Liberty and the Social Revolution

There was a larger attendance than ever before at Old Fellows Hall Sunday night, May 9, when Mr. Charles E. Russell, of the Friend of Liberty, delivered an address. Mr. Russell, who is making a flying visit to our city, presided as chairman and his oratory on the platform was a signal for a perfect order.

Speaking on the subject of the "Freemen's rights," Mr. Russell said:

We advocate the political organization of the working class to overthrow the domination of the capitalist class and to establish Socialism.

Hoch de Revolution

Agnew, Aug. 2, 1902.

Editor Advancers.

At last it has come, the revolution which we have been fighting for against the Prussian aristocracy and its adherents, both at home and abroad. God be praised, so soon!

The revolution started at the summer congress of the Socialist workers, which met in Hamburg. The congress, after an arduous struggle, achieved a major victory for the working class. The ruling classes, who are always afraid of revolution, are now in a state of panic. This is a sign that the revolution is gaining momentum. The revolution is not only a battle against the ruling class, but also a battle for the freedom of the working class. It is a battle for a better world, a world where all men are equal and where the rights of workers are respected.

The revolution is not just a battle against the ruling class, but also a battle for the freedom of the working class. It is a battle for a better world, a world where all men are equal and where the rights of workers are respected.

Revolutionary Socialism

party which does not stand for the complete transformation of the economic system, for the socialist property, the nationalization of the means of production, or for a workers' dictatorship, is a political party which does not represent the revolutionary class, or those who sympathize with them for the sake of that class, can accept without reservation the political guidance of such a party.

The Socialist party is the only political party today that can make the working-class and those in sympathy with it, for the purpose of guiding the struggles of the people towards the goal of securing the socialist property, the nationalization of the means of production, and the dictatorship of the proletariat. In other words, the Socialist party is the only party that can fulfill the tasks assigned to it, and while it will not always be able to do all that is required of it, it will make every effort to do what it can.

We recognize that Socialism will not come into being because of the efforts of a single party, but because of the efforts of the whole working class. The party's role is to educate the working class, to prepare it for the socialist revolution, and to organize it for the socialist revolution. The party's role is also to unite all the socialist parties and organizations in the interests of the socialist revolution.

The Socialist party is the only party that can represent the interests of the working class and those in sympathy with it, for the purpose of guiding the struggles of the people towards the goal of securing the socialist property, the nationalization of the means of production, and the dictatorship of the proletariat. In other words, the Socialist party is the only party that can fulfill the tasks assigned to it, and while it will not always be able to do all that is required of it, it will make every effort to do what it can.

Socialists are the vanguard of the working class. They are the advanced and militant members of the working class. They are the leaders of the working class. They are the representatives of the working class. They are the defenders of the working class. They are the guardians of the workers' interests. They are the protectors of the workers' rights. They are the advocates of the workers' freedom. They are the champions of the workers' cause.
