

FRISCO IN THROES OF BIG BATTLE

Strikes, Troops, and Graft Currents Form a Combination That San Francisco Is Feeling Sharply

San Francisco, May 7.—Organized labor for years the dominant factor in local affairs, economic and political, faces its greatest battle, according to indications.

The street car lines are tied up completely by a strike. The workers are demanding a straight $3 a day wage and an eight-hour day.

The employer, led by the car company, whose officers are under graft clouds, are prepared to fight the strike to the bitter end.

Will Run Cars Tuesday? President Callahan of the United Railroads, in a statement issued just before midnight, announced that he would begin running cars Tuesday.

There has been no disorder of any sort so far, but serious trouble is feared when an attempt is made to operate the cars.

Troops Disorganized. State troops are in a distressing state of disorganization, owing largely to the power of unions, and the ranks of the regulars are being depleted.

The governor has promised that all the troops in the state are at the service of the city should the police force refuse or fail to keep order.

Officers of the United Railroads have an understanding with the governor and last night received a promise that they could count on the police force.

There are 9,000 men in the steel trades in San Francisco now on strike for eight hours. The Metal Trades Association, standing strongly against the power of organized labor, has closed its doors indefinitely.

More Light on Bribery. The grand jury has secured a complete story of the bribery by which the United Railroads secured a trolley franchise, according to Assistant District Attorney Henry Patrick Callahan.

NEW COMMISSION SETS UP WORK

After Members Are Sworn In Mayor Busse Thanks Them; No Under-standings as to Appointments

The new civil service commission was sworn into office yesterday at the city hall. The members are Elton Lower, formerly a reporter on the News and Post, later for five years in the employ of the county's civil service work.

One of the interesting features of the institution of the new board was the appearance of Mayor Busse, who shook hands with the members and thanked them for their acceptance of his appointment, which, he said, had not been asked of them.

The retiring board was composed of Prentiss, Wenter and Powell.

Mo' Desecrates Churches and Maltreats Christians—English Dominion Trembles in Balance

(Scripps-McRae Press Association.) Lahore, India, May 7.—The natives' unrest has reached a point where it menaces the English rule throughout India.

It is rapidly assuming an anti-Christian aspect. Anglo-Indians are very apprehensive and the situation is declared to be the most serious since the "mutiny."

At Pindi the mob desecrated churches and attacked an American mission church. A hall was burned and native Christians were maltreated and beaten.

(Comment.—The uprising appears to have an economic basis. Exploited members of the working class are rebelling blindly against their wrongs.)

NEW IDEAS FOR 5-CENT THEATERS

One of the five-cent theaters, just opened at 5235 Halsted street, offers new ideas in ventilation and fire-proofing.

The screen is made of sheet iron, with an opening of about four inches all around it. Back of the screen are two windows and a door with a transom, through which the fresh air passes to two openings in the front of the building, and vice versa.

PRIVATE OWNERSHIP GIVES WAY TO M. O.

Why Was Not Haywood Tried Long Ago?

Clarence Darrow, of counsel for the defense, gave the following statement on the delay:

Darrow. "The defendants have not only been ready for trial but have insisted on trial all the time since the indictments were returned fourteen months ago."

Every motion for committment has been made by the state and resisted by us. After the men were brought to Idaho writs of habeas corpus were asked in the state court and the federal court to cover any question of jurisdiction that might arise.

The United States statutes provide that where an appeal is pending to the supreme court of the United States no habeas corpus or writ of habeas corpus can be carried out pending that appeal.

James H. Hawley, of counsel for the prosecution of Haywood, gave the following explanation of the cause of delay in trying the mine worker:

Hawley. "The revised statutes of the United States treating of appeals to the United States supreme court in habeas corpus, where a prisoner is held by state courts, make null and void any action of the state pending an appeal."

States treating of appeals to the United States supreme court in habeas corpus, where a prisoner is held by state courts, make null and void any action of the state pending an appeal.

It will be seen, therefore, that if in May, 1906, we had proceeded with the trial in the trial court of this state before the decision of the supreme court had been rendered, the defendants would have been discharged, as they could not a second time be put in jeopardy of their lives.

Attorneys Refuse to Act. "The attorneys for the defendants answered our letter, declining to dismiss the appeal and expressing themselves as fearful that a question of jurisdiction might arise upon the proceedings of the supreme court of this state which would be injurious to them if the appeal from the United States circuit court was dismissed."

LOBBY AMOUNTS TO NOTHING

Federation Hears That Prayers to Corporation Solons Are Useless; Don't Ride on South Side "L"

All hope of ever attaining legislation favorable to the working class while the "powers that be" control the government was given up by the Chicago Federation of Labor yesterday, when L. P. Smith, a member of the legislative committee, openly declared that there is no use in wasting any more money in maintaining lobbies in Springfield and that he for one resigns from the legislative committee.

Smith said that his resignation does not mean that he "lays down" on the work, but that there is no sense in a labor body attempting to compete with corporations when it comes to "buying off" legislators.

Secretary Hopp declared that "there is no use in rapping the legislature and leaving the powers that be alone. One goes down to the legislature and asks for 'skunks' and makes a deal and should be recognized and dealt with as such."

Smith reported that with the exception of one or two bills every labor bill is dead and buried.

Corporations Get Theirs. "The corporations can get anything they want in Springfield by merely asking for it," he said. "The legislators' hands are ready to listen to their master's voice. Labor cannot get a thing except by permission of the corporations. Unless some method is found to whip the 'cusses' into line the outlook for labor down in Springfield now or at any other time is decidedly gloomy."

The methods employed by the legislators to kill the bills and yet to retain the friendship of labor, as related by the delegate, are interesting. The so-called representatives to the legislature stand for "something" and all stand for "nothing."

Legislators take up one bill and work for its passage, opposing at the same time all the other bills. Thus each of the legislators stands for "something" and all stand for "nothing."

The result is, of course, that all the bills are killed and each legislator has the excuse of "having done his best for this and that bill."

Aroused Federation. While the probable defeat of all labor bills at Springfield was expected by all labor leaders for some time, Smith's open attack on the legislature aroused the members of the federation to the highest pitch.

President Fitzpatrick openly attacked Representative Fieldstock, who is posing as the friend and representative of labor.

Fitzpatrick declared that he never was labor's representative, nor was he taken as such, and that he was never a member of a bona fide labor organization.

Chief Factory Inspector Davies appeared before the federation and also had it in for the legislature. He pleaded that each labor man write to his representative to get the bill safeguarding dangerous machinery passed.

Haywood's Counsel Pleads for a Specific Bill

(Scripps-McRae Press Association.) Boise, Idaho, May 7.—You charge this man with a crime that was manifestly impossible for him to have committed, and you refuse to indicate how you think he could have done it.

Stone of Caldwell and O. M. Van Dyrn were fighting it bitterly. It was plain from the start that nothing is to be left undone on either side to gain the technical or strategic advantage that may mean eventual victory.

The weather is sultry and hot in Boise and the populace surprisingly apathetic, so the audience that participated in this, the initial legal skirmish, was composed principally of attorneys and newspaper men.

Proceedings Technical. The trial of William D. Haywood, secretary; Charles H. Moyer, president; and George A. Pettibone, executive committee member, of the Western Federation of Miners, was on.

Fourteen new unions have affiliated with the Minnesota State Federation of Labor since the first of the year. Many members of the United Association of Plumbers, Gas Fitters and Sheet Metal Workers are urging that the organization establish a home for the aged and infirm.

Charles M. Schwab wants 3,000 boys to come to his Bethlehem steel works prepared to learn and become experts in the steel and iron trade.

Striking carders of the J. & P. Coates Threading Company, La Grange, Ill., by a unanimous vote decided to remain on strike until the company agrees to their terms.

Richard S. Lawrence, a former member of the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers' Union in Denver, has sued that organization for $500 damages for interference with his business and preventing him from securing work at his trade.

Henry T. Scollin, representative of the United Hatters of America, and one of the best-known labor leaders in the United States, denounces President Roosevelt's attack on Moyer and Haywood as unfair.

DEFENSE OUTLINES SUITS CAMPAIGN

Indicted Former Officials Assured That They Will Not See Prison Walls. No jail looms before the startled vision of Dunne men indicted for unusual and pernicious political activity in the campaign.

This is the substance of assurances given them by counsel. What makes the situation look more encouraging to the accused is the statement that expects the defense, and this means that there will be weight of semi-official dignity and a semblance of authority for past acts back of the fight in behalf of the indicted ones.

The indictments are based on a false construction of the law. Chief Collins only required work or contributions from policemen of Mayor Dunne's political faith.

There was no precedent in Illinois law for such action. It was a... and Borah interposed the further objection that the present is not a civil action.

While all this furor over what the defense shall be, there does not seem to be anything along that line for Patrolmen James McGrath and Patrick J. McNulty, indicted for conspiracy to receive bribes from saloonkeepers in their district.

May-Day in Montreal Like a Leaf from French History

Good-Natured Illinois Agitator Runs Afoul of Romantic French Nervousness and Wins Out

By A. KLENKE
I left Buffalo last Tuesday for Montreal, Canada, at the invitation of Local Montreal to deliver the May Day oration of that city. At Batavia I met Joel Moses of Rochester and enjoyed a chat with him on the conditions of our movement in general. At Rochester he left me and I settled down for an all night's ride. Wednesday morning as the train approached Montreal I secured a paper and found a two-column article headed "No Socialist Parade."

Church Objects. The committee had leased the Monument National, the largest hall in the city, but the lease had been canceled as the hall is owned by the Catholics, who would not allow the Socialists the use of the hall. At 10 o'clock I arrived at Montreal and was met by Reich, who knew me, and he at once overhauled me with a lot of newspaper clippings, one of which contained a letter of Archbishop Bruchesi of Montreal to his flock, warning them against the Socialists and not to attend their May Day meeting.

Another clipping told of a debate between the Socialists and students of Laval University, a Catholic institution. Another clipping told of an alderman by the name of Martin; that he had received a letter of mourning containing a newspaper clipping with red ink smear around and a paper dagger, which brought forth a motion for the mayor to appoint a bodyguard for the alderman in question, but the mayor presented Martin with an old shooting iron about two feet long to protect himself against the Socialists.

The Old and the New. In front of the speakers' stand stood the Italian Socialist band; to the left the Italian carpenters and joiners and other union organizations who acted as a buffer against the Laval students who occupied the extreme left. On the right stood the Jewish organizations, while behind the stand stood the valiant Poles to see that no rear attack would take place.

Arrests Made. Several arrests were made at Champ de Mars, but they were Socialists or not, no men were rearrested, and six lawyers offered their assistance to get them out of their cases without charge. Thirty thousand people on Champ de Mars listened attentively to an exposition of Socialism for two hours in Montreal, dominated by the Catholic clergy, who took every pains to prevent the demonstration and advised their adherents to stay away, it is indeed a work of which the Socialists of Montreal can be proud, and the memory of this demonstration will linger long in the minds and spur them on in their work for the cause of Socialism and the French people to have had the opportunity of participating in this grand work.

New Orleans Man Points Out a Clause Which He Declares Will Solve Railroad Problem

(Special to Chicago Daily Socialist.) Washington, D. C., May 7.—It develops that an interesting little development on the subject of the regulation of roads has been going on for some time between President Roosevelt and E. H. Farrar of New Orleans. Farrar has been given an audience by the president to publish excerpts of a letter written about a month ago, in which the New Orleans man points out that paragraph 7 of section 1 of the constitution of the United States "gives congress power to establish postoffices and post-roads."

The Hustlers' Column

Words From the Field at Home and Abroad

Yesterday broke all records since the establishment of the paper in the number of letters received containing subscriptions. From every corner of the country they came, in bunches of two and three, and sometimes five or six, but seldom larger. That is the very best possible way for subscriptions to come. It is not the two or three big clubs, but the host of little ones that piles up the list in every Socialist newspaper office.

Boise in the Limelight But Not a Bit Nervous

Guns All Concealed—Natives Go About Their Business as Blase as a New Yorker in the Nickel-Plush Hotel

By CLARENCE DARROW. Boise, Idaho, May 7.—The little city of Boise seems to be entirely unaware of its prominence in the world. The outsider who dropped into this city after crossing the prairies and the plains might imagine by the signs on a New England Congressional town on a Sunday morning. No one seems excited. The people go about their business as if there was nothing new or nothing old that could possibly affect their lives. The stories of excitement and danger and assassination that have been put out through the country seem to be entirely born of the imagination of the newspaper man.

Roosevelt's Explanation

Finding himself in a tight box the President has dug still deeper into trouble by a third letter on the Idaho affair.

As before he takes refuge in innuendo and slurs, and talks about the "intemperate violence with which the socialist or labor papers like that of Debs" have treated the case.

He speaks of "murderous and treasonable language such as that quoted from Debs," but omits that portion of his letter to which he refers containing this quotation, knowing full well that to give it would be to stamp him publicly as the liar he is.

On this page is reproduced one of Debs' articles on this matter. It was published over a year ago, at the time when according to Roosevelt, Debs was urging violence.

Roosevelt has at last been forced into making at least one positive statement. He says that if anyone can submit to him "any evidence showing that there has been a miscarriage of justice for or against Moyer or Haywood which you believe it is in my power to remedy I will at once bring such evidence to the attention of the attorney-general to have him give it the fullest consideration, if any, as it may be in the power of the federal authorities to take."

All right. Here is the evidence. One Theodore Roosevelt, did make a speech on or about one year ago in which he referred to these men as murderers, thus taking advantage of his high office to prejudice the trial of men whom the law which he had sworn to support presupposes to be innocent.

Second, Same Theodore Roosevelt, according to the statement of the Washington Post, did show a letter which said Roosevelt had written to one Harriman, with whom said Roosevelt was at that time in very close association, in which these men were designated as "undesirable citizens," to the judges of the Supreme Court of the United States, who at that time had under consideration a case affecting Moyer and Haywood.

It would be easy to add almost indefinitely to the evidence on the point mentioned by the President, but since these two instances are specifically known to him, and since the evidence concerning these acts can be gathered with but very little expense by the federal authorities, we shall wait until such evidence is called to the attention of the attorney general and he proceeds to act upon it.

WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO DO ABOUT IT, TEDDY? Of course we know, and you know, and everyone whom your press agent activity has not hypnotized knows that you will do the same about this that you have done about trust-busting, and punishing land-thieves, and that is TALK, TALK, TALK.

A Provincial Paper Property Pilloried

Letters to the Lewiston, Me., Journal, which that fair and impartial(?) organ of capitalism refused to publish.

Inasmuch as the Journal has published in full President Roosevelt's letter to the chairman of the Cook County Moyer-Haywood conference and commented thereon editorially, perhaps a few words from one interested reader may be permitted.

Charles H. Moyer and William D. Haywood, officers of the Western Federation of Miners, have now been imprisoned more than a year, charged with complicity in the murder of ex-

So far as President Roosevelt's references to the accused are responsible for the excitement concerning this case it must be said that the protests of the various unions are entirely justified.

Neither Moyer, Haywood nor Pettibone have yet been proved guilty. There is not even a moral certainty that they are guilty, a great many of the subscribers firmly believe that they are guilty, but that does not warrant their condemnation by the president or by any one else prior to their conviction.

Who Incited to Violence?

Roosevelt has aimed his enunciation specifically at Eugene V. Debs, declaring that Debs has been inciting to violence in connection with the Haywood and Moyer affair.

It will be incidentally noted that the quotation from Roosevelt's speech proves the president to have been a liar when in his recent letter to the Chicago Moyer-Haywood conference he denied ever having expressed any opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the accused men.

Dear Mr. President: The address delivered by you yesterday at the cornerstone ceremony at Washington has been carefully read, and among other things I observe the following:

"We can no more and no less afford to condone evil in a man of capital than we can in a man of no capital."

The wealthy man who exults because there is a failure of justice in the effort to bring some trust magnate to an account for his misdeeds is as bad, and no worse than, the so-called labor leader who clamorously strives to excite a foul class feeling on behalf of some other labor leader who is implicated in murder."

Obviously you have reference in this paragraph to the leaders of labor in Colorado who were recently seized without warrant of law, forcibly taken from the state of which they are citizens, and incarcerated in the penitentiary of another state in which only convicted criminals are confined.

I know of no other labor leaders to whom these remarks could apply, and it seems equally plain that I am one of the so-called "leaders," if not the particular one, who is "striving to excite a foul class feeling in their behalf."

Permit me to ask you, Mr. President, how you know that these men are implicated in murder? Have they been tried and found guilty by due process of law?

Since when, Mr. President, are men charged with crime presumed and pronounced guilty until they are found innocent?

It is true that you do not name these men, but convict them by innuendo. Is this fair? Is it just? A square deal? Is it not, in fact, Mr. President, cowardly to take such an advantage of your high office to pronounce the guilt of three of your fellow-citizens, who have as yet not been tried and against whom nothing has been proved?

These men, Mr. President, are workmen; do you know of any capitalists who have ever been treated in the same way?

Suppose a lot of thugs were to seize a number of capitalists at the hour of midnight, put them in irons, hustle them aboard a special train, rush them into another state and throw them into the penitentiary, would you take the same view of the case, coolly pronounce their guilt and proceed to deliver your homily upon good citizenship, the "square deal" and law and order?

If instead of Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone it had been Depew, Platt and Paul Morton, that is to say, if instead of innocent workmen they had been criminal capitalists, would you have treated them in precisely the same manner?

You have told us over and over again, Mr. President, that rich and poor should be treated alike; that an are entitled to the equal protection of the law. That is what you say in substance in the paragraph above quoted. You have repeated this so often that it has become a stale platitude. You have also repeatedly stated that profession without practice is dishonest and hypocritical.

Very well, Mr. President, we will take you at your word; we will judge you by your acts.

I shall not now address myself to you as a "so-called" labor leader, but as your fellow-citizen of the United States.

You, Mr. President, are the chief executive of the nation. You are the conservator of the constitution of the United States and you have publicly sworn to support it.

Three citizens have been forcibly seized and deported from the state of their residence into another state in flagrant violation of the constitution of the United States. These men now languish in prison cells.

Let me repeat the charge, Mr. President, without detail. Three citizens of the Republic have been deprived of the protection vouchsafed to them under the Constitution of the United States. This fact is known of all men; denied by none, not even their accusers. There is not a shadow of doubt about it. It means of production became the possession of the FEW. The MANY must work the means of production to live. The FEW must have the work done to increase their possessions. OF INTEREST TO WOMEN Edited by Marie Jayne

The Ordinary Woman

At Jamestown, this year, will be an exhibition of the wonderful improvements, machines, motive power, and so on, which have made it possible to lighten labor and give leisure so much of the day.

The significant fact is that all of them were off having a good time at various winter resorts during a period of great social unrest and stress and storm here at home—at a time when the wise and politic leader, if he has anything to do at all, would be right at his post of duty.

From these interviews we note that California, the Sandwich Islands, the City of Mexico, the Florida coast, Paris, Monte Carlo, the south of France, Italy and the Nile are all favorite haunts of the railway peripatant during the winter season.

So far as the interviews disclose, no one of them is doing anything useful or meritorious this winter. They are just off having a good time. Having watered and rewatered the securities clear up to the neck, and assessed the dividends upon the same as a perpetual charge upon American commerce and trade, they have incomes amounting into the millions to be wasted in idle and voluptuous pleasures—the forenursers of gold, rickets and prostrations.

The views of these men on the present ground-swell are of no particular consequence. But the effete and luxurious pleasure resorts from which these interviews were transmitted give to the incident the profoundest significance.—Burlington Saturday Post.

Elizabeth Robins, Dramatist

"Votes for Women" is the title of a new play that recently appeared in London. The author, Elizabeth Robins, calls it a dramatic production, but says that not the dramatic work, but the political propaganda was the object of her work.

The play is frankly designed to establish the right of women to the franchise. It won not only the audience, but the severest critics of London.

"She has achieved something which we believe has never been even attempted before in the long traditions of the stage. She has not merely used the drama as a means of advancing a political cause. Others have done that from the Greeks down to Gorky, though not so often as one would have expected, considering the irresistible power of the drama.

"But Miss Robins has boldly proclaimed her cause from a public platform to an audience on the stage, and with that audience she has identified the whole theater.

"Miss Robins bases her appeal upon the deepest realities of womanhood, and throughout the play the audience feels the working of a personal intensity of conviction.

"Under the stress of conviction like that a drama cannot be criticised on the lines of ordinary plays, for it rises to a plane among the human forces that slowly move the world."

The wise woman mother will see to it, as far as she is able, in these ways and a thousand others, that home, which is place of rest and the family shall never become a prison.—From "Family Secrets."

For Home Dressmakers

Infants' One-piece Night-Gown. Paris Pattern No. 1209. All Seasons Allowed.

Simplification in the manufacture of infants' wear seems to be the order of the day. This little night-gown which is made on the night-gown principle, the sleeves and shoulders all being in one piece, is a reasonable example of the simplified style in an infant's clothes. Casual, laced or long-sleeved are all available for this night-gown. It is such a simple little model that the home sewer will experience no difficulty in making it.

The pattern is in one size. To make the garment requires 2 1/2 yards of material 27 or more inches wide; 2 3/4 yards of insertion, 2 yards of edging and 3/4 yard of ribbon to trim.

Price of pattern, 10 cents.

All orders for patterns shown in this column should be sent to the Chicago Daily Socialist. Remittance in advance is strictly the product of justice here.

Flying Machines

Now that human flight is an actual fact, demonstrated by Dumont and the Wright brothers in a way calculated to convince even the most skeptical, it will not be out of place to indulge in a little prophesying as to how the flyers of a few years hence will appear and perform.

The problem of flying has from the first been attacked by experimenters along two different lines—soaring flight, in which the sustaining and propelling power is obtained from wind and gravity, and dynamite flight, in which a motor takes the place of the forces of nature.

The first type of machine has been brought to a high state of perfection, but the skill of the aeroplanists is not yet well enough developed to enable us to soar off into the blue.

The motor-driven flyer is a success. Such a machine will have large supporting surfaces and will depend almost entirely on the wind currents for its support in the air. A small and compact motor will be used in riding and when the conditions aloft prohibit soaring. Since it will not depend generally on its motor for support, the stopping of its propeller will merely necessitate its gliding slowly to the ground in a calm, or, if there is a wind, it will soar for a length of time proportionate to the skill of the operator.

Now, a word as to safety. During almost ten years of experimenting with flying machines (gliding and motor) constructed on the truss principle laid down by Mr. Octave Chanute, Messrs. Herring and Avery and the Wright brothers have made thousands of flights, yet neither machines nor operators have suffered mishap in free flight.—L. J. Lesh in Popular Mechanics.

Habits of Rail Kings. That was a fine stroke of enterprise on the part of the Chicago Tribune to procure and print interviews with a dozen railroad presidents, thus apprising the great common herd of the views of these superior beings upon the burning problems of the day.

To us, however, the significant feature to these interviews is not the expressions to which these men gave utterance, but the geographical points from which they were telegraphed and cabled.

The significant fact is that all of them were off having a good time at various winter resorts during a period of great social unrest and stress and storm here at home—at a time when the wise and politic leader, if he has anything to do at all, would be right at his post of duty.

From these interviews we note that California, the Sandwich Islands, the City of Mexico, the Florida coast, Paris, Monte Carlo, the south of France, Italy and the Nile are all favorite haunts of the railway peripatant during the winter season.

Antony in Esperanto

The Roman Politician Mourns Caesar's Death—In University of Chicago.

These classical, alabaster-browed old-thimers who have proclaimed Latin as the immortal, essentially universal language were left with but a single leg to stand on when the greatest dramas of the Roman age were written in English. At an entertainment given by the Esperanto Club of the University of Chicago this week the remaining support was ruthlessly kicked from beneath them by a young man who stepped in, in Esperanto, Marc Antony's oration at the funeral of Caesar.

Some of the language professors would have opened their eyes had he been present. Here was a young man who had presided in Latin for four years, yet could not, under penalty of death, have translated the speech into Latin without much time and continuous reference to books. Had he spoken in Latin his colleagues who had studied the language four years could not have understood him. Yet, relying very obviously upon his memory of the English text, he stood before the audience, transcribing as he went, the words and phrases of Shakespeare with amazing ease, into a language which he had probably studied at odd moments during a few weeks, and his auditors, most of whom had studied the same language, understood him without effort, because he was talking in Esperanto!

"If you have tears, prepare to shed them now!" is good advice to those who regret the disappearance of the last hope of Latin as the universal language. Esperanto is the legitimate, lineal descendant of Latin, but just as much superior to it as a means of getting somewhere as a high-grade automobile is superior to a bullock.

Club of the University of Chicago has a membership of 100. The members are enthusiastic, hopeful young people; and with the unanswerable arguments with which Esperanto
