THE RECORDING ANGEL

By EDWIN ARNOLD BRENMHOLTZ

CHAPTER XX

It is the responsibility of the people, you know, to keep the eyes of the world upon the things that are happening. They must watch, they must listen, they must speak, they must act. There are many who think that the world is simply going to take care of itself, that all we have to do is to sit back and let things happen. But this is not so. The world is a place where things happen, and it is up to us to make sure that they happen in a way that is right and just.

The time has come when we must take a stand. The people of this country have been too long content to let the government do as it pleases. They have been too willing to accept the status quo, even when it is wrong. But the time has come when we must stand up and be counted. We must demand that the government do what is right, and we must do it with our voices and our actions.

There is much that needs to be done. The people of this country are suffering, and they are in need of help. They need food and shelter and medical care. They need education and jobs. They need justice and peace. But the government is not doing enough to help them. It is time for us to take matters into our own hands.

We must organize. We must form groups and associations. We must speak out and demand change. We must work together to make our voices heard. Only then can we hope to change the world and make it a better place for all people.

This is our responsibility. It is our duty. It is our calling.

THE END

THE RECORDING ANGEL

By EDWIN ARNOLD BRENMHOLTZ

CHAPTER XXI

It is the responsibility of the people, you know, to keep the eyes of the world upon the things that are happening. They must watch, they must listen, they must speak, they must act. There are many who think that the world is simply going to take care of itself, that all we have to do is to sit back and let things happen. But this is not so. The world is a place where things happen, and it is up to us to make sure that they happen in a way that is right and just.

The time has come when we must take a stand. The people of this country have been too long content to let the government do as it pleases. They have been too willing to accept the status quo, even when it is wrong. But the time has come when we must stand up and be counted. We must demand that the government do what is right, and we must do it with our voices and our actions.

There is much that needs to be done. The people of this country are suffering, and they are in need of help. They need food and shelter and medical care. They need education and jobs. They need justice and peace. But the government is not doing enough to help them. It is time for us to take matters into our own hands.

We must organize. We must form groups and associations. We must speak out and demand change. We must work together to make our voices heard. Only then can we hope to change the world and make it a better place for all people.

This is our responsibility. It is our duty. It is our calling.

THE END
Says Duma, Which Demanded Public Ownership, May Be Lost, Not As Radical as Congress.

Dr. Levin, Talks to Russian Refugees.

In his first appearance before American democracy, Dr. Levin, the Russian statesman, said yesterday that it is foolish to believe that in the United States Russia is revolutionizing from the right.

Dr. Levin, who was on the platform at the University of Michigan, had the floor for an hour and a half yesterday afternoon.

"I believe in the American people," Dr. Levin said, "I believe in the young people of America. I believe in the future of America."

The audience was enthusiastic over Dr. Levin's speech.

"We make laws in Russia for drinking," said Dr. Levin, "We have a law that a man may not drink."

Dr. Levin said that it was impossible to make laws for drinking in Russia.

"I do not believe in making laws in Russia for drinking," Dr. Levin said, "I believe in the future of America."

Dr. Levin said that he believed in the future of America.

"We make laws in Russia for drinking," said Dr. Levin, "We have a law that a man may not drink."

Dr. Levin said that it was impossible to make laws for drinking in Russia.

"I do not believe in making laws in Russia for drinking," Dr. Levin said, "I believe in the future of America."

Dr. Levin said that he believed in the future of America.

"We make laws in Russia for drinking," said Dr. Levin, "We have a law that a man may not drink."

Dr. Levin said that it was impossible to make laws for drinking in Russia.

"I do not believe in making laws in Russia for drinking," Dr. Levin said, "I believe in the future of America."

Dr. Levin said that he believed in the future of America.
Laborers and the Church

"Religion is a private matter," reached a German Socialist Congress many years ago, when men were on the march and parties all over the world, from Russia to Germany, from Korea to Brazil, from the United States to the Philippines, were fighting for social, political, and economic reforms. The old idea that religion and politics were two distinct spheres of activity, and that religious beliefs could be retained by an individual for his own private use, was widely accepted by the vast majority of the people.

But is science, religion, or charity, one of a host of other facts that are too important to be ignored, or is it simply a group of facts that are not important enough to be considered?

THE OLD SCRUB WOMAN

by JOSEPHINE CONGER KANAKA

THE UPPER SERVANT

by MATTHEW SIMON

Your text is too long to display in full. If you need help with a specific portion or have any questions, feel free to ask!