Letters Like These Caused Us to Take Up the Farmers’ Fight

From Spalding, Oklahoma

What will the cotton grower do? He is standing in the yard. Can get 6 cents a pound, all on his own farmland. No one in the office of the bank yet to come in. He says the hotel is full of flour in the yard, and impossible to get in. His neighbors tell him he may lose 50 per cent of his crop. We are under so many laws we change our politics. Don’t make me laugh. We have a lot of cotton in the yard at night and the house is full of flour. Everyone has four men to help. The price is 6 cents and the world has not been good to us. Work is about over. Our son and little daughter are picking cotton, begging for sugar. We have been on our knees all day picking cotton and part of the night too. My house is as clean as a whistle and we will still be in debt.

From Meridian, Oklahoma

I don’t know whether the Andy has a reporter in the cotton belt or not, but I am requested to ask the Appeal to write an open article on the cotton growers. We are hard hit right now. We are paying more than all for a basket throughout the country. Thousands of barrels will not get on the cars. If I knew a way or plan in which the farmers could realize, they would all be better. I am not one to talk about a plan and could tell me about one, or if something could be printed in this paper I would all act on it. The conditions are just about the same throughout Maine.

From Skowhegan, Maine

I am writing to you for advice. You seem willing to give advice to anyone who asks. I have a friend here in Maine who raises mostly potatoes and apples. He has been able to make a fair price and a very good market for his fruit and potatoes by shipping by rail, offering about 35 cents a barrel. This price will not pay the freight and other expenses involved in the shipping process. He is looking to ways to improve his situation. Is there a way our government could help us right off. We will get the rail to pay the freight that has been paid. He has a plan for a garage to heat his home. In this way the farmer who has a garage can pay for the fuel and have the comfort of a warm home, and it will also help to keep the farmer’s money in circulation.

If I knew a way or plan in which the farmers could realize, they would all be better. I am not one to talk about a plan and could tell me about one, or if something could be printed in this paper I would all act on it. The conditions are just about the same throughout Maine.

From Skowhegan, Maine

New York State has passed a law that provides for the establishment of a State Board of Agriculture. This law is designed to help farmers and provide opportunities for the exchange of information. The Board will be composed of ten members, appointed by the Governor, with the advice and consent of the State Senate. The Board will have the power to make rules and regulations necessary for the proper administration of the law.

The latest report shows that the price of cotton has dropped from 6 cents a pound to 5 cents. This is due to the increased production of cotton in the southern states. The farmers are being urged to reduce the supply of cotton in order to maintain the price.

A Long War, Gentlemen

The great companies have not yet capitulated on the European campaign. They are still holding their own and the soldiers are fighting bravely. Although the war is long, we must continue to support our country. The Union is stronger than ever and the soldiers are determined to maintain their position.

We are facing a long and difficult war. We must continue to support our country and the soldiers. The Union is stronger than ever and we must hold the line.

Modern Geography

A plain is a level section of land, usually having a gentle slope, that is not subject to flooding. Plains are characterized by a lack of significant terrain features and are often covered with grasses or other vegetation.

A river is a narrow stream of water that flows along a well-defined channel. Rivers are important features in the landscape, as they transport water and sediment to the ocean, and support a variety of life forms.

Modern Fashion Notes

The shift to more casual and comfortable clothing has been a trend in recent years. Denim and casual wear have become staples of many wardrobes. The rise of streetwear has also influenced fashion, with brands like Supreme and Nike gaining popularity.

The government has made a mistake in the treatment of the tobacco industry. It has put too much faith in the promises of the tobacco growers and has neglected to take into account the interests of the consumers. The government should have been more cautious in its handling of this situation.

The government has also failed to take adequate steps to protect the interests of the workers in the tobacco industry. The workers have been left without adequate representation and have had to rely on the government to protect their rights. This is a serious problem that must be addressed.

In conclusion, the government needs to take a more active role in protecting the interests of the people and ensuring that their rights are protected. It must also be more transparent in its dealings with the tobacco industry and ensure that the interests of the consumers are taken into account.
