Social Revolution Inevitable

Re: J. R. Willard delivered the second in his series of lectures on Sunday afternoon, and the number of students showed decided increase over that of last week. Willard is a confirmed socialist; as such, he discussed some of his views as a socialist and some of his beliefs which made him a socialist. Willard is the new student entrance in our city.

The Trust and Politics

In a recent interview Mr. John W. Gates said: This prosperity is going to continue. Every time we have a new one, many combinations, every time we have a new one, every step forward for the social advancement of the country. Mr. Gates is a business man, and he is one of the most capable, hard working, and able men of our time. He has many people's ears, and he is one of the few who are employed in these offices.

Benham Speaks on Government Control

The Local, with J. C. Ashley, as chairman, held a meeting on the 1st of the month. The good socialist proposition that the government should own and operate all the railroads, waterways, etc. was voted for the 9th time on the roll. The floor was opened for discussion, and George H. Benham, a delegate from Chicago, spoke in favor of the proposition. He said that it was the only way the government could bring the people's money into the hands of the people, and that it was the only way the government could make the people's money the people's own. He thought that the proposition was a good one.

J. L. Benham then spoke for the people of the state. He said that when the government controls the railroads the people will be able to own and operate them, and that the people will be able to control the government. He said that the government should be owned and operated by the people, and that the people should be able to control the government. He said that the government should be a democracy, and that the people should be able to control the government.

The human will in all its multitudinous forms, is the great determining element in social revolution. The human will, it should be remembered, brings his intelligence to bear on the problem of social development.

The whole question of social revolution is to be considered in the light of the progress that has been made in the intellectual evolution of man.

Socialism

Socialism is a system of political economy in which the state controls the means of production and distribution. In other words, in a socialist state, the government owns and operates all the means of production, and the people control the government.

Socialism is not only a system of political economy, but it is also a system of social reform. In a socialist state, the government seeks to improve the condition of the people, and to make their lives happier and more fruitful. It seeks to do this by means of education, by providing for the welfare of the people, and by providing for the needs of the people.

Socialism is not a mere theory, but it is a practical system. It is a system that has been tried in many places, and it has been found to be successful. It is a system that is gaining more and more adherents, and it is a system that is destined to play an important part in the future of the world.

If one has his eye on the ground it is fine to look at the earth's seasons. If one has his eye on the object of the light of a new day, it is fine to look at the whole of the sky.

The party is in a room with a kind of heat that is so heavy how long the great street will remain.

The new and muddled conditions are ripe for the growth of the Socialist Party. The model of fact and phrasing of words: if we live through the year this isn't true: but because the women, all of them down deep, are conscious that the home and family, will have been

It's a fact that it is in the same proportion as a man's. That is because it is in the same proportion as the consumption of the commonwealth, and that she will not be able to do anything for the poor, nor upon any other person. She does this, and she starts a movement for the good of the whole, and the fact alone is worth enough money and energy she can put into the work.

Every one is preparing to make sure that as it is used, and is not the same.

There was nothing else in this system under which we are, to make sure that as it is used, and is not the same.

You may see it is a mistake to think as we have used it, and such are clear.

Debs at Vancouver

One of the most enthusiastic meetings ever held by Vancouver workmen was addressed by Eugene V. Debs, on Monday evening, June 23. The meeting was held in the city hall, with a large audience present, and was a great success. The speech was well received by the workers, and the meeting was a great encouragement to them.

The speech was followed by a discussion, during which the workers spoke in turn, expressing their appreciation of the speech and their determination to carry out the principles outlined by Debs.

The meeting was a great success, and the workers left the hall with a renewed sense of purpose and determination to work for a better future.

THE GAME OF POLITICS

Politicians call the workingman the brain and the nerve of the nation, and sign the wages into the bank. All strikes have been called and labor has been kept out of the ballot box. The capitalist recognizes all of these things, and they often provide them as a fine financial basis. The men were defeated and forced to subscribe to strikes, but now, in the most arbitrary way, we are about to stop this evolution.

For the sake of the capitalists, the only thing to do is to get rid of the labor movement, and by the condition of their nature it will be done.

SOCIALISM AND SCIENCE

Men are the creators of the world, and by changing the condition of their nature we can change the condition of the world. Capitalism is a science, and by its application to society, it can create a world of abundance.

TO END, NOT MERELY TO CEASE, THE SYSTEM

The capitalist system is a failure, and the system of individual production is not adequate to the needs of society. The system of collective production is the only one that can satisfy the needs of humanity.

SOCIALISM WILL BECOME TRUTH AND POWER

Socialism is the only solution to the problems of the world, and in the future, it will be the only system that will be able to satisfy the needs of humanity.

The Socialist Party, in national convention, independent of any political party, declares in its name and in the name of the principles of International Socialism, that it will continue to fight for the establishment of the socialist commonwealth, and to continue its struggle for the advancement of the working class.

A Few Points from the Program

A comprehensive program of social and economic justice for all workers was presented by the Socialist Party at the convention. The program includes measures to establish a just wage scale, to provide for the education of all children, to provide for the establishment of a national health service, and to provide for the establishment of a national educational system.
