The Mass Strike in Great Britain Was Unquestionably One of the Greatest Achievements of Organized Labor on the Industrial Field in the History of the Labor Movement.---Max S. Hayes' Lesson for Labor Day, 1911

DAWN OF THE NEW DAY

THERE IS HOPE FOR THE SONS long fight among the Westmoreland hills. But theirs is the narrow outlook. From their valley of shadow they can't see beyond the confines of their own little field. The broader view, the view that takes in all the sweep of the present and past of labor, is anything but discouraging. But the average labor victory of to-day, unlike that of Spartacus, is con-crete, the kind of a victory that the newspapers—some of them at least-will record as such, the kind that his-torians must take into account. And therein lies inspiration and hope. Standing shoulder to shoulder, the workers are waging war with the mas-ters of Capital and Privilege on pretty even terms.

And the true story of that war cau't be suppressed and blotted from history. It is being printed in installments every

The Civic Federation is in sore need of defense. Hough every attempt at defense that I have ever heard r read has been an indictment.

I shall not for one moment deny that John Kirby, resident of the National Association of Manufacturers, as no use for the Civic Federation. There is nothing ypocritical about Kirby, and I would be supremely happy of I found our "labor leaders" with as much stamina

When our "labor leaders" show the same stamina in the interest of labor that Kirby is showing in the interest of capital there will be no need of labor editors spilling ink in defense of persons who have no superiors as union-

The action of the U-lied Mine Workers may be a disgrace in the eyes of some "labor leaders" and hired pencil pushers, but with the thoughtful rank and file it stands as the crowning act of the organization.

It is no disgrace to tear the mask of duplicity from the talk experts who meet periodically around a festive board and enjoy the sparkling nectar that flows from the sunny hills of France.

It is no disgrace to show up a gang that sits in regal splendor, trifling with the questions that affect the life and security of an outraged and oppressed working class.

If it is a disgrace to clarify the labor movement, make the best of iti

If that can be accomplished, then the labor movement If capital and labor can be brought closer together, at is the need of high-priced labor leaders? What is really meant is that capitalists and some labor officials can be brought closer together. In this direction considerable progress has been made.

If the National Civic Federation has brought about a more friendly spirit between capital and labor, why is it that it is impossible to organize the slaves of D. E. Francis, a member of the National Civic Federation?

The St. Louis unions have made attempt after attempt to organize the street car men, but the United Railways company, in which D. R. Francis is a power, will not permit a union man to breathe on the system.

If the Civic Federation has brought about such a friendly spirit between capital and labor, please tell me what Henry Phipps of the United States Steel Corporation and prominent member of the Civic Federation, has done for the slaves of the steel mills?

Why is it that the slaves of the Postal Telegraph-Cable company and Clarence H. Mackay, president of the company and a leading member of the Civic Federation, could not be brought closer together in 1907?

What was the friendly spirit between the employes and this member of the National Civic Federation?

What friendly spirit series between the slaves of the

And Cyrus H. McCormick is first vice-chairman of the welfare department of the National Civic Federation.

There are scores of others whom I might name, stars of the National Civic Federation, whose record is one of smashing organized labor in the face.

Labor has during all the tragic past never accomplished anything except through the most bitter struggls. And I think you will agree with me that the same spirit that moved corporate power against organized labor in the past is not yet extinguished and every apparent act of friendship is masked in hypocrisy.

This the United Mine Workers recognized when they made their position clear so far as the Civic Federation is concerned. And, let me add, that the future will find other organizations in line.

other organizations in line.

Already can there be heard rumblings of revolt in other unions against the false sophistry of "identity of interests" between capital and labor.

The day of fakirism is drawing to a close and what will be demanded in the future will be men, real men, at the head of the labor movement, who are willing to fight, and not beg, for justice.

In 1873 a beach hands union was organized, which cov-cred cabinetmakers, and was known as cred cabinetmakers, and was known as the Furniture Workers' Union. In 1890 the Machine and Wood Workers' International Union was organized. In 1835 the organization was merged with the furniture workers, and this was the beginning of the present Amalgamated Wood Workers' International Union.

At the first convention held after this amalgamation the present label was adopted, which has since been the guarantee of the highest grade of skill in all of the products covered by workers of this organization. A LABOR DAY MESSAGE TO THE TOILERS

BY JOHN J. M'NAMARA, Now in Jail at Los Angeles, Cal.

In the past few days I have received several communications from various labor and progressive publica-tions requesting that I contribute a few lines that would appropriate to Labor Day.

be appropriate to Labor Day.

The first thought that presents itself is that I owe sincer and hearty expression of thanks to the labor occass and to the rank and file of our great industrial army that supports not only our press but supports other sympathisers who upheld organized labor in its aims and aspirations.

I know of ne more appropriate time to extend fraternal greeting to my valiant friends and sympathizers that their efforts in behalf of myself and my brother are appreciated beyond expression. Mere words fail to convey our feelings, ind our friends with have to catch in the thought the inward feelings.

Labor Day—the day set aside for the tollers who produce all wealth and retain non—this holiday is set aside for the workers.

The thought of the day calls before our vision past celebrations, parades and renewed pledges to work honestly and faithfully in the interests of our common cause.

At first blish it would appear that one behind prison has on the coming of labor's holiday would be filled with bitterness, sorrow and despair. There is no bitterness, no despair, because they have not in the past, neither in the future, will efforts to crush down labor be fruitful of any permanent results.

Sorrow there is, of course, but it is because of the separation from relatives, friends, and tried and true companions, the possession of which is greater than all else on earth.

This sorrow is, of course, temporary: fortified by a

This serrow is, of course, temporary; fortified by a clear conscience and, secure in the belief that ultimately right and justice will prevail, we need have no fear of the artificial terrors created by our enemics.

A Labor Day thought is that it should be more than a mere celebration or a backward glance at what has been achieved or left undone. While we profit by past errors we should also look on Labor Day as the starting point for an improved civilization that will eliminate industrial oppression and wrongs.

The soldier of industry has long suffered in silence. Since the American Revolution the loss or fiesh and blood and manhood upon the battlefields of the nation and the attendant evils sink into utter insignificance when compared with similar sacrifices on the industrial field.

and manhood upon the battlefields of the nation and the attendant evils sink into utter insignificance when compared with similar sacrifices on the industrial field.

In spite of the value to the nation of the industrial soldiers their slaughter and oppression has continued year after year; their honors are unsung; no provision is made for their remaining dependants.

The concentration of capital and the practical elimination of competition have so altered the rules of the game whereby we struggle and compete with one another for existence that the industrial conflict is far more destructive than actual warfare.

Against the spirit of greed and avarice there is a genuine spirit of unrest throughout the civilized world, a feeling that no longer is it to be understood that property rights are sacred and that the person of the toiler has no rights that cannot be invaded.

I know of no better time to unfurl the flag of man against mammen than on Labor Day. It would be a most fitting celebration, a battle ampictously started and sure of victory.

Why not make our Labor Day celebrations meetings of protest against an industrial and political system that compels millions to suffer and starve that a few may swindle and squander.

SONG OF LABOR

BY FRANK J. HAYES,

International Vice President of the United Mine Workers of America.

There are songs for the high and the mighty, Who march on the highways of fame; There are cheers for the hero victorious And the world breathes a joyous acclaim; But lo! in the mine's devious caverns, 'Mid darkness and gases and heat, There's an army unknown to the poet, An army that sounds no retreat;

They're the bone and the sinew of progress; They're the heroes of service and great-But what is their lot, and what is their rank, And what is their life estate?

There are medals and tributes of nations For the wearers of braid and gold; There are mansions and lands and comfort For the schemers of basest mold; And they live in their house of glory Or lounge in their cushioned seat, Afar from the burdens the toilers bear. Afar from the dust and the heat. Then whom shall we call to justice?

And how shall our song be sung?-By the voice of pain of our comrades slain Or another worker hung? Arise from your couch of slumber,

And fetter your limbs no more! For the loss of time is a social crime When the wolf stalks at your door. Out of the mill and workshop, Out of the deadly mine, In solid array, take heart today, And mass on the firing line! For the world is moving forward., And the cringing slave is dead,.
And the blood and tears of a thousand years Mark well the goal ahead; And the dream of the martyr'd teacher, And the prayer of the ancient sage, Shall live again in the hearts of men

The agreement is signed every three years and will be taken up again with the contractors soos, as it will expire April 1, 1912.

One of the biggest gains of the carpenters' brotherhood is the taking into their fold of several thousand factory workers at Grand Rapids, Mich., following a long strike. The men were able to force some concessions but no

HAIR CUT? YES, BUT ARE YOU A REAL UNION BARBER?

Save your face, not shave your face. This ought to be the watchword of every union man and sympathizer when he enters a barber shop.

The local branches of the barbers' union are now conducting an active campaign to get every barber in Chi-cago into the union.

One of the things which the barbers of Illinois are to be credited with is the law providing for the sanitary in-spection of every barber shop and the issuance of certificates by the inspectors.

The governor, however, played them a dirty trick by not appointing a union man on the commission. The old party governor wanted "business m="..." as he thought they were the only ones who knew anything about sanitation.

If your barber does not display a union card you will do a favor by calling up Harrison 5726 or address Barbers' Union, 331 La Salle street.

Out of courtesy to the Empire Athletic Club, also to Mr. Gotch and Mr. Hackenschmidt, I gave them one of my windows, also office room inside of my store. I do not make a dollar on the sale of the wrestling match tickets. I believe in wrestling, I believe in physical culture, in fact I am in training now myself, but not for the purpose of competing in any of the wrestling matches. Seems as though all Chicago is interested in this wrestling match. Ministers, lawyers, doctors, men from an walks of life are buying these tickets. You understand, gentlemen, a wrestling match is not a prize fight, it is one of the clean sports. I will admit I have seen thousands of new faces, as they come to my place of business to buy tickets for this match, made the acquaintance of some of the best people of Chicago, and they are not all millionaires either. To be among the best in Chicago it is not necessary to be a millionaire. The man who works in the factory can be one of the "best" just as well as the monied man. Nearly every afternoon I am on the floor in this new store of mine waiting anxiously to meet you, YOU I said, "face to face."

Owing to moving and alterations, to tell you the truth I am stuck on a lot of 20.00 and 25.00 spring suits and top coats. I want to sell them. Many of them are dark colors and heavy enough to wear for the next three months, price has been cut to 15.00. They must be sold for two reasons—I want the room for fall clothing and I want the money, you ought to know what for. You will find in the lot of suits—Serges, Thibets, Worsteds and Cassineres. In the Top Coats, Blacks and Oxfords, in Cheviots, Iancy Cassineres and Worsteds. Come look at my 3 hat windows, look at the prices on the hats before you come in the store, after that you will come inside all right. All the latest early fall styles in all kinds of new shapes, English and Broadway models at 2.00 and 2.00. The English soft hats in the new brown and Oxford models at 1.50. Imported Velour hats, all colors (6.00 most pieces), my price 5.03. English Golf caps, new colors, nobby styles, 1.50. Last but not least, fine lot of Imported Crushers, 2.00 in many stores, my price 1.35.

My new store on the corner of Clark and Madison streets I am proud of. Furnishing goods and hats on the first floor, clothing on the three top floors. Twice as big a store as I had in my old location. If you are a friend of mine I want your trade—I want it bad. If you save have met me or been in my store I want your trade. The way you will be treated I will make you my friend. signing this shoe. Accordingly we selected a broad toe that would allow perfect freedom to every movement of the foot. The sole is cut from oak bark tanned leather, selected for endurance under all tests of wear. In securing comfort we have not in any way neglected to give this shoe the high grade workmauship that is famous in Ruppert Shoes.

College men want round, broad toe shoes which give the toes ample room. The high arch and short vamp make it comfortable and give it style and distinctiveness, always seen in this style of shoe.

The prevailing tendency among college men is toward footwear that reflects the snap of the newest metropolitan styles. This shoe is a striking example of this. Note the high toe, the decided swing to the forepart, the short vamp effect, the high arch and close-fitting top; all features that appeal to the young man.

A shoe for the young man who likes stylish shoes. This shoe is designed on novel lines so that every detail must show some class. Its wonderful success this summer proves that it has made a hit with the college boy and fashionable dresser.

Ruppert Has Fought for the Union Label for Forty Years

Why does Ruppert make such an important point about the Union Label in his shoes? Because Union Made shoes are truly made, honest shoes.

Forty years ago when Ruppert started in the shoe business, he made up his mind to always stand for quality and the Union Label. The Union Label and the Ruppert Stamp on a pair of shoes tells you at once it has quality.

The prices of Ruppert's shoes are always stamped on the soles

Labor Day this year is really a time for rejoicing. For we have already tasted the first fruits of political power, and labor cannot help but become unitedly and earnestly for the full harvest and final freedom from industrial bendage.

May the success of Labor Day's celebration in 1911 mark the beginning of the true appreciation of the merits of labor and the high honors due it.

How long has mankind showered its glories and olive wreaths on the heads of conquerers, their hosts and deeds, while the army of labor has been neglected, kept in the dust, and its leaders, the great inventors, discoverers, the ploneers of progress, kept out of the annals of popular fame?

The pages of history are filled with narrations of political convulsions and recitals of battles. The heroes of war were defield, while the heroes of peace, the men and women tolling in the workshops and homes, in the mines, on the seas, in the fields, displaying as much courage, heroism and at least as much seas, in the fields, displaying as much courage, heroism and at least as much self-denial as the former, are condemned to indifference and oblivion. The spoils of war are the conquerors by natural right, while the fruits of peace are, to a great extent, withheld from the men who are conquering everything; from the workers, who have waged unrelenting warfare against reticent and unwilling nature, since the dawn of civilization.

In this also a change has to come.

In this also a change has to come The workers must receive the fruits of their labor to the exclusion of all un-just sharers in the same. The worker is furthermore to enjoy

No labor leader today, however conservative, would suggest a blanket compact with the employers' associations. On the contrary, it is coming to be more and more recognised that the politician cannot serve two masters, the worker and his employer. For the trades unions are learning fast of the new environments into which they have been thrust, of the fact that the problems which confront them cannot be disposed of by the old empty finitioned of conservative labor leader or conservative politician. Leaver is moving ahead.

But is Labor Day at the present moration a breathing spell? Is it anything more than a holiday, like the circus days of the Romas empire, when the slaves are permitted to regale themselves to their hearts' content in order that they may be more docile the rest of the year?

viding for the general eight hour day capitalism. It must continue so long as for all public employes. The machinists' union sent petitions and resolutions to the city council urging the passage of the ordinance. But the efty council unumber to continue exploitation one was at that time in the control of the hour.

Exploitation is continued by the votes of the workers themselves. The workers walk up to the ballot hox on election day and vote the capitalist. Republicans and Democrats, and they refused to pass the ordinance. Meanwhile the courts had rendered decisions adverse to the eight hour ordidecisions adverse to the eight hour ordinance, and thus served to strengthen the position of the opposition.

The Socialists introduced a resolution to have the case appealed to the Supreme Court, instructing the city attorney in the matter. This resolution was adopted, but it seems that the city attorney did nothing.

Other measures looking to the shortening of hours and the establishment of an eight hour day were introduced from time to time, and, besides, a number of resolutions which had the effect of slortening hours of labor. For example, the bridge tenders were on duty for seventy-eight hours corsecutively. By readjusting the shifts and adding a few men it became possible to reduce these lours, so that the men were on duty only twelve hours per day.

But the public powers.

When they use these public powers to fall the public powers.

When they use these public powers to plain? Labor voted for oppression.

When a capitalist judge issues an injunction against labor why do you from the resolutions which had the effect of slortening hours of labor. For example, the bridge tenders were on duty for seventy-eight hours corsecutively. The Republican and Democratic partices get their campaign funds from the capitalists. They are run in the interest of the capitalists.

The Socialist party gets its campaign funds from the working class.

The Socialist party stands for the abolition of capitalism, and the consequent abolition of exploitation, military oppression, blacklists, poverty, child labor and all the rest of the wretched settinue.

The howi which we hear in favor of the annihilation of the trusts is the dying wail of the middle class. The small capitalists in the middle class want to smash the trusts so that they can exploit labor themselves, instead of let-

THE CHICAGO DAILY SOCIALIST

-class matter, Dec. 22, 150 6, at P. O. Chicago, under act March & 1878.

Socialists and the Unions

They Are Inseparable Now and the Future Holds Victories in Store for a United Labor Movement.

After years of misunderstanding the Socialist movement of America has won general recognition as an inseparable part of the labor movement.

This recognition is now given even by those workers in the cause of labor who do not yet subscribe to Socialist platforms.

During the past year the most notable action of the Socialists tending to cement the party and the unions was their unanimous defense of the McNamara brothers. In the white heat of the class struggle the two wings of the labor movement, the political and the economic, have been welded together.

It is appropriate at this time that we should endeavor to clear away any misconceptions condemning the Socialists or their actions toward the unions to the end that this unity may be preserved.

Labor Day should be a time for the promotion of better understanding, more solidarity, among all the elements that go to make up what is known as the organized working class.

Capitalist papers located in those states where the Socialist movement is strong have persistently sought to create the impression that Socialists are not sincere in their declarations of sympathy with the unions. The Socialists are merely after the votes, say these papers. The best answer to this accusation is the fact that it is not believed by the unions in the cities where the Socialists have greatest strength.

We have in the Socialist ranks those who criticize the unions for every little fault they may perceive, or think they perceive (but not more so than some non-Socialists in the unions), and we have those who are very impatient with the unions that are slowest to accept Socialist platforms, but when it comes right down to a struggle, a strike, a lockout or illegal and unjust acts committed against the unions by their enemies, then every Socialist is with the unions

In urging, criticizing, and even scolding a bit now and then, the enthusiastic Socialist feels that he is only exercising his right as a member of the working class movement, and the non-Socialist member who feels resentment should remember that quite often in arguments over other matters far less important stronger words are spoken and more tenaciousness of views is shown than crop out in the Socialist enthusiast who sees the possibility of early emancipation of the workers from wage slavery.

We ask of the membership of the unions only credit for sincerity and a reasonable hearing on these questions that affect the interests of labor.

The Socialists have no desire to dictate to the unions in their internal affairs. Those of us who are members of the unions will dition take part in the discussion of plans and forms of organizations when those questions arise in the meetings and because of the great light which Socialist literature throws on questions affecting labor, the Socialists are apt to take the same side on most of such questions. But that does not mean that the Socialists want to make their party an issue in the union.

We want to keep the Democrat and the Republican in the union. We believe that if they are sincere union men they will some day be Socialists, and we will be as patient as we can meanwhile, striking with them and fighting by their side on the economic field, urging that they open their eyes and fight by our side on the political field.

One thing worthy of especial mention in a review of the relations of the Socialists to the unions is the growing tendency to industrial unionism. The principle of this form of organization has found general approval in the Socialist party, because it affords means not only of more effectively using the power which the workers already organized have, but it also points the way to bringing greater numbers of workers into the ranks of the unions.

The Socialist party members have naturally recognized the need of industrial unionism first, because of the mass Socialist organization.

It is encouraging to note that in actual practice the trades unions are rapidly adapting themselves to the principle of industrial unionism. The application of the principle is made in establishing closer the prefer death to this humiliation. working organizations of various trades, and in such moves as system federations on the railroads. The next year will probably witness great progress in this direction.

The Socialist press feels that in acquainting the rank and file of the unions with the advantage of this more complete unity it is fulfilling a duty to the worker without violating the principle laid down in our national resolutions that we will not interfere with the internal affairs of the unions.

As a general rule the unions are now willing to admit to their meetings accredited committees of the Socialist party desirous of addressing their members. This is another note of harmony that augurs well for the future of both the unions and the party.

In conclusion, we wish to call attention to the fact that the pnomic and political wings of the labor movement find their greatest common need, their sphere of greatest co-operation, in the maintenance of a working class press.

In numbers lie the power and the hope of success both on the mic and political fields. In the organization and commanding of numbers the greatest necessity is the means of ready communica-tion of plans of action and information.

The political movement had the earliest need of a press of its wn, but the unions' need is none the less now. Widely circulated daily papers in all the large industrial centers and hundreds of week-lies throughout the United States, all absolutely loyal to the Socialist party and the unions, are necessary for the further advancement of great labor movement.

Column after column could be written citing instances in which blicity through the Socialist press has saved the day for the working class in some struggles.

What has been accomplished is only pioneer work for the future. It is our opinion that the year to come and those that will immediately follow it are to witness the growth of a powerful daily press, owned and published by the Socialist and union movements of America. Every Socialist and union man should give his thought to this subject and register his observance of Labor Day with a promise to help build up his own press during these next twelve

On the farm it is comparatively easy to take care of the aged. Especially was it so in former days when living was cheap.

There can be no question as to the right of these men and women to be taken care of decently in their old age. They have made civilization possible for everybody, and especially for the comfortable classes.

The case is entirely different with the urban workers. The maintenance of their old folks by the wage earners of the cities—especially where these men and women have children to take care of—is nowadays simply impossible.

Aged working men and women therefore soon become objects of private or public charity.

After having lived a life of usefulness, the working men and the working women of the country—the men and women who create all wealth—are usu—ally subject to all the indignities the

And yet tablishes a new feudalism.

The second objection to private old age pension.

But very few people realise that the number of wage earners killed and maimed every year on the railroads, in the mines, factories, and other in-dustries in our country is approximate-ity equal to the number of soldiers killed and wounded in any one year of our great civil war, with all its terrible battles.

Moreover, there are say number of

Moreover, there are agy number of occupational diseases which are the natural result of certain kinds of necessary work, but which make total or partial invalids of hundreds of thousands of wage earners.

The victory was gained not so much in the matter of advancing wages, shortening of the hours of toil or even the recognition of the union, all of which were highly important concessions, and are at any time.

The really big triumph was that of the workers over themely or aft ideas and customs—and their recognition of the principles of organization and action along industrial lines and the power of class solidarity.

During the past couple of years there has been a gradual drifting away from the old moorings of craft autonomy in Great Britain, and the movement became especially marked in the last 12 menths, since the return of Tom Mann from Australia to raise his eloquent voice against the narrow or aft boundaries and in facvor of broad industrial unionism.

LABOR DAY PROCLAMATION

BY EMIL SEIDEL Socialist Mayor of Milwaukee

> OFFICE OF THE MAYOR, Milwaukee, Sept. 1, 1911.

The greatest factor in the world's work is labor. Without labor of hand and brain no civilization is possible.

All the blessings that we enjoy are the fruit of labor intelligently applied to the resources of nature.

It creates the wealth of the world; it feeds the masses; it clothes them and houses them. Without it, no human society could exist.

And, yet withal, it has been the toiling calsses that for ages past have been held in subjection.

Today, this class is beginning to realize the importance of ita position in society.

Through the science of social economy it begins to understand the economic structure of human society. And, as a result, it demands justice. One of the concessions made to labor is a day set aside annually for its sole purpose and known as Labor Day. This year Labor Day falls on the fourth day of September. Let us all observe it and lay aside all toil that can be suspended. Let the mills, the factories and the shops close their doors.

Let all that toil, either with brain or hand, rejoice in what has been accomplished. Let us review the past; look backward and view the long road which the human race has traveled through savagery and barbarism towards civilization. Let us learn from the failures of the past, and endeavor to avoid them in the future.

Let us also take inventory of the present with its many problems, We should understand that these problems are of most vital concern to the workers of today.

Upon their proper solution depends the progress of the world. With untiring energy, let us bend every effort towards their solution.

In commemorating Labor Day in this spirit, every one of us, without distinction, can look hopefully into the future, clinging strongly to the faith that right eventually must win.
