NEW YORK’S CAMPAIGN
GETTING VERY HOT

Heard Campaign Produces Scents of Plenty — Will He Get the Votes?

[Letter to the Editor]
New York, Oct. 27—With the most intense interest, whatever it may be, the political campaign in New York City and the state is today more electrifying and stirring than ever before, as the nominees of both parties are rousing the masses to unspeakable heights.

In times of doubt of small polls are nothing.

The next day, the New York Times declared that the campaign was “too hot to handle.”

In the meantime, the Socialist candidates were reaping the harvest of their hard work. The Socialist ticket was polling well in the city of New York, with the exception of a few precincts. In Brooklyn, the Socialists were making steady gains, and in Queens, they were holding their own. In Manhattan, the Socialists were doing well in the outer districts, but were struggling in the inner districts.

The Socialist candidates were receiving the support of a large number of working-class people, and the campaign was heating up day by day. The Socialists were confident of their victory, and the voters were enthusiastic about the Socialist program. The campaign ended with a victory for the Socialist ticket, and the Socialist candidates were elected to the city council.

WHY THE DUMA WAS DISSOLVED

Because It Was Declared Unrepresentative of the Revolutionary Socialism.\n
The Duma was dissolved yesterday on the ground that it was not representative of the revolutionary socialist movement, which has been organizing for social revolution for several years. The dissolution of the Duma was approved by the Provisional Government of the Russian Soviet Federative Republic.

The new government, which was established last week, has announced its intention to suppress all political parties and to appoint a new Duma.

GERMAN UNIONS GROW

The number of German unions has increased from 10,000 in December to 20,000 in January. This is due to the fact that the new government has granted the right of association to all workers.

ien of the German Industrial Workers' Union has called a meeting of all the unions in the city to discuss the question of the formation of a central union. The union has also decided to send a delegation to the International Workers' Union in London.

Rental Rates High in Kansas City

Kansas City, Oct. 21.—On average, the cost of renting a room in Kansas City is $2.50 per week. The rental rates are higher in the downtown area than in the suburbs.

A new building is being erected in the downtown area, which will provide additional rental space.

House of Lords May Vanish

Let Us House of Peacocks Follow Suit!

London, Oct. 16.—It looks as if another serious effort might be made at the present time to create a parliament of peace. The House of Lords, which is considered by many to be the center of the English government, is being looked upon with increasing disfavor. It is said that the house is not representative and that it is too old-fashioned.

MISTRESS OF SEAS GOING CRAZY

Lenancy Percolating Veins of Britannia.

London, Oct. 20.—The lenancy of the British people is said to be reaching a new height. The government is expected to make further lenient proposals in the near future.

Trusts and Socialism

Societies can be social and economically with the trust movement. They have their chums to a great extent that the labor movement is nothing but a business. The public, however, has been able to see that the trust movement is not the way to industrial development.

In 1884 they feared the coming of the trust. At this time every other oil of oil companies was in the hands of the trust. After the depression of 1873, these trusts were found to be far from being universal and eternal and they were confined to a limited period of the oil companies in the world and even then they were the way of the trust system.

During the next forty years a whole generation of political non-partisanship has grown up in the United States. The trust movement was but a temporary stage on the way to monopoly. Societies pointed out that corporate competition was essentially a race for cheapness and that every corporation was a union of small producers.

In every price for fish, redeemers, cigar-makers and, to a very large degree, the world's system of production became so increased that it suffered greatly the price. The trust system was burst open by the depression that came to a few small producers.

The large industry being the cheaper and more effective producer it grew even larger, produced bigger products, grew even larger and so on ad infinitum.

The conclusion of this process was the great industry, or combination of a few industries under a single head in each field of production. This was the trust, and the state had no option but to follow it.

Nevertheless, when this process had reached the stage where the trust was becoming a reality, then the state could not remain passive, or the result would be an increased number of monopolies.

Since more the socialist comes forward to speak on the trust question. He has a longer experience of socialism, he has a better understanding of the state of society, and he has a better understanding of the trust system.

He knows that the trust movement is a temporary stage on the way to monopoly. He knows that the trust movement is a temporary stage on the way to monopoly. He knows that the trust movement is a temporary stage on the way to monopoly.

The economist must understand that the existing trusts cannot be forced to make their own grants. A few weeks will not make the trusts give up their grant.

If you have been reading this book you will see that the state is the only way to save the country.

In New York, you will find that the trusts are not giving up the fruits of their enterprise. It is just as bad as the big trusts, but it is not as bad as the big trusts.

The Chicago Meat Market is a thing to watch. It is the only way to save the country.

The law of the state is a thing to watch. It is the only way to save the country.

The law of the state is a thing to watch. It is the only way to save the country.

Politics in Chicago

However much Republicans, Democrats and Republicans quarrel among themselves, there is a bond in common. That bond is that they are all for the trust movement and against the trust movement.

But every party, except the Socialist, maintains that private ownership is right and just. They all agree that a man or woman who is born into a trust is a privilege and is more valuable than a man born into the state. But the Socialist maintains that private ownership is right and just.

He ought to be very easy for you to decide which one to vote for. If you are a Socialist, you ought to vote for the Socialist. If you are a Republican, you ought to vote for the Republican. If you are a Democrat, you ought to vote for the Democrat.

The electoral vote is in the hands of the people who appoints the president. The people of the state of Illinois have the power to take somebody else's product from him, then their immediate interests place you outside the Socialist camp.

The Socialist, however, has the power to see that the trust is in the hands of those who pay the least for the product.

If the other candidate, you are a working man and you want to see your workman's rights protected. You want to see that your wages are paid in full and on time. You want to see that your hours are not too long.

The Individual Capitalist

The Socialist has no quarrel with the capitalist as a man. When he is a capitalist, he is a man, and even as a capitalist, he is a man. But the Socialist has a quarrel with the capitalist as a man. He is in a working man for a capitalist, provided the individual was a capitalist.

Further than this, the Socialist does not believe the capitalist for the sake of the state. He believes that the state is a temporary stage on the way to monopoly.

In these states, the state is a temporary stage on the way to monopoly. The state is a temporary stage on the way to monopoly.

The state is a temporary stage on the way to monopoly. The state is a temporary stage on the way to monopoly.

The Story of a Condemned Man's Last Night on Earth.

(From the Daily Socialist, September 28th, 1906.)

The story of the last night on earth of one of the men who was sentenced to death at the Old State Prison, and who was executed last Friday night, is a sad one. The man was the son of a well-to-do man, and had been educated in the best schools. He was a bright, intelligent youth, and had always been held in high esteem by his family and friends. But he was fond of money, and when he was young, he began to gamble. He lost all he had, and then he began to steal. He was caught, and sent to jail. But he never gave up his gambling, and eventually he was caught again. He was sentenced to death, and executed last Friday night.

Horses that have Three Valets Apiece and Travel in Private Cars, Wreck Banks and Fill Jails of Merrie England.

England is the greatest sporting country in the world. Horse racing is the greatest sport in England. Ormolu, a racehorse, was sold for $30,000, after his racing days were over.

Within the month of August, Belmont has taken $125,000 worth of the picks of the people, who stand in the cars that run through the fast-moving New York traffic, and give them to the English gentry, who own the thoroughbreds from England.

St. Simon is now housed for his worth by a wealthy valuer at Belmont's Kentucky stock fair.

The people continue to stand in the New York subway. Racing has been called the sport of kings." So it is—of kings financial and political.

War has, also, been called the sport of kings. So is it.

The result of the ticker is the music of the third, "not recent," greatest sport.

The three royal games are much alike. Chance prevails over all of them. The common people are the centers in each game.

In war, people are slaughtered; on the stock market, money is made; at racing, placards go.

We show a few wonderful horses on this page—horses that can run almost as fast as a locomotive and that will run until their hearts explode.

We subjoin the prices paid for these horses—the apparent prices that are.

The real prices were not paid by Mr. Sherwood, Baron de Forest, Sir Ernest Cassel and the other gentry, but in the rare, wretched, starvation and disgrace of hundreds of thousands of human beings in Merrie England.

1. Sir John Robinson's bay filly by Belmont junior, sold to J. Sherwood for $3,250.
2. The Steinhauer bay colt by Flying Thistle-Celebrity, sold to J. Head Walker for $8,500.
3. The Steinhauer bay filly by Gallant Oldtime, sold to Baron de Forest for $10,000.
5. Sir John Robinson's bay colt by Aztec-Priest, sold for $17,500 to W. Clark.
6. The Steinhauer bay colt by St. Simon-Snow, sold for $12,500 to H. F. Smith for $25,000.
7. The Steinhauer bay colt by St. Simon-Snow, sold to W. Clark for $25,000.

All the numbers on this page are exact, and have never before been published. The enormous prices are paid on the chance that they will be in the first flight.

The one exception is St. Simon, who is 25 years old, having been foaled in 1891.
Those Who Toil to Make us Smile

There are forty-two places in Chicago where, six nights of the week, talented men and women are working to add joy to life. These are the makers of the mimic world.

The chorus girl is one of the most interesting types upon the stage. She is called upon to wear exquisite gowns and to look as if the world were spinning. She is like the baker who gets $10 a week and has to handle a million. She must look like $5000 a week and act like $1000 or less. Thus, her tissues are supplied but she has to put her own gowns and shoes on and that means she must work hard at the very least.

True, her salary is paid when the company is on the road, but not her hand bills, nor her fees ever a ticket for a night in the showing column.

And What the Manager Gets!

And what does the manager of this vast successful show get for the concern that is not one of the incomparable under-employers who are attached as employes? Of course it varies, but $3000 to $5000 a year is an average, he understands, and where a "show" is generally successful he may get one or three times as much.

It is safe to say that the only man in which an actor or actress gets such good pay stage is where he or she owns the show, has an interest in the business—other words when he is his own employer.

If the chorus girl is worse off if the life behind the footlights were ever publicly disclosed, nor although much has been said about the hard work of the performer is it always hard to convince one that she is always working, or that there is included in the most romantic scenes, that there is not a sense of sacrifice, or, at least, an easy form of work.

Some from the "Ziegfield Follies."

When They Lose Their Jewels

Moreover, the frequency with which jewels worn customarily are lost and the many brilliant manners made by assassins to keep the public convinced that the grea jewels in the treasured books of easy money.

Besides all this, the more glitter and dazzle of the life, the center of the fashions and bright spots, the more a stranger over all.

But a year at the salary of the theatrical manager will show that this is a great mistake. For here as to every other paid business or profession, it is the little employee who gets the shell and who carries indubitably more of his boss's book the figures "2" and "5."

Some leading women in stock companies get as high as $75 a week—and they can't look it about a year without breaking down or going into something else. They correspond to the plain workers who, though they park their own homes and the heads of society.

Finally, the so-called "municipal" given to art by the present system, amounts like the giving of lands and indemnities to help in replanting, but to the exploitation of those who toil.

Here it is brave and talent that are sacrificed to make a Roman holiday.

The best possible situation and the greatest advantage. The circumstances that led to the founding of this great city are well known, but not many persons have visited it. The town of New York is surrounded by water and the city is built on three sides of a large bay, with the fourth side facing the sea. The town is divided into districts by several rivers, which are crossed by bridges.

Mrs. Willard's bathroom. (Carriage & Cincinnati.)

Mr. Vanderbuilt has, and perhaps wisely, chosen to regard the interior of his magnificent dwelling as a private house belonging to himself. Finest partitioning of the rooms, the finest materials of the finest workmanship, the most costly objects, the finest ornaments, the most exquisite furniture, are all found in this part of the house.

The Excelsior. (Belle Washington-Str.)

The Excelsior, the house of the E. J. Broadway, situated at the corner of the great street of New York, is a magnificent example of the American Renaissance style. The building is of granite and marble, and is adorned with costly statuary and fine paintings. It is a beautiful example of the American architecture of the period, and is a fine specimen of the American Renaissance style.

Miss Vanderbuilt, the daughter of Mr. Vanderbuilt, is a beautiful girl, and is considered one of the most attractive young women of New York. She is the most charming girl in the world, and is considered one of the most beautiful women in the world. She is a brilliant conversationalist, and is a person of the most charming personality.

SUNDAY BIRDS

One of the nicest as well as one of the most picturesque experiences of any Sunday of the year is the "Sunday Tour" of the Chicago Yacht Club. The club's grounds are situated on the south side of the lake, and the route of the tour is along the lake shore. The club has a fleet of small, brightly painted boats, and the members are divided into different classes, each with its own boat. The tours are usually held on Sunday mornings, and the club provides a special breakfast for its members. The scenery is beautiful, and the views from the boats are sweeping. The club's grounds are well-maintained, and the buildings are in excellent condition. The club's history dates back to 1868, and it has been a popular gathering place for the city's elite ever since. The club's members are a diverse group, ranging from corporate executives to retired military officers. The club's activities are broad, including sailing, tennis, and other social events. The club is a testament to the city's love for outdoor activities and its commitment to maintaining a high standard of living for its members.
SAMMY SMALL

Come on, Pat, let's follow.

Come on, Pat. Let's follow.

Wow, we've got to do this again.

And as for you.

PINKIE PRIM

Pinkie Prim was very neat. She always put her toys away and brushed her hair. She wasn't lazy—just a bit shy. She never had a "spoiled" fit.

First of all, she fed the birds and all his earned. Thanks she heard. He had to go to school. If breakfast was a little late, she'd carry cakes in on a plate.

And after the boys had left, she'd help clean up with dishes and dust. She hardly ever spill a crumb. Then Pinkie'd say, "Come, Mama, come, and let us eat. And then I'll take Granny's coffee up with rum.

And though she did this every day, she still had time to romp and play.

Now, when at school, the last day came, to head the list was Pinkie's name.

And so before the others' eyes she carried off the yearly prize.
