THIRD DAY OF THE CONVENTION

The Third Day of the Convention Has Closed and But Little Has Been Accomplished.

There was much disappointment and disillusionment with the results of yesterday's session of the Convention. Nothing of any importance was accomplished, other than the reading of the National Secretary's report, which is itself important, and the adoption of the amended by-laws.

The greater part of the afternoon session was taken up by a few delegates who argued against the idea of the convention as it is organized. They claimed that the convention is not representative of the people and that it is not democratic in its character. The convention is not to be criticized, they argued, but rather condemned.

The last two sessions of the afternoon were devoted to the discussion of the by-laws. There was much debate on the question of the qualifications of delegates, and the question of the representation of the people. The delegates from the large cities were in favor of a strong convention, while the delegates from the small cities were against it.

The question of the qualifications of delegates was discussed, and it was finally decided that any person who is a registered voter in the state and who has been a member of the party for at least one year shall be eligible to be a delegate.

The discussion of the representation of the people was more heated. Some delegates argued that the convention should be representative of the people, while others argued that it should be representative of the delegates. The former argued that the convention should be a body of the people, while the latter argued that it should be a body of the party. The latter argument prevailed, and it was decided that the convention should be representative of the delegates.

The question of the qualifications of delegates was then discussed, and it was finally decided that any person who is a registered voter in the state and who has been a member of the party for at least one year shall be eligible to be a delegate.

The delegates then adjourned for the day, to reconvene tomorrow at noon.
LABOR CRUSHERS STILL AT WORK

Master Bakers Ship Bread From Milwaukee to Supply Their Trade—Baker's Strike Still in Progress.

Despite the fact that comparatively few wage earners are on strike, the strike is still going strong. The "open shop" is having difficulty in gaining ground, and a large proportion of the strikers have been able to hold their ground. Foreign bakery workers have been forced to work in the strike area, and the strikers have been able to hold their ground. In the Milwaukee area, the strikers have been able to hold their ground despite the fact that they have been forced to work in the strike area. The strike has been in progress for several weeks, and it is expected to continue for some time. The public has been divided on the question of the strike, with some supporting the strikers and others supporting the employers.

May Capitalism Have the Upper Hand at Present—But a Socialist Convention Has Been in Session in Chicago for the Past Few Days, and There Is Quite Likely to be a Change.

Although the strike is still going strong, the capitalist class is confident that it will be able to hold its ground. The public has been divided on the question of the strike, with some supporting the strikers and others supporting the employers.
