ABROAD AND AT HOME.

All the world has been wondering over the enormous shipments of coal from this country to eastern Asia for several months. We have no doubt that the considerable quantities of coal sent from the West to the East are being used not only for the production of electricity, but also for the manufacture of paper. The increase in the demand for paper has been accompanied by an increase in the demand for coal, as the production of paper requires large quantities of coal for the generation of electricity.

There is no evidence to support the claim that the shipments of coal to the East are being used for the production of coal gas. The demand for coal gas in the East is not large enough to account for the enormous quantities of coal being shipped from the West.

The REAL OPEN SHOP

Should the principle of the "open shop" actually applied where would the employers be? From the workers' point of view, the open shop seems to be the ideal condition. What would happen if the employers were to enforce the principles of the "open shop"? The result would be a struggle between labor and management, and it is highly probable that labor would lose.
