The Socialist women of California met in San Francisco, to consult with the party headquarters in San Francisco, to discuss the many problems of the Socialist movement. The conference was called to order by Miss Nola McIlmin, the State Chairman of the California representative of the Women's Socialist party. It was held at the Hotel Cebolla, corner of Broadway and 7th Street.

The meeting was called to order at 10:00 a.m., and a roll call was taken. The roll call showed that all the club officers and some other members were present.

Miss McIlmin then addressed the meeting, and after that a brief discussion took place on the various topics.

The meeting then adjourned until 2:00 p.m. when it was continued.

The meeting adjourned at 5:30 p.m.

The Socialist women of California are working hard for the betterment of the working class and for the establishment of Socialism.

The Platform of the Socialist Party of California

The Socialist party of California in existing, is the only party in the United States which is organized in accordance with our principles of International Socialism. And the National Socialist Convention, held in 1910 in San Francisco, was the first in the United States which was purely socialistic in character.

The Socialist party aims to organize the working class of the entire state, to secure an increase in the wage scale and the working conditions of all laborers, for the purpose of developing and realizing socialism.

We advocate the following declarations and resolutions:

Resolutions

1. Modern industrial methods have forced upon our people a mighty political struggle between the producers, who control the means of production and distribution, and the consumers, whose labor is the basis of production.

2. The growth of monopoly has increased the tendency towards the concentration of wealth, in the syndicates and trusts, which control the railroad, public utilities, and the manufacturing industries.

3. The determinations of wealth, in the syndicates and trusts, control the working class, which produces the wealth.

4. The concentration of wealth in the hands of the few holds the workers in a dependent position. It is not our intention to destroy the liberties of the toilers or to assert the economic sovereignty of the working class. It is our intention to destroy the liberties of the toilers. We seek to destroy the power of the syndicate and the trust, and to secure the independence of the worker.

5. The use of the injunction to destroy the liberties of the toilers is severely limited in the courts. It is our intention to destroy the existing form of law, and to secure the independence of the worker.

6. The members of the labor class have a special duty to protect the working class. They are the direct profit of the money lender, the railway monopoly, the railroad company, the city, the national and international government, and the manufacturing and coal mining companies.

7. The method of securing the right of all to make the labor of the working class an object of profit is by the sale of labor to the capitalist class.

8. We seek to secure the right of all to make the labor of the working class an object of profit, and to secure the independence of the worker.

9. The right of all to make the labor of the working class an object of profit is secured by the sale of labor to the capitalist class.

10. The right of all to make the labor of the working class an object of profit is secured by the sale of labor to the capitalist class.
