LANDLORDS DEFY COVERNMENT... PEASANTS RYUSE TO PLANT

Clear Development of Ca alism Among the Nobility--- They Refus to Obey Law Which Affects Their Interests

(Scripps-McRae Press Association.)

Vienna, April 11 .- Roumanian landlords are openly defying the recent edict of the government, limiting the size of estates and regulating leases to tenants, according to dispatches received from Bucharest, and further disturbances in that country are predicted.

Peasants are refusing to begin the spring cultivation of the land until the new programme is put into effect...

It is feared that this passive resistance to the land owners will soon developed into active warfare again, unless the demands of the peasants

Severe repressive measures resorted to by the government to crush the recent agrarian uprising have caused the landlords to take this stand. It is estimated that during the fighting fully 10,000 peasants were killed and 15,000 arrested. Many of these prisoners have been executed since for the part they took in the uprisings.

Encouraged by the protection afforded them by the government, the land owners have refused absolutely to allow local prefects to modify leases. King Charles is strongly in favor of agrarian reform which will better the conditions of the peasants, but the government or profically berpless against the rich influential landlords.

As the Roumanian parliament is dominated by the landed gentry, there is slight prospect of legislative relief.

former member of congress from New York, also head of the national organization which is seeking the enactment of laws to compel the publication of all political campaign contributions, today discussed President Roosevelt in an authorized interview. He said:

"In parts of the United States remote from the capital, and in foreign countries especially, an impression prevails that there is in Washington a physical and intellectual giant commanding our army and navy, presiding over the administration of justice, giving advice, admonition and reproof to judges, threatening and controlling the great railroad systems, and, in his leisure moments, becoming an arbiter of peace and war and determining the destinate of paties. moments, becoming an arbiter of peace and war and determining the destines of pations

The figures show that since August 1,080 prisoners have been executed, most of them within 48 hours after their arrest, by order of the courts-martial. In pursuing their plan to repay every execution with the murder of one of the cuar's representatives terrorists have killed 1,22 persons. These figures do not take into account innocent bystanders, 2,000 of whom have lost their lives in some of the terrorist statacks.

For the last 10 days there have been no court-martial executions, so far as oan be learned, in accordance with Premier Stolyphn's promise that they would be suspended temporarily while the demand of the duma that they shall coase forever is being considered. The campaign of murder directed by terrorists has also ceased for Le time being. In most of the court-martial cases, however, sentences has only been suspended. CHICAGO DAILY SOCIALIST SALOONS, THEIR PLACE, THEIR FUNCTION, AND THE CAUSE

Milwaukee, Wia, April 11.—The Social Democrats in the Wiscousin legislature have decided to introduce a resolution in that body that will clearly set forth the yiews of the focalists upon the much debated temperance question.

Carl Thompson, Social Democratic representative from Milwaukee, writes upon the question in part:

"Socialists point out that every effort at temperance reform so far offered is fatally defective in that it ignores entirely the economic conditions of the working class. The poor wages, the long hours, unsanitary and physically depressing conditions of the places of employment, the cheap, adulterated food, and, worst of all, the ushealthy, cheeriess, comfortless and frequently disease breeding huts and hovels in.

Election is over. One more experience has been added to the his tory of the labor movement in general, and to the history-of the Socialist movement in particular. Many of our comrades are discouraged, because of our failure to elect some of our candidates, many because we failed to poll a heavy vote.

To what is our failure due?

Organized laborers do not yet understand that they are proletarians, that they are exploited, that they and the capitalist class form two antagonistic camps, two antagonistic worlds in the civilized world, that they have not the backbone to stand for their demands, and fight for the abolition of the conditions against which they continually kick.

True, they strike, and boycott, and spend thousands of dollars to advertise their labels, to keep organizers in the field, to maintain lobbyists at Washington, and at the various state capitols. True, they suffer and sacrifice during strikes. But it is also true that when they can strike effectively, they tell the capitalist class, and its organization—the Citizens' Alliances, and the Employers' Associations -- not to fear them, not to take organized labor in carnest, not to pay attention to their kicks.

Why? Because organized labor is still under the hypnotic influence of tradition and sentiments of revenge. Dunne sent the police to man conformity with that view everything the wagons and to scab on the strikers. Therefore down and out with him. Basse is the man. That Busse, body and soul, belongs in the same class as Dunne, namely, the Citizens' Alliances and the Employers' Associations; that Busse is the choice of these organizations, that he is the choice of the trusts, of the class who live at the expense of the blood sweat and marrow of the bones of the working men, women and children -this organized labor forgot. In their rage for revenge they jump out of the frying-pan into the fire.

Is organized labor in particular, and the working class in general, to $1,752,000. This gives a per capita be blamed for these jumping proclivities?

Socialism and the Socialist Party cannot be thought of separate and apart from the working class. Mo e than that, Socialism and a So- competents the vast majority of us cialist Party cannot proceed the fermation of a working clere. A working class distinct and specific must become an established reality before a Socialist philosophy, such as modern Socialism is, can become the philosophy of the day, before a Socialist Party can be organized to serve as the historic party of the class which is historically destined to emancipate itself from oppression, to elevate itself to the position of rulers and controllers of their own destinies, and to emancipate human society from the ills resulting from economic bondage.

The capitalist age is not the only age of masters and slaves. It is, however, the only age when the class struggle is a direct struggle between the producers of wealth and the master class.

Modern Socialism is based upon this modern struggle. It is not a plan worked out by loving hearts, noble souls and philanthropic individuals, who cannot hear to see misery and suffering, who wish to turn misery into joy, hatred into love, war into peace and good will, without doing any injustice to the "sacred rights" of the master class.

Our great, noble, loving and philanthropic souls fail to look living reality straight in the face, fail to study the forces operating in the development of human society, fail to see that the consequences resulting from the operation of these forces can only be foreseen, but not changed, that these consequences can be changed only when the entire mechanism is changed.

Modern Socialism is a philosophic interpretation of all the forces operating in, and of the consequences resulting from, this operation upon human society. It points out that economic antagonisms give rise to class antagonisms-to social, juridic and political antagonisms; that one cannot be separated from the other; that one is not independent of the other. There is the closest connection between them. They act and react one upon the other. At one time one is the cause, at another time the other is the cause. To turn misery into joy, hatred into love, war into peace, is to remove these antagonisms, is to abolish the "sacred

Not only is modern Socialism not a plan worked out by the Socialist Party, but even the means to abolish the capitalist system, the means to be used by the working class in their struggle for emancipation are not worked out by the Socialist Party, but are found hidden in the forces operating in the capitalist order, before ever a Socialist Party is thought

CAPITALIST MECHANISM CALLS INTO LIFE TO BECOME THE ACTING FORCE OF THE WORKING CLASS.

These means are the class struggle in which the working class must engage long before it becomes conscious of its class interests, of the class war. long before it develops a clear Socialist consciousness, long before it recognizes the necessity of organizing a Socialist Party to fight it's battles politically, as the trades organizations fight their battles eco-

If the working class in Chicago and in the United States jump out of the frying-pan into the fire, if it jumps from Democrat to Republican and vice versa, it does so because it has not come yet to a Socialist consciousness, because it does not understand that every class struggly is a political struggle, because the Socialist Party failed to educate it to become conscious Socialists

For us to become depressed, pessinistic and to any we cannot educate the working class to understand Socialism; it we are coming we are coming Demos is the crowned king! For us to become depressed, pessimistic and to say: "There is no use, we cannot educate the working class will awake," or to say, will take a thousand years, before the working class will awake," or to say, "Never mind, economic conditions, or John D., or the trusts, or a few more strikes will make Socialists of them," is also to jump out of the frying-pan into the fire. Such pessimism or optimism wat not develop Socialist consciousness in the working class; the working class must be

Possibly ha finds our highly intelligent electorate not much changed since he wrote, twenty years ago: "What Dante said of his own city may be said of the cities of America—they are like the sick man who cannot find rest upon his bed, but seeks to ease his pain by turning from side to side."—The American Commonwealth, v. 1, p. 618.

"There can be no good financial system in the world," says Stuyvesant Fish, "unless the people have faith in their banks, their bankers and their securities." Just so. Possibly it was some too-confiding depositor rather than a scholastic genius who discovered that faith is "the evidence of things hoped for and the substance of things not seen." After a sufficient things not seen." After a sufficient number of exemplifications of this defition, a la Stensiand, it is to be hoped the dear, intelligent people will learn that since faith is the great essential of a good financial system, the safest place to repose it is in the state, which is to say, themselves.

The United States is particularly happy in having its officialdom graced by the flustrious name of Bonaparte, borne 5% one who, though in appearance the beau ideal of a cook, is in borne 57 one who, though in appearance the beau ideal of a cook, is in reality our very own attorney general. The blood of the family of the great Corsican may flow here untarnished, but there is certainly a bar sinister on the escutcheon when the mental inheritance is examined. This twentieth century solon of a seventeenth century stock—our metaphor here naturally suggests the verb "to graft," but we refuse to branch in that direction—in a recent address burgeons into this: "Equalky as yiewed by the Socialist is inconsistent with fiberty," to which it might be retorted that liberty as viewed by the chef—beg pardon, chief—of the legal department is inconsistent with menhood, and then he effloresces with a magnificent display of eloquent ignorance and ripened mendacity. We commend this lecture as a fine contribution to the Rooseveltian symposium on "What I don't know about Socialism." Its perusal, however, should be with the aid of a sketch of the author au nafural, as strong desires will arise took now for the cloven hoof and again to asceftain the length of the ears.

Art Notes By Charles H. Fitch

At the Art Museum, corner Adams treet and Michigan avenue, free admission Wednesdays, Saturdays and Sunday afternoons, the Chicago Architectural Club exhibition will continue till April 2L .

In room 25 is a colossal statue of 'Labor" by Biel and Hermant, for a "Labor" by Biel and Hermast, for a panel of the Cook county courthouse. This does not give labor the manly and herote bearing which marks the nobler work of Charles Milligan. The man, though sitting in répose, has seamy veins all over his enormous limbs, and the gorilla-sized paws recall the remark by R. J. C. quoting Charles Darwin's statement that the children of workers are born with larger hands than those of aristocrats. It is a beefy subject, but the brain is sunken and furrowed like that of a man who would not know enough to vote for his class. The courthouse will stand until this type, of workman is looked upon as an excourthouse will stand until this type of workman is looked upon as an ex-tifict species.

In Room 26 the Socialist will amused by a series of grotesques the cornices of buildings at the Un amused by a series of grotesques to the cornices of buildings at the United States Military Academy at West Point. These zanies give warriors just such an idictic and unheroic character as properly belongs to them, and may be regarded as prophetic. In the same room are Kenyon Cox's studies for the Iowa State Capitol, draped figures, accompanied by his studies from the nude for the same objects. As a thorough artist must model from the nude to get his draped figures correct, so a Socialist must go to the materialist conception of history to get his theory of society right. The figures are beautiful especially "Agriculture" and "Art," the latter figure, up-olding a ball of light, being a suitable design for an ideal of "the art preservative of all arts"—Socialistic phthosophy, with its enlightening mission.

In the next rodu, too, is an architectural panel bearing these words, over which I instinctively thought the fiftle: Socilaism:
"To encourage and reward purpose, To effect achievement,
To establish and maintain in order, harmony and excellence."

One feature of the exhibition was the number of designs of great houses, either suitable or with slight change of plan adaptable as collectivist homes. Not one was so specified, but collectivism is in the air, and architectural designers reaching out ambitiously must expand the little individual dwelling into a caravansery of large proportions. Some American trust premoters have such places with forty or fifty sleeping chambers, mostly intended for guests, but ready to be used for a group of "nailies," when Socialism shall incline people to flock together with less of proprietary jealousy, and more cordiality.

A Lesson for Woman Suffragists

American woman suffragists have been working for nearly half a entury to obtain the vote. Up to the present time they have succeeded in getting the vote in a few western states and a limited suffrage here and there, which is usually so "limited" that few of them consider that it is worth while to exercise the right.

In England they have been storming the house of parliament, getting into jail, creating riots and disturbing things in general, and have achieved almost nothing except a lot of notoriety.

The women of Finland took a more effective course. They had use enough to realize that the fight for political freedom for women The hotel thief who robbed Boss Cox was but a part of the great struggle of the working class for economic

> They east in their lot with the revolutionary movement of the working class, and lent their aid to the only political party in the world that makes woman suffrage a part of its platform—the Socialist Party.

> The Socialist Party does not do this, or anything else, to get votes. It demands woman suffrage, just as it demands other measures, as a part of a systematic movement to secure the economic freedom of the wage-

They have not only gained the right to vote; they have shownwhich is much more important-that they know how to use their ballots in the defense of their own interests, and those of their families and

The suffragists of the United States and of the world may well take a lesson from their Finnish sisters.

HERE IT IS AGAIN

A dear old lady who could never bear to speak evil of any one is said to have remarked concerning Satan: "Well, at least we must admire his persistency."

It is with much the same feeling that one hears that the Civic Federation is going to hold another "Trust Conference" in Chicago.

Next to their imbecility, the persistency of the Civic Federation's conference habit" is its most distinctive characteristic.

Well, Ralph M. Easley must make a bluff at earning his salary some way, and he pertainly made a first-class fizzle the last time he tried to 'confer" in Chicago.

We shall watch with a little interest, not very much, to see how many easy marks he will pick out of the ranks of "Labor" in Chicago to use as puppets for his coming show.

What can I know about business when I don't know enough to vote? An automobile? Yes, I have one, but how call a woman who doesn't know enough to vote be expected to be an automobile? stockings are nearly always washed in the bathroom basin by the girls themselves.

And how can she cover it all even on her poor little $8. And so for six and five—it can't be done.

What is the result? The occasional scandal of the death of a working girl from a crimbal operation tells the result of the low wage. Unfortunately only a very insignificant per cent of these crimes get late the papers, and when they do they are shut up as quickly as possible. But—they are enough to prove what is going on behind this monstrous system of underpaid labor for women.

Some day when our women reformers awaken to the real facts underlying all these evils they will begin a crusade that will vipe out the causes and the possibilities of further degradation of young womanhood. We are only hoping that this time will come in our own generation.
