Not Too Late—Not Yet Too Late.

Fifteen years ago there was no organized labor in this country. Today there are more than 12,000,000 union members. Under these circumstances it is only natural that the organized labor movement should have grown in size and power, and that the benefits of unionism should be extended to all workers. Do not confuse the benefits that have come to the working man with the benefits that have come to the union leaders. Many people believe that the union movement is a disease of the working class, but the facts are that the benefits that have come to the working man have been won by the union movement. The union movement has done more to improve the working conditions of the working class than any other movement in the world.

The benefits that have come to the working man have come through the union movement. The union movement has done more to improve the working conditions of the working class than any other movement in the world. The union movement has done more to improve the working conditions of the working class than any other movement in the world. The union movement has done more to improve the working conditions of the working class than any other movement in the world.

LISTEN, MY MIDDLE CLASS FRIEND

BY ERNST AMERICAN

LITTLE business men, little boys, little farmers, little thieves, 대하여, my middle class. Let me speak to you, my middle class. You are the backbone of the United States. You are the engineers, the mechanics, the clerks, the salesmen, the farmers, the housewives. You are the backbone of the nation. You are the people who make this country work. You are the people who make this country strong. You are the people who make this country great.

But I want to tell you something. I want to tell you something about the world today. I want to tell you something about the future of this country. I want to tell you something about the future of the world. I want to tell you something about the future of humanity. I want to tell you something about the human condition.

I want to tell you something about the

At Hillman, Ohio, the Socialists are beginning to show signs of strength. The Socialist candidates are beginning to make headway.
The Socialist movement is on the rise. The Socialist party is beginning to gain ground.

COMING NATION

BUSINESS MEN AS SOCIALISTS

"You can't make Socialism out of business men," wrote the editor of a great town of America's newspapers. "Such a notion is one great mistake..."

But the business man is the one who prides himself on his dealing in commodities, and especially the farmer.

And he knows that this number of people is very necessary for the preserving of our country and its institutions.

The questions of the day are not of small consequence to many.
