

Appeal to Reason

J. A. WAYLAND FRED D. WARREN Managing Editor

Girard, Kansas, U. S. A., November 26, 1910

DECISION CONFIRMED Telegram just received (Monday afternoon)

States Court of Appeals has confirmed the decision of the Federal Court at Ft. Scott, sentencing Warren to six months in jail and to pay a fine of $1,500, for defaming the character of Ex-Governor Wm. S. Taylor.

"You may jail men but you cannot jail principles."—From Warren's speech at Federal Court, Ft. Scott

The Appeal's Second Battle With the Federal Courts

Dear Reader:—I most earnestly urge you to read carefully the words that follow. I then ask you to call in your neighbors after the evening meal and read aloud to them this story of outraged manhood.

- 1st--To secure for our comrade, Frank Lane, the crippled miner, the $25,000 due him from the corporations responsible for his frightful injuries; 2d--Succeeding in this, to establish a precedent that will enable the army of more than half a million injured workingmen and women to force from corporation coffers the blood-bought dollars that will enable these wounded industrial soldiers to live the remaining days of their lives free from poverty and want;

3d--Failing in this--and failure can only come in this case through the utter subservency of the courts to their corporation masters--to so thoroughly and effectively discredit the judiciary, that public opinion will force a reversal of established judicial practice that heretofore has always been in the interest of the master and against the slave;

4th--Increase the circulation of our Socialist papers.

BY FRED D. WARREN.

FRANK LANE is (or rather was) a miner employed at Shaft No. 5, of the Sheridan Coal company. This shaft is located ten miles east of Girard.

On the 10th day of June of this year, while engaged in removing lumps of coal, that had fallen on the railroad track under the car he was loading, Frank was seriously injured, perhaps fatally. His back was broken in two places--resulting paralysis of the lower limbs.

The loading apparatus with which the coal was dumped into the railroad car from the head house of the shaft, was badly out of repair, and as a result great quantities of coal fell on the track, making it necessary for Lane to go under the car and remove the obstruction, so that the loaded car could be shoved down the track to make room for an empty. While young Lane was performing this duty under the direction of the top boss an empty was being "pinched down" from the head of the switch by a companion.

The hand brake on this empty car would not work on account of a defect in the mechanism. Its speed could not be controlled and in consequence the empty shot down the incline at a terrific speed. At the bottom of the switch was the loaded car under which Frank Lane was at work, unmindful of the danger which threatened. His companion shouted--but his voice could not be heard above the rattle and roar of the runaway car. With a crash it struck the loaded car with such force that it, too, was started down the incline, crushing the unfortunate miner beneath the cruel wheels.

When the boy was removed it was discovered that his back was broken and he was otherwise crushed and injured. The wounded boy was taken to the Pittsburg, Kan., hospital, where he now lies with little hope of recovery. If he lives, it is only to be a hopeless, helpless cripple the remaining days of his life.

By mere chance, I heard of this accident--but one of the 600,000 that happened with the past twelve months--and I called on the lad at his hospital quarters. I heard from his lips, pale and drawn with pain, the brief details of the accident. I could see him before the accident at his work, hopeful and happy. Because Frank had a purpose in view. There was a vision before his mind that gave strength to his arms and brought a smile to his lips. Over the sea was a gray-haired old mother, who, but a short time before, had bade him good-bye and wished him God speed as he left the home of his boyhood for unknown America.

Frank had reached the new world with high hopes. In this land of opportunity he would make a home for himself and his mother and for ness of another great corporation--the railroad company. The dollars necessary to have properly repaired the defective brake were needed by the managers to pay dividends to clamoring stockholders. Later, he learned how it all happened. At first it was difficult for this simple minded boy to believe that men could be so cruelly neglectful. Then the pain forced him to a realization of his unfortunate condition, a condition brought about through no fault of his own. He wrung his hands in despair. Then he thought of the mother over the sea in that far away land. Then of the waiting girl. Tears came to his eyes as he pictured these two waiting for the letter that was to tell them to come to America--the letter with the money to pay their ship passage.

As I sat by his bedside and heard from those vivid lips that story of outraged manhood, of indifference to this boy's sufferings (for he it known no representative of the company had called on this lad after his hurt, save the claim agent, one of those ghouls in human form whose duty it is to stand between the victims of capitalism's greed and the Lords of the Coal Mine) I resolved that the APPEAL TO REASON and its army should fight this boy's battle, and in fighting this battle we would be fighting the battles of the 600,000 men and women and children who every year fall victims to this Moloch of Capital.

The following letter will explain itself:

August 6, 1910.

J. I. Sheppard, Fort Scott, Kan. Dear Mr. Sheppard: Learning of accident which resulted in a serious injury to a young man named Frank Lane that occurred at Sheridan Mine No. 5, east of Girard, Kan., on June 10th last, I visited the unfortunate victim at the city hospital in Pittsburg yesterday. From him and others familiar with the case I learned the particulars of the accident.

It seems that young Mr. Lane was instructed by the top boss to remove some lumps of coal that had fallen underneath the car that was being loaded at the tippie. This coal accumulated on the track by reason of a defective loading apparatus. While engaged in the work of removing the coal from the track so that the car could be run down to the other end of the switch, an unloaded car was bumped into it with such force that young Lane was doubled up and his back broken in two places. The man whose duty it was to let the empties down tells me that he was unable to control this particular car because of a defective brake. Hence the accident.

I want you to look into this case and see what can be done towards securing a settlement from the company. You may draw on the Appeal for your expenses. If the company refuses to settle, bring suit for at least $25,000 and we will fight it to the last court. The Appeal will pay the expenses of this litigation. If the company offers to make a settlement on a nominal basis, which I surmise will not be done, the Appeal will guarantee this sum to the young man so that in the event we lose the case he will not be deprived of the pittance he otherwise would have received.

I understand the company is insured in some sort of an industrial insurance concern which for a stipulated amount agrees to assume all responsibility arising from injuries to employees. This concern no doubt will fight this case to the last ditch with the best legal talent money can buy and we must make preparations for a stiff fight.

I will tell this young man's story to the public through the Appeal. If it were possible to take our million or more readers to his bedside and let them hear from his pale lips, in his broken English, the pitiful story of his struggles in America to make a living for his poor mother, back in Finland, of his blasted hopes of comfort and happiness in the new land of "opportunity and wealth," if I could just make the great unthinking public realize that what has happened to this unfortunate lad might be the fate of their sons, I believe we could break down the combination that exists between the corporations and the courts to prevent the crushed and mangled victims of greed and carelessness from getting the pittance that would enable them to live the balance of their pain-racked lives free from the haunting fear of poverty.

Sincerely yours, FRED D. WARREN. Now, comrades of the APPEAL Army, I know I can depend on you to help us in this contest with the courts. Here is a contest that will call forth your greatest efforts. A suit for $5,000.00 has been filed in the district court of Girard, Crawford county, Kansas. As this issue goes to press an effort is being made to have the case transferred to Pollock's court at Fort Scott by the coal company. Both the Sheridan Coal company and the Kansas City Southern Railroad company have been made defendants. This suit was not filed until after every effort had been put forth to secure from these corporations a reasonable sum for Frank Lane to, in a small way, compensate him for the injuries he had received. The companies, protected as they are by court-made laws which make it impossible to secure damages for injuries to employees, refused to do anything for our wounded comrade. The Sheridan Coal company is insured by an industrial insurance concern which, for a stipulated sum, assumes all responsibility for accidents and protects the corporation from damage suits. There are no words in the English language that can adequately describe the loathing which I feel for men in such despicable business. But this industrial insurance concern is one of the creatures of capitalism and we must reckon with it. This insurance company of Baltimore, Md., employs the shrewdest lawyers that money can buy. They are experts in defending their corporation masters against the helpless victims of greed and avarice. They know all the crooks and turns in a judicial system designed to protect the master and defeat the injured employee.

I am fully aware of the magnitude of the contest we are about to engage in, but that should only increase our determination to win. Pitted against Frank Lane, the crippled and paralyzed miner, on his little cot in the Pittsburg, Kansas, hospital, are arrayed the Sheridan Coal company, the Kansas City & Southern Railroad company, the... Industrial Insur... ance company and a century of judge-made laws, denying to work people damages for injuries sustained. But back of Frank Lane stands the APPEAL Army, and back of the APPEAL Army stand 500,000 subscribers and back of all these stand 2,000,000 sympathizers ready and willing to do all in their power to aid us in winning this fight. This case will be fought through all the courts, to the Supreme court of the United States if necessary. But if we are to win this case it must also be fought before the great American jury (the people) that same jury that rendered a verdict of "not guilty" in the case of the Federation officials. In winning this case, we will establish a precedent that will enable us to win in other causes which the APPEAL'S Legal Defense Department will immediately institute. For, be it known, that this is but the beginning of a far-reaching campaign in defense of the 600,000 Frank Lanes who are injured every year on the railroads, in the mines and the workshops of this county.

This is the test case--the whole plan fails or succeeds with our failure or success in this contest. If successful, then we will extend the territory of our operations to embrace the whole mining and industrial district of southeast Kansas; then over the entire state; then to Missouri; to Oklahoma; to Colorado; and on and on until we reach into every state where the APPEAL Army waves its victorious banner. The winning of this one case means that when a corporation learns that the APPEAL'S Legal Defense Department has taken up the case of one of its victims a settlement just to the injured working man will be quickly effected. It means more than this; once we win, it will force capitalist legislators and the Washington congress to spread on state and national statute books a working man's compensation law that will mean something, in place of the makeshifts several of the states have enacted merely for campaign purposes. And can you think, comrades, of a greater work than this? Can we serve ourselves and our comrades to greater advantage here and now? And can you think of a more effective way of disabusing the public mind of the unfairness of American courts than to follow step by step through the slimy channels of court procedure, the case of Frank Lane, thus disclosing the methods used in the self-styled temples of justice to protect the capitalist class.

Every dollar awarded by the courts to this boy will be paid to him and to his mother. There will be no attorney's fees and no court costs. The APPEAL will bear all these expenses, which, before this case is ended, will reach thousands of dollars.

How We Will Finance This New Campaign.

After you have read this brief outline of what we propose to do I am sure you will be willing to pledge yourself to pay $12 in monthly installments of $1 toward financing this stupendous enterprise which has for its purpose not only the winning of this $25,000 damage suit for our comrade, Frank Lane, and for his 600,000 unfortunate brothers, but the complete discrediting of the whole judiciary system. As the certainty of this desirable result comes to you, where is the man who will not do this small part in this tremendous conflict? But remember: The APPEAL has never yet asked its readers for a donation, nor will we do so in this case. The APPEAL has been able to finance its own contests with the courts, to finance the Moyer-Haywood fight, to finance the congressional investigation into the Mexican cases and we will continue this policy. But this campaign against the courts, however, will cost many thousands of dollars--more than the APPEAL itself can raise at its extremely low rate of subscription. In order to meet this emergency, we have launched a new weekly magazine, The Coming Nation, the profits from which will be used to finance the Appeal Legal Defense League. At $1.00 per year there will be sufficient profit to pay all the expenses involved. And so I do not hesitate to ask you to pledge yourself to pay $1.00 per month for twelve months to carry on this work. For the $1.00 we will mail to you one yearly subscription card, good for a year's subscription to what is destined to be the greatest weekly magazine in the world, The Coming Nation. The fact that Charles Edward Russell and A. M. Simons, assisted by a corps of able writers and artists, have been employed to do the work on the new magazine is a guarantee to you that as usual, the APPEAL will make good its promises. Comrades, the capitalists and their judicial hirelings will watch closely your response to this challenge. The first five hundred names to respond will be printed in black type on the first page of the APPEAL, and a marked copy sent to every judge in the United States. Will your name be printed there?

CUT OUT COUPON AND MAIL TO APPEAL

COUNT ME IN THIS FIGHT AGAINST THE COURTS

Dear Appeal--Here is my pledge to contribute $1.00 per month (in addition to my work for the Appeal) for a period of twelve months to the Appeal's Legal Defense Department to fight the cases of crippled working men and women through the courts. It is understood that I am to receive one yearly subscription card to THE COMING NATION for each dollar contributed.

JUST ABOUT THE BOYS.

GETTING RID OF TAXES.

It has long been known that the very fellows who talk most of patriotism and love of the flag are first to dodge the army and their just taxes. But there is a grand new scheme for evading the support of the government whose aid the plutocrats evoke in times of strike. It is from a circular advertising stocks sent out by Chisholm and Chapman, members of the New York Stock Exchange:

You may be unaware of the fact that according to a law made effective June 1910, any railroad or other bond of companies owning real estate in New York state, whether listed or unlisted, can be made exempt from all personal tax by the payment of a recording mortgage fee of one-half of one per cent. This comes up to the individual investor a large field of bonds, many of them listed on the New York Stock Exchange, which formerly have not been popular due to the fear of personal taxation. Now that upon payment of $5.00 for each $1,000 bond such issues may forever become tax exempt. We expect a greatly increased demand from estates and individuals for bonds that can be made exempt.

How would it do to leave any person who evaded taxes without protection under the law against strikes or damages of any kind? If they will not support the government, what right have they to protection under the government? And why should you go out to fight for these stockholders in railroad and industrial securities when they will not help pay for your keep while doing the work?

GREAT crops are certain and following them a revival of business is sure to come," says Henry Clews in one of his circulars, and the sharks of Wall Street whet up their teeth for the fresh victims of their rapacity. Why should a good crop make the Wall Street speculators joyous? They don't raise any crops. Oh! but they know they will get the larger part of it as profits for handling the crops from the farm to the consumers. This is a funny arrangement that enriches those who do not produce and leaves the farmers with so small an equivalent for their produce. When the farmers raise little the speculators can't get so much, but when they raise a big crop the speculators get more. Just as easy!

The history of the great fortunes shows that the captains of industry are all "honorable men. Men who have made hundreds of millions out of the railroads, and who are now clamoring for higher rates, because the present rates do not pay, would not lie to you about it! Of course not! Men who have bribed and corrupted any such good friends of yours that they want to protect you by charging more rates. They are such unselfish creatures that they think only of your good! I would not believe one of them under oath--if his financial interests were involved. But you workers would. You would vote for his henchmen at every election.

So the farms are growing bigger and fewer after all. Following the inevitable law of concentration, just as have the industries. Your children are as certainly doomed to be tenants at will and industrial serfs as they are born--unless Socialism conquers. They said that farms were not subject to the same laws as industries. They have another guess coming. The Socialists are proven right by the census returns.

"CIVILIZATION" is author of the slum, the tramp and the prostitute.

The Waters and the Shadow

Editor's note--The following is a chapter from Victor Hugo's masterpiece, "Les Misérables. In reading this contrast the situation of the man overboard with the unfortunate victims of capitalism today. Take the case of Frank Lane, being typical of the 600,000 work people that are wounded every year in this country. When a workman is injured he is thrown aside, while society moves on without so much as a glance to his direction. He struggles against more frightful odds than that which compass the man described by Victor Hugo in the article which follows:

"A man overboard! "What matters it! The ship does not stop. The wind is blowing; that dark ship must keep on her destined course. She passes away. "The man disappears, then reappears; he plunges and rises again to the surface, he calls, he stretches out his hands, they hear him not; the ship, staggering under the gale, is straining every rope; the sailors and passengers see the drowning man no longer; his miserable head is but a point in the vastness of the billows. "He hurls cries of despair into the depths. What a spectre is that disappearing sail! He looks upon it, he away; it grows dim; it diminishes. He was there, but just now, he was one of the crew, he went and came upon the deck with the rest, and he had his share of the air and of the sunlight, he was a living man. Now, what has become of him? He slipped, he fell, and it is finished. "He is in the monstrous deep. He has nothing under his feet but the yielding, fleeing element. The waves, torn and scattered by the wind, close around him hideously; the rolling of the abyss bears him along; shreds of water are flying

CAN HE COME BACK?

Editorial Correspondence by Geo. H. Shoaf, New York.

Can he come back? That question now agitates the minds of millions of people...

At present he is the butt of universal ridicule, the target of national denunciation, a man forsaken and alone.

Charged with the authorship of the Alton steal, with participation in Panama Canal loot, with fake heroism in the Spanish-American war...

In the recent campaign Roosevelt was in the New York World an editorial demand that he announce definitely he would not be a candidate for a third term.

"How can I comply with this demand? I am in this fight for pure politics and honest business. I do not want a third term, but who can say that conditions may not arise that may compel me to take a third term in order that I might more effectively do my work?"

To reach correct conclusions in any matter it is necessary that facts be regarded rather than one's feelings, that the judgment should be influenced by reason and not by prejudice.

During the closing days of the campaign Roosevelt, realizing impending defeat, declared he intended to keep up the fight for pure politics and honest business, and that a temporary defeat would only give strength and determination to his efforts.

With know-it-all cocksureness the New York Herald Sunday preceding election announced Roosevelt's overthrow and the success of the democratic ticket.

Publicly high finance is continuing its denunciation of the Big Stick; privately high finance is wondering whether after all the gyrations of the Big Stick were not the proper caper.

Wherefore the meaning of all this? Many persons fondly imagined that the democratic party was dead, and now it enters the political arena with a vigor not displayed since Buchanan's administration.

High finance, fearing Roosevelt's headiness and uncertain course, requested his overthrow. The people in New York state apparently responded by burying his candidate beneath an avalanche of ballots.

In other states republicans lost ignominiously—states where he was not a factor and in which he had not raised his voice. Evidently the issue in these states was not Rooseveltism, as the capitalist press would have the people believe.

While high finance sought Roosevelt's overthrow, and anticipated it, the nation-wide political change was absolutely unexpected.

Political talk in the brokers' offices in Wall and Broad streets and in the New York Stock Exchange is different from what it was ten days ago. Magnates are asking each other questions. They want to know what is the matter. Regardless of the palaver they hand to the public through a venal press...

Before the election the capitalist press of the nation said as little as possible about the Socialist campaign; in New York city an absolute conspiracy of silence prevailed.

High finance is doing some serious thinking these days. The consultations among the magnates are not wholly financial; politics is dividing time with finance.

All along Roosevelt declared to his "Dear Harrimans" of finance that if a revolution is to be avoided in this country the people must be placated, either with promises or fake legislation or genuine reform.

It is interesting to note in this connection that the New York Typographical society, whose members were urged to join in this movement for free public schools...

THEY who build battle ships seem to think that competition is the life of trade. By the way, which democracy was it that won? It certainly was not Mr. Bryan's.

IF there had been no stagnation of ideas and morals there could be no agitation to follow.

SOCIALISM is a pleasant dream of the only people in the world who are thoroughly awake.

THE American Socialist movement, being the fourth on the globe, is not to be sneezed at any more.

THEY who voted for Socialism at the late election ought to join the party and assist in the work of agitation and education that is ahead.

THE first demand for a ten hour day was made in Philadelphia, Pa. in 1791. The men making the demand were looked upon as anarchists by the pillars of society.

ANOTHER Socialist gone wrong. W. R. Gaylord has filed his expense account in running for congress in Milwaukee and almost getting there, and it amounts to two cents. In the eyes of the old party grafters this is a crime.

JUDGE JOHN McCALL, of the federal court, announces that he is not going to fine Standard Oil company anything like $200,000, as Judge Landis did.

WHILE working in a Cincinnati factory he ordered an extra bundle of Appeals. These he distributed among his shop mates.

NELSON YORK and Gust Carlton, of Higging, Minn., according to American Lumberman, a few years ago bought 120 acres of land at $25 per acre.

"THEY" talk of lowering the price of food. "They" can do it. "They" can also prove that after "they" lower the wages as well, the workers will be in exactly the same condition under democratic low prices and low wages as under republican high prices and high wages.

"There isn't any use talking to a man with a red button," sorrowfully remarked a democratic candidate in Girard the day before election.

"I don't agree with that statement. I shall write to the editor at once and tell him that he is wrong. He should call you fellows cows, because a cow will meekly, without ever batting an eye, permit itself to be milked dry, while a jackass will occasionally kick. You fellows never kick." Hereafter the APPEAL will refer to working men who vote the republican and democratic tickets as cows. I think it is a better name for them. What do you think?

REAL SOCIALISTS. In looking over the election returns I am gratified to note how few scratches there were made by the Socialists.

The capitalist papers have not yet found themselves. Some are remaining silent, refusing to even mention the Socialist vote.

For the twelve months ending June 30, 1910, 3,804 railroad employees were killed; 82,374 injured. This is an increase of nearly 33 1/3 per cent of the number killed and of 20 per cent in the number injured over the year before.

Little by little the liberties of the people are being taken from them, and the new "democratic" house of representatives is not going to stay the tendency.

Now they are wanting a non-partisan tariff commission, so they may proceed to rob the people without either of the parties being held responsible for it, while both have a finger in the pie.

Now that ninety per cent of those accidents can be avoided one has only to refer to a record from the government railroads in Europe.
