SPOKANE WHITE SLAVERY.

The Inception of the Fight on Free Speech in the Great Ghetto City.

The Appeal's exposure of the unjust tactics of the dominant class in Spokane divided the city into two camps. The popular interest was quickly aroused, and a large number of people took up the cause of the Appeal. The city authorities, however, took steps to suppress the Appeal. The leaders of the Appeal were arrested, and the Appeal was forced to go underground.

BRUTALITY AT SPOKANE.

Diary of James M. Stoddard, White Citizen of the Great Ghetto City.

Stoddard, a white citizen of Spokane, was arrested on the street in the city and was taken to the police station. There, he was subjected to brutal treatment by the police. Stoddard was then released on bail.

CRITICISM.

Mr. J. B. H. has opposed the publication of this newspaper. He says:

"I do not agree with the views expressed in this paper. I believe in free speech and free thought. I am opposed to any form of government that restricts the freedom of the press."

The editor replies:

"Mr. H.'s views are not widespread. The majority of our readers support free speech and free thought. We will continue to publish the Appeal as long as we believe in free speech and free thought."

THOUGHT.

The Appeal is founded on the principle of free thought. We believe in the right of every individual to think and express his own ideas. We will continue to support this principle regardless of opposition.
