialism in America" by R.G. De Lyman Abbott of New York.

Socialism is the idea of the coming of the world's greatest improvement, and it is to be expected that the great majority of the people will accept it and work for its establishment in the near future. The ideas of Socialism are so simple that they can be understood by all people, and they are so practical that they can be applied to the existing conditions of society. The Socialist movement is growing rapidly, and it is to be expected that the advance of Socialism will continue to be rapid in the future.

The power of a tornado is the concentration of the forces of Nature. A storm may produce a greater force, but the tornado does so in a concentrated form. The center of a tornado is a point of high pressure where the air is sucked up into a vortex. The winds are swirling in a compact area, creating a powerful effect.

The effect of the centripetal power in the United States, and the manner in which those names in our court cases, and the names of our politicians, are so often mentioned in our newspapers, is to show what arrangements had been made to bring up the registration for the Seventeenth Congressional District. The letter was a letter to Senator Harmon, secretary of the Kansas State Committee, to know what arrangements had been made to bring up the registration for the Seventeenth Congressional District. The letter is dated and signed by the Secretary of State, who is the Secretary of Kansas, among other things. The letter also referred to Senator Frank Boren, secretary of the Congressional Committee, to the -= Second Conges committee. THE CURSE OF LANDLORDISM

Lord sold for $1,100.66 acres of land in the area of Kansas. This is an example of the many cases where land has been sold for less than its true value due to the practice of landlordism. In this case, Lord was the landlord and sold the land to a buyer for less than the market value.

The practice of landlordism is widespread and has been a major problem in many areas. It is a practice where landowners hold onto their land and refuse to sell it at a fair price. This can result in land being sold for less than its true value, which can be devastating for the seller.

The solution to this problem is to have a system in place where land is sold at a fair price. This can be achieved through the use of land appraisal services, which can help to determine the true value of the land.

A Proletarian Aristocrat

The article discusses the concept of a proletarian aristocrat, which refers to a person who is born into the working class but achieves a position of power and privilege.

The author argues that the proletarian aristocrat is a contradiction in terms, as it is impossible for a person born into the working class to achieve a position of power and privilege.

What Does the Miner Want

A Colony Owned by the Colonists, and a Colony Owned by the Coal Operators. A Striking Comparison and a Sudden Concession to Settlements of the Cross-Section of the Industry.

The coal miner's struggle in the picture, tells a story that only my imagination. There was a time when the changes were many, for coal mining was deemed by the politicians of small operation, and that of the big in the industry. A mine was a very small entity, operated by single and small magnates; and the miner was the one who made the coal, and the group of employers who made the coal.

Everything else in the coal mining industry is a product of coal mining, and that of the big in the industry. A mine was a very small entity, operated by single and small magnates; and the miner was the one who made the coal, and the group of employers who made the coal.

The picture shows the coal miner's struggle, which is a product of coal mining, for the big industry. A mine was a very small entity, operated by single and small magnates; and the miner was the one who made the coal, and the group of employers who made the coal.

When J. P. Morgan began to organize the industry, that began to complicate the business of the big industry. A mine was a very small entity, operated by single and small magnates; and the miner was the one who made the coal, and the group of employers who made the coal.

The great picture is that of the coal miner classes, as a result of the fight of all these men, given to gambling, and a greater fear for the coal miner class. This time was when I showed this picture. I will never forget my first visit to a coal camp. I was with a friend of mine, and we went down into the mines, and into the homes of the coal miners, who agreed to be my guide, and stepping into the cage we were bowled a hundred feet or more to the bottom of the shaft. I was once frightened by my own shadow, for I was never a person of the brave face and fiery

ON THE FIRING LINE.

SOME PREACHERS.

A man stood up in the pulpit, and in his voice there was a note of anger. "You men who steal! You who kill and cheat! You who lead people astray!" He paused, and then continued, "I ask you, what is the use of preaching? What is the use of the sermon? If it does not touch the heart, if it does not make a man feel his guilt, then it is a waste of time and effort."

As he spoke, the congregation listened, and then there was silence. Suddenly, a voice broke through the silence. "I am not a preacher," it said, "but I have heard what you said, and I want to say something."

The preacher turned around, and there was a middle-aged man standing in front of him. "I have heard your sermon," he said, "and I agree with you. But I would like to add something."

He paused, and then continued, "I think that preaching is not enough. We need to do more. We need to show people that there is a better way. We need to give them hope."

The preacher nodded, and said, "I agree. But how do we do that?"

The man smiled, and said, "By example. By showing others that we are being good citizens. By being honest, by being charitable. By living a life that others can respect."
