Now there is a great passion for freedom of speech for himself, and in his factory and mines and shops, and for freedom of conscience, and for freedom of thought, and for freedom of belief, and for freedom of every type of freedom.

The capitalist newspaper's dependence on the publicGeo. E. H. Bruce.

The capitalist wants the worker to have enough to eat, so that he will not be discontented. But the master insists that the worker should not have any ideas of his own, and should not read newspapers or books, or even listen to a lecture, or go to a meeting of a labor organization.

Unemployment is the real issue. Men and women are starving because the capitalists find it unprofitable to keep their factories and mills running. The remedy will be told in Appeal No. 853.

Under the Iron Hand

Workers were driven out of their wages by striking. The miners were being reduced to a miserable subsistence, working small wages. They were afraid of the mine owners, who had a monopoly, and who had control of the county officials. The public seemed to be friendly to the miners, but they had no one to represent them. The miners' strike was brought to a sudden halt by the strike of the miners. Nevada provided for a strike, and any person taking part in it would be subject to the laws of the State. The miners were resolved to fight for their rights.

Nine Completely Too Young

The age of the miners was sixteen. In the peace of the mine, they were allowed to work 10 hours a day. However, when the strike was in progress, Governor Johnson issued an order that the miners should work 12 hours, and that if they did not comply they would be punished. The miners were determined to resist the law, and they continued to work in defiance of it. The miners were working again as soon as the strike was called off.

JAIL FANCIES

The story of the Appeal No. 853 is told by a group of miners who were in jail for their part in the strike. They are all young men, many of them only sixteen years old. They were arrested for participating in the strike, and are now awaiting trial on charges of conspiracy.

In every community where men and women are out of work there should be a thorough distribution of the Appeal's special unemployment edition, dated March 7th. Better order a bundle at once.

LITTLE STORIES OF REAL PEOPLE

By T. E. MOORE.

Joe was born thirty-seven years ago in the Appalachian Mountains. His father and his mother died when he was a child. Joe had no hope of the future. He was born a miner and died a miner. His parents were born miners, he was born a miner, and his children will be miners. Joe had no hope of the future. He was born a miner and died a miner. His parents were born miners, he was born a miner, and his children will be miners. Joe had no hope of the future. He was born a miner and died a miner.

And for thirty years Joe had lived a hard and slovenly life. Fifty years ago he had married and lived for the next seven years. Joe's wife died, and Joe has no children. Joe never thought of the future. He was born a miner and died a miner. His parents were born miners, he was born a miner, and his children will be miners. Joe had no hope of the future. He was born a miner and died a miner. His parents were born miners, he was born a miner, and his children will be miners. Joe had no hope of the future. He was born a miner and died a miner.

W.H. House's West Coast and Pacific Railway System is in operation. The new system will be operated by the House Brothers, who have been prominent in the railroad industry for many years. The system will cover a total of 5,000 miles of track and will be one of the most modern and efficient in the country.

WORTH CONSIDERING.

The Appeal suggests that some of the surplus from the government should be devoted to increasing the wages of the workers. The government has received a surplus of $7,000,000 a year from the sale of the surplus of the steel industry. The government would be able to increase the wages of the workers by a small percentage, say 5 per cent, of the surplus. This would be a small sacrifice to the government, but it would be a great benefit to the workers. The workers are entitled to a fair share of the surplus, and the government should use it to increase their wages.

SIGNIFICANT NEWS.

The Pennsylvania Railroad will hold a meeting of its stockholders in Philadelphia on May 1st. The railroad has been in operation for 100 years and is one of the largest and most important in the country. The meeting will be held to discuss the future plans of the railroad and to consider its financial affairs.

The National Federation of Labor is holding a convention in Chicago on June 1st. The federation has been in operation for 50 years and is one of the largest and most important labor organizations in the country. The convention will be held to discuss the current problems of the labor movement and to consider the federation's future plans.

RELIGION AND SOCIALISM.

You know how the social democrats have been spreading all over the world. They are the most progressive of all the political parties. They are the most democratic of all the political parties. They are the most radical of all the political parties. They are the most progressive of all the political parties. They are the most democratic of all the political parties. They are the most radical of all the political parties.

"Intomunicado" by Adolph Daves

This is Gomer's only story of his own, written especially for the Appeal.

We are being held in military confinement, and have no idea what this practice of looking good officers is. Perhaps the Government of the United States is being dinned into our ears.
