MILITANT DELEGATES IN REVOLT

RULE OF GOMPERS AND MORONES IS SHAKEN IN THE PAN-AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR CONGRESS

By J. W. JOHNSTONE

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 16.—The Pan-American Federation of Labor developed in its last day into anything but a smooth operation as a result of the clashing-collectivist doctrines of Sam Greengrocer and Luis Monerones, who could scarce avoid a conflict in the last day’s session.

This conflict developed into the result of the unification of the Pan-American Congress, the U.S., the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, and the Pan-American Confederation of Labor, which was headed by the American Federation of Labor. As such, the result was a conflict between two political leaders.

The American Federation of Labor was not merely a political party, but also a social and economic organization as well, and was dominated by those who, while also members of the National Farmers’ Alliance and Labor, were also prominent in the executive committee.

The result of this conflict was to divide the American Federation of Labor, and to make it a political leader.

Drive Director Puts It Over in Cleveland

Director of the Cleveland Daily Worker’s Federation of Labor, Cleveland, Ohio, is on another round of the “daily tour.”

In an effort to counteract the massive campaign of speaking engagements, Dr. Wagenknecht has planned to tour the country.

The plan included a series of speaking engagements, with the purpose of reaching a larger audience and to counteract the mass meetings.

This plan was then put into action.

The Cleveland Daily Worker’s Federation of Labor, under the leadership of Dr. Wagenknecht, is determined to carry on the battle against the mass meetings.

The plan is to hold a series of speaking engagements, with the purpose of reaching a larger audience and to counteract the mass meetings.

The result of this conflict was to divide the American Federation of Labor, and to make it a political leader.

WHY I AM FOR THE MINORITY THESIS

The minority thesis does not exist in its entirety. It is not necessary to prove the existence of such a thing, for the fact that there is no such faction in the union does not suffice. The majority that now exists is composed of the class that has not yet been organized, the class that has not yet been unionized. The majority that now exists is composed of the class that has not yet been organized, the class that has not yet been unionized. The majority that now exists is composed of the class that has not yet been organized, the class that has not yet been unionized.

Dawes Plan Squeezes German Exports

Bconverted to The Daily Worker

BERLIN, Dec. 19—Germany has been forced to pay interest on its own money.

The Dawes Plan, which was imposed by the U.S. government after World War I, required Germany to pay reparations to the Allied powers.
