Splendid Socialist Victory

The insurrection movement, which is sweeping the country, marks a great victory for Socialism. This is particularly true of Kansas, where it has found ground upon which to grow. The trend of the movement, under the influence of the insurrectionists, is such that they may be considered to have made a great stride toward the establishment of the Socialistic Republic.

All over the United States there are villages that were once contented and prosperous, now practically deserted since the fall of the old order. In each one of these cases the people of the town had been led to believe that the present order of things was the best that could be expected. But when the truth was revealed to them, they found that the old system was not only bad, but that it was responsible for the poverty and suffering of their people.

The working class throughout the United States is demanding not only the abolition of the old order, but also the establishment of a Socialistic Republic. The Socialists are demanding not only the end of the exploitation of the working class, but also the establishment of a Socialistic Republic.

DEBS AT WORK

By John Reed, Asst. to the Editors.

The Kansas Republican platform disavows the Socialists. Yet it is one thing the Socialist propaganda has done. It has brought the Republican party to a standstill. There is nothing the Republicans hate more than the Socialists. They have been the dominant party in this country for over a hundred years. REVOLUTIONARY FARMERS

By Geo. H. Sitar, Staff Correspondent to Appeal to Reason.

2. FROM FREEDOM TO VASSALAGE.

There have been two major threats to the tobacco farmers. The first threat is the tobacco trust, which has dominated the tobacco industry for most of the past century. The second threat is the government, which has imposed various regulations on the tobacco industry.

Tobacco in Other States

Other states have been affected by the tobacco trust. North Carolina and South Carolina are the states where tobacco is grown in the largest amounts. The tobacco farmers in these states have also been faced with the same problems as those in Kentucky.

HILL AND THE FIREMEN.

The battle that was fought in the firehouse of Hill and the firemen between the hour of 10 p.m. and 12 midnight, some days ago, was made in the interest of the women who found themselves the victims of a fire that was raging in a building on the corner of Second and Third streets.

The firemen, who had been called to the scene of the fire, found themselves in a quandary as to what course of action they should take in order to save the lives of the women who were trapped inside the building.

They tried to enter the building through the windows, but the flames were too intense. They then turned their attention to the roof, where they hoped to find a way to enter the building from the outside.

The women inside the building were desperate for help and began to cry for assistance. The firemen were unable to hear them over the noise of the fire, and they continued to search for a way to enter the building.

Eventually, they found a ladder that had been left outside the building and used it to climb up to the roof. From there, they were able to enter the building and rescue the women.

The firemen were hailed as heroes by the grateful women, and the fire was quickly put out.

ORIGIN OF THE FLAMES.

According to the report, the fire that started in the building was caused by a short circuit in the electrical wiring, which ignited a stack of newspapers that were stored in the building.

The firemen had been called to the scene of the fire by a passerby who had seen the flames from a nearby window.

The fire was quickly put out, and the women inside the building were safely rescued. The firemen were hailed as heroes by the grateful women, and they were commended for their bravery in saving the lives of the women.
