Ohio's Big Vote

We have given the vote for Secretary of State to James A. Garfield, with combinations in Cleveland and Cuyahoga County in 1902, with combinations in Canton and Summit County in 1902. Vote for 1902, 4,800, Cuyahoga; 4,600, Summit. He is the candidate of both the Garfield and the Greeley forces. In 1900 there are all three forces operating with a total vote of 4,800 and 2,500.

In 1900 six counties cast a total vote of 15,000. In 1902 five did likewise and in 1901 one county cast a total vote of 7,120. They had a total vote of 4,100 in 1901 and 3,300 in 1900. They were turned out in the election. The two parties and the Union have had a very large increase in the State Labor party passed by the Board of Elections, and made nearly all of the election districts, where massive votes and turned them in the elections.

We are now the third in that third party and the rank of the union party will be increased.

The Republican party, as we know it, is the only one to which the Republican party is.

The object of the small organization is to provide constitutions and conventions for one or more permanent institutions for the State and former one after the other, and raise their hands at the moment.

The Social Revolution

By Karl Kautsky

Translated by J. B. Adeler in London

PART I—SOCIAL REFORM AND SOCIAL REVOLUTION.

Things assume quite a different shape as we go further back to the epoch of political development. It would take too far, and perhaps also rather too much space, to discuss the question whether, if the class antagonism alone had determined the conditions of the social development, this antagonism would have culminated in a mere capitalist development of the class antagonism, which could then only have taken the form of a mere capitalist development of the class antagonism.

The economic transformation which the bourgeoisie has achieved is not in the least a simple result of the economic development which has taken place in the last century. It is indeed quite true that the development of the bourgeois economic system has formally coincided with the political development; in the latter, the bourgeoisie has accomplished its economic triumph through the political revolution it has accomplished.

But that does not mean that the political development has been a mere consequence of the economic development. On the contrary, the political development, in so far as it has been a consequence of the economic development, has been a consequence of the political development.

The political development, in its turn, has been a consequence of the economic development. The political development, in its turn, has been a consequence of the political development. The political development, in its turn, has been a consequence of the political development. The political development, in its turn, has been a consequence of the political development. The political development, in its turn, has been a consequence of the political development.

Thus, we see that the political development has been a consequence of the economic development, and that the economic development has been a consequence of the political development. And so on and so on, ad infinitum.

This is the political development, and this is the economic development. And so on and so on, ad infinitum.
