SPEAKS FOR THE CHILDREN.

Carey's Fight on Child Labor in the Massachusetts Legislature.

Boston, April 28—If, through the agency of one or two most efficient, the working people of Massachusetts who really care about such matters can have seen what transpired in the Lower House last Thursday, afternoon, they would have witnessed a sight never seen. They would have seen men who claim to represent especially the "labor interest" voting yes and voting again against a bill to restrict the employment of children under 12 in mill work and in the factories; and they would have seen these men, trade unions and others that put, forward the specious plea that the bill would injure the trade and the sort of protection for the bill, therefore, its passage was not necessary.

The discussion upon the bill would not be dignified by the name of debate. Many of the replies to Carey's argument for the bill were in the nature of apology for the adverse vote, and even more than arguments against the bill itself. Incidentally some of the leading men in the House ridiculed Carey for his effort upon the bill's passage, apparently because he had put his argument in the words and the methods of going for the bill. When the adverse report of the committee was read, there were not more than 20 votes against it. Very few men were present at the opening, and it was with some effort the friends of "the bill" could secure the necessary vote. That was Goddard, but this was not true. The present day has a greater opportunity to determine the claims of the children of Massachusetts than ever before, and if the bill had been passed, it would have been a victory, a step forward in the struggle to free the child from the toils of the factories.

The bill is a valuable step in the development of public sentiment. The failure of the bill is not a defeat. It is an opportunity to the friends of the bill to reconsider the methods of securing the necessary vote, and the future work of the committee will be in that direction.

We advocate the political organization of the working class to get its candidate elected to the legislature and to build up a labor party to carry out the platform of the Socialists and to raise the political consciousness of the working class to the level of the French Revolution.

The Socialists Militant.

Pennsylvania.

A great deal of agitation is being done in this long and bloody State of Pennsylvania by the Socialists. The Socialist paper owned by the party. They have hopes of making a strong showing in the State this fall.

Klimko and Collins have been and are stirring things up in the labor movement. Especially in the western part of the State Louis Gomes and Hickey are doing a mighty good work.

New York.

Conrad Calloway has been making great work with great success at Passaic, Cold Springs, Newbury, Knowles and other places. He is doing a splendid work and is winning the confidence of the working class.

MIssouri.

St. Louis held a meeting in the Commercial Club, with 400 delegates in attendance. The enthusiasm was unabated. A ring of 513 workers were formed, 47 of whom are general workers. The total roll ticket nominated The St. Louis council are promising to do a splendid work in the State. They have the hearty support of many unions of St. Louis and the State.

"Savannah," Socialist, declares that "victory is not impossible," but at all events a magnificient increase of membership is promised in the next three months, and the next will be the most highly respected number of the Socialists.

Michigan.

Donald W. Cameron, secretary of the Michigan state council, has been making great work in the state. He is doing an excellent job of organization, and his work has been highly appreciated. The next great meeting will be held in the county jail at Muskegon, this month.

The Right Kind.

The Socialists, in organizing themselves upon their unexpected defeat, are making a fine stand in the state and are doing a splendid job of work. They are winning the hearts of the workers, and their success is apparent. We believe that the Socialists are on the right kind of a platform, and that their success will be great in the state.

CALIFORNIA FOR SOCIALISM.

California will be the field of a hot campaign this fall. As a State it has always been the front in the Socialist rank and file. It depends on the course of its work in this State to decide the character of the movement throughout the country. We believe that past agitation has achieved the results which it intended to achieve. In 1906, there was a free vote on the question of the Free Will Tax, and the non-agitators were driven from the field by the vote of the community.

Comrades should meet the petitioners. At least it is an opportunity to the public to have a chance to meet with the people who are entitled to vote. They must vote. The Comrades must double their efforts in this campaign.

MINNEAPOLIS FALL CONFERENCE.

The Minneapolis Fall Conference to be held October 6th will be the third Fall Conference held in the United States. It is the first time that the Conference has been held in the West. The previous Conferences were held in Chicago and in Boston. The Conference will be a meeting of the labor movement in the United States, and will be a great step forward in the organization of the working class.

The conference will be held in the Minneapolis Labor Temple, and will be open to all interested in the labor movement. The program will include discussions on the following topics:

- The labor movement in the United States
- The role of the labor movement in world politics
- The need for a strong labor movement in the United States

Socialism or Sectarianism.

They were wise and weighty words which Herbert Butterworth addressed to the gathering assembled on Saturday afternoon in the old meeting hall of the Congregational church inThreadneedle Street. The subject of the address was "Socialism or Sectarianism." He stated that the election of socialists to the National Assembly meant that the Church of England was having a revolution in its life, and the question was whether it was a real revolution or whether it was merely a change of name.

The Church of England had always been a political as well as a religious institution, and the change of name merely reflected a change of name. The real revolution was the change of its life, and the question was whether it was a real revolution or whether it was merely a change of name.
