An Honest Way to Get Money

Written by ALLAN L. BENSON for the Appeal to Reason

Round up the congressmen! We ask you, has there ever been a time when the congressmen and members of the congress were more necessary to our national and personal welfare? A more constructive, more dedicated body of men was never assembled into a legislative body. The recent political campaign was largely to elect congressmen, and all over the country the late autumn saw the country in the hands of the congressmen.

The congressmen are the men who control the nation from the top to the bottom, and it is the congressmen who will determine the future of our country. If we want to have a country that is strong, prosperous, and happy, we must have congressmen who will work for the good of the country.

HOUSE BILLS EXPLAINED

Anti-Injunction Bill.—A bill offered by organized labor limiting the right of the President to issue an injunction against a strike was taken off its final reading in the house on May 11. The bill passed the Senate on April 22 by a roll call of 35 to 10. The President's assayion that the bill would undermine the President's power to protect the public interest was denounced by the bill's sponsors as a political trick. The bill's sponsors contended that the bill would undermine the President's power to protect the public interest.

Tobacco Banished

Tobacco habits are banished from the workplace as they are from the home. This issue refers to the proposal to ban smoking in the workplace. The proposal was brought about by the demand for a smoke-free environment in the workplace. The proposal was accepted by the workplace.
Victor L. Berger was the only Socialist congressman. The United States has had more than 200 congressmen in its history, but Berger was the first to be elected. He was a member of the House of Representatives from 1913 to 1933, serving two terms. He was旋�ed for his support of the interests of laborers, his belief in the need for social change, and his opposition to war. During his term of office he introduced a number of bills to benefit working people. He also introduced a resolution condemning the war in World War I, which was rejected by the House. During his second term, he introduced the Berger Amendment, which would allow congressmen to vote their consciences on war issues. This amendment was also rejected by the House. His colleagues on the House floor also objected to him. They accused him of being a radical, a troublemaker, and a danger to the nation. The press also criticized him for his outspokenness and his policies. Despite this, Berger remained committed to his beliefs and continued to fight for working people throughout his term of office.
THE government has laid on the farmers the same tax, directly or indirectly, as it does on the people who live in cities. The result is the same in both cases: they are all taxed to the几年 to pay for the government.
