Women and Children in the Bull Pen.

The latest news of the Colmar Alliance and the co-called "Bullpen" at the Colmar Hotel has been sent to many families except through the hands of Sherman. The latest report of the Bullpen is to the effect that there is a more or less of a trouble at the Colmar Hotel where the children are confined, in which they have been fed and clothed poorly. There has been a rumor of a fire in the hotel. It is alleged that the bullpen has been set on fire by the children and that the firemen have been called. The bullpen is said to be in a poor condition and the children are said to be hungry and thirsty. The report also states that the children are being ill treated and that some of them are sick. The report gives no details of the matter and is not confirmed by any official source.

Thomas W. Lawson, the originator of the Amalgamated Copper Trust, has been the target of two demanding labor actions from the American public. This case has led to intense scrutiny, with the Standard Oil Co. and the Carnegie Steel Co. joining forces to challenge Lawson's role as he takes the stand in court. This action comes as the nation grapples with the ongoing industrial disputes and the growing discontent among workers.

The nation is in the grips of a financial crisis, with the economy struggling to recover from a series of economic downturns. The situation has sparked widespread protests and strikes, with workers demanding better working conditions and fair wages. The government has responded with various measures to stabilize the economy, but the situation remains tense. The ongoing dispute with Lawson, and the potential consequences of his actions, will continue to be a focal point of attention for both the public and the authorities.
