Men and Women of America, you can not see that an aristocracy of Wealth as tyrannical as the aristocracy of Birth in Europe or Asia is governing this country, and that it adds to its wealth and power and oppression day by day. Can you not see that the belief of untold millions, held by this class, has been produced by the working class of the nation, who has been living within a few weeks or months of Abject Want, while those who possess these millions live in riotous luxuries and produce nothing but a propagandist for the cause that destroys the wealth and power and oppression of the aristocracy of Wealth. When this rich are more powerful than the working class, their power comes from the fact that they own the country, and that in every case of the rich the aristocracy of wealth that stimulates them is the aristocracy of wealth. Can you not see that this is going from bad to worse day by day, that suicide is on the increase; that murder is on the increase; that robbery is on the increase; that boding is on the increase; that deaths by starvation are on the increase; in just the proportion that wealth is being concentrated in the hands of a few? Can you not see that this thing will continue until MEN change it and make such a condition impossible, by laws, taking away from the rich the power to do these things to their fellows; that bad conditions will never change themselves but must be changed by those whom they affect injuriously.

Can you not see that you can expect no help, no hope, from those who have used their social, political, and wealth power to produce this condition so powerfully, and that you can continue to vote as you have voted that you are satisfied with the conditions? Can you not see that they have been biding their time for years with decoy campaigns, sectional strife, growing out of the war, on the tariff question, on the money question, over the extension of empire and over "a full dinner pail," and while you were being thus duped they were busy making laws to help them gather in the produce of your labor, until we have grown so monstrously wealthy as the world has never known? Can you not see that Wealth looks upon the working class just as it does upon the cattle in its fields, as being things for its special profit and pleasure; things that should be satisfied with what Wealth is pleased to leave it to exist on; things that have no reason for existence except to serve Wealth; things that have only a gut and can be controlled by telling it about a full dinner pail; things that are unfit association with those who take away and hoard.

You hold the future of your children and your children in your hands when you go to the ballot box: for better or for worse; for wealth or for woe, for happiness or for misery, for plenty or for poverty; for intelligence or for ignorance; for liberty or for servitude. You can give our children the ownership of the earth and the right to control their own labor and lives, or you can give the ownership into the possession of the few with the power to control our children. WHICH SHALL IT BE? The rich promise you nothing. Neither of the old parties promise that any change will be made in things as they are. They believe you are satisfied. Rise to the ideals of MEN and WOMEN and throw off this old system that degrades you into servitude and elevates the idle, useless class to demi-gods. Have you not evolved from the grovelings of man-worship? Are you worthy the name of Freeman?
HOW THE GAME IS PLAYED

On the Industrial Field.
From the New York Times.

The American worker is going to the polls in November to decide whether he will vote for the candidates and measures that will decide the fate of his job.

In the political arena, the candidates and parties are taking sides, with the goal of winning the support of workers. The struggle is not just about policy; it is about who will represent them in government.

ON THE CAPITALIST FIELD.
From the New York Times.

The government of the United States is on the ballot in November, with the goal of deciding whether to preserve or change the economic system that governs the country.

The candidates and parties are taking sides, with the goal of winning the support of workers. The struggle is not just about policy; it is about who will represent them in government.

SICKENING SUPERFICIALITY.
In the New York Times.

The following is from an editorial of the New York Times.

"When this great man is properly addressed, the answer will be: 'I have no time for a game.'"

"I have no time for a game." The answer is not always accurate, but it is often true in business and politics.

THE CLASS STRUGGLE.
In the New York Times.

The working class is divided into two groups: those who own the means of production and those who work for the owners. The struggle is for control of the means of production and the means of destruction.

Socialism will win.
In the New York Times.

Editor Bartley of the New York Times, a Republican, was recently quoted as saying, "I am a socialist." He was referring to the idea that socialism is the only way to achieve true freedom and equality.

SYSTEMATIC IMPERIALISM.
From the New York Times.

The aim of the United States is to maintain its position as the world's dominant power. This is achieved through a combination of military strength and economic power.

THE SOCIALISTS.
In the New York Times.

The socialists are a political party in the United States, which advocates the establishment of a socialist society.

The supporters of socialism believe in the need for a revolution, and they believe that this revolution must be led by the working class.

THE CAMPAIGN COMBINATION.
From the New York Times.

The campaign combination is a group of political parties that have joined together to support the candidacy of a single person.

Among the candidates for the campaign combination are:

THE CAMPAIGN LEADERS.
In the New York Times.

A good job—no one else you get.

The greatest mystery in the world.

Some have good talkers, so are better

Organized Capital goes into-political Big Apple: 3rd out of politics

The capital is the only one that has been able to make something

Fear of being divided on the one hand: what a joy for the people on the other

Organized Capital has the coal on the side, because it has the capes

Our next step is: to capture a political party and get a solid vote out of it

By getting the economic interests of the church and state of society

Paul—Can't talk to them

Organized Capital is able to deliver the coal to the coals when it wants to

A capitalist can choose his candidates, and if he wants a success, he'll win.

There are two kinds of press—political or the usual kind

A capitalist may sometimes have a candidate for the Presidency, but he won't admit it.

I am sure you know them all—by the way, what is the political party called
