"National Unity"---for Big Bankers

THE warmth with which Hoover's heart beats for the ENTIRE population is seen in the way his "National Unity" program "for the general welfare," is working out.

Firstly, the $500,000,000 "credit pool" established by the big bankers. will, according to the Annalist, either:

(a) Purchase ONLY the "sounder" securities held by the smaller banks that are "in trouble"-in which case the smaller banks will be no better off than before if they escape being entirely swallowed by the big ones, or

(b) If the big banks take over ALSO the "watered" stock and other 'frozen" assets of the smaller banks, the banking system as a whole will be, as the Annalist diplomatically puts it "not improved."

Considering the dog-eat-dog ethics prevailing as the most lofty sentiment capitalists are capable of, no more than one guess need be given as to what the big bankers will do; or anything be hazarded on the absurdity of "unity" among bankers, each of whom is savagely bent on his own advantage in the grand confusion of mutual robbery.

This leaves aside the basic "liquidity" of the New York banks which initiated the "credit pool" with a credit extension to it of $150,000,000, which, we are told, is two per cent of their combined time and demand deposits, or $7,500,000,000. Yet we have just read that the total currency in circulation throughout America is $5,246,000,000. While the big bankers, "essentially sound" as these figures would indicate to a blind man, are thus gobbling up the "best" securities (and they are none too good!) of the small banks, and if they do not actually gobble these small banks up, are letting them go to the wall with catastrophic results for the depositors whom Mr. Hoover expressed himself concerned over, there is another phase of the "national unity" program worth while noting for workers.

In the name of "national unity" the railroad companies, loaded and slopping over with watered stock, are to be given by orders of the Santa Claus at Washington, a gigantic "loan" of over some $200,000,000.

Workers, did capitalist arrogance ever go further? Here, over 11,000,000 workers are jobless, and with their families they count upwards of at least 30,000,000 men, women and children of the workers. Does the capitalist government move one finger to feed and shelter these? Does it devote one cent from the national treasury for this vast mass of suffering humanity?

Not a move! Not a cent! Indeed, every possible lie and crooked maneuver is exerted NOT to feed the starving workers! But for the railroad capitalists-$200,000,000, or $300,000,000-whatever they want!

Workers, did you ever see clearer proof of the capitalist class nature of the government? Do you understand the absurdity of talk about "national unity" when the "nation" is based on a system of robbery of the masses by a handful of big capitalists, when even these capitalists are each trying to swindle each other?

How different, workers, it is in the Soviet Union! There the million masses are-after they have overthrown the capitalists and taken government into their own hands-REALLY UNITED! And not to rob the toiling masses-to say that "the masses are robbing the masses" is evidently nonsense-but to exploit and develop natural resources, to build socialism for the benefit of all who toil!

When, and only when, you have overthrown capitalism in America and established your own Workers' and Farmers' Government, will the government dispossess the captialists and see that the toiling masses are fed, sheltered and clothed. Then, and then only, can there be unity for the general welfare. Until then-unity among all toilers in struggle against all capitalists!

In front of the hall they were joined by fresh thousands who had arrived individually or in small groups. In grim silence the workers massed around the huge red-draped platform erected in the center of the street. The city government, whose police had shot down Raymond and Jackson, had been forced to cut off all traffic in the street where the funeral was held. All police had been withdrawn from the area of the funeral in face of the evident determination of the workers to stand for no interference. The meeting was opened at one o'clock by the chairman, Herbert Newton, a Negro leader of the working class, who represented the arrangements committee. Representatives of the International Labor Defense, the League of Struggle for Negro Rights, the Communist Party and the Young Communist League, spoke briefly, pledging the support of their organizations for the struggle in which Rayford and Jackson lost their lives. Maggie Jones, leader of the Number 8 Unemployed Branch to which Rayford and Jackson belonged, called on the workers to join the Unemployed Council in mass and to stop every eviction in the city of Cleveland as a tribute to the slain workers. She called for the intensification of the struggle for unem ployment relief and for social insurance, to be paid for by the bosses and to be administered by committees of workers.

A Fight Against Starvation "This meeting today is more than a proletarian funeral," declared Tom Johnson, representing the Central Committee of the Communist Party. "It is above all a fighting demonstration against starvation and pauperization of the workers, against police terrorism, and for the unbreakable solidarity of the Negro and white workers in the struggle against the system which took the lives of our comrades."

The Workers Can Win! THE NEXT STEP IN CLEVELAND

THE great gathering of 30,000 Negro and white workers at the grave of their murdered comrades in Cleveland Saturday was much more than a proletarian funeral. It was a concrete demonstration of the revolutionary determination of the Cleveland workers to continue the struggle against evictions and for immediate relief in the course of which Rayford and Jackson were murdered. At the same time it was a mighty demonstration against police terror and in defense of the most elementary rights of the workers-freedom of speech and assemblage.

In the face of the despicable lies which filled the capitalist press that the white Communists led the Negro workers into slaughter." 15,000 white workers marched into the heart of the Negro section of Gleveland to join hands with their Negro fellow workers over the graves of their fallen comrades-a fighting demonstration of the unbreakable solidarity of Negro and white workers in the struggle against starvation and police terror

Not less important than the demonstration itself, by far the greatest that Cleveland has seen since May 1, 1917, were the events immediately preceding it. On Friday a delegation of representatives of working class organizations visited the City Hall to demand, (1) immediate release of hose workers, first wounded and then arrested in the fight which cost the lives of Rayford and Jackson; (2) the withdrawal of the police sent into the Negro section; (3) the release of all workers arrested during the day distributing leaflets calling for the mass funeral meeting; (4) an immediate end to the regime of police terrorism in the Negro section; (5) the right of the workers to the streets for the funeral meeting, and for the procession to the cemetery.

Such was the temper of the workers, such was the extent of the mass movement, that the city government was forced to grant these demands, wholly or in part. The wounded workers were removed from the jail to hospitals. All workers arrested for distribution of leaflets were immediately released. The Cleveland working class won the right to hold their funeral meeting for their fallen comrades on a principal thoroughfare in the Negro section and the right to a mass procession through the streets of Cleveland to the graves of their comrades. Further, at the meeting itself on Saturday, the workers forced the withdrawal of all police from an area of several blocks surrounding the meeting.

The events in Cleveland show: (1) That through the development of a powerful mass movement the working class can today wring political concessions from their class enemies; and (2) that in the struggle against police terrorism it is possible by correct policies to mobilize the widest sections of the working class for militant struggle.

The workers of Cleveland must not rest content with this partial victory. It is necessary to continue on a mass scale the struggle against police terrorism, for the right of the workers to the streets, for an end to evictions of unemployed families, for immediate cash winter relief, against all Jim-Grow practices and against the special police terrorism directed against the Negroes.

It is above all necessary to consolidate organizationally this tremendous elementary movement of the masses and to establish organizational as well as political leadership over these 30,000 Cleveland workers who have already shown in unmistakable terms their determination to carry on the struggle in which Rayford and Jackson lost their lives.

Out of this forward movement of the Cleveland working class last Saturday must come a whole network of Block Committees of the unemployed, uniting the Negro and white unemployed in the neighborhoods for stubborn day to day struggles for relief. The revolutionary trade unions which threw their whole support into Saturday's fighting answer to the murderous city government must, through the contacts gained at the demonstration on Saturday, penetrate the biggest shops in the Cleveland area, particularly in the steel industry. The whole struggle against police terrorism must be put on a firmer organizational basis. Mass defense corps of Negro and white workers must be set up which will be able to protect working class meetings and demonstrations. This whole movement of 30,000 workers must be embraced organizationally by the revolutionary movement and the fight lifted to a higher level.

This now becomes the central task of the revolutionary movement in Cleveland.

In addition to teh leaders of these organizations, Hitler, Hubenberg, Duesterberg, Seldte and the former Kaiser's sons, there were present "a score or more of West German industrialis tleaders" (capitalists), the real chiefs o fteh fascist movement. Hitler, in his speech, stated that the meeting was for the purpose of organizing the fascist hordes against the Communists.

"Either Communism or nationalism must rule Germany and we are entering upon a period in which we are resolved that this chronic state must be converted into an acute condition."

The leaders of the fascist organization used the same lies about the role of the Bruening government that the socialists have used in their attempts to deceive the German workers. They tried, like the socialists, to make the toiling masses of Germany believe that there is a basic difference between the fascist government of Bruening and the open fascist dictatorship. While the socialists demagogically state that the German workers must support the Bruening "democratic" government against fascism, the fascisti stated that the Bruening government must be supplanted by a government of the national opposition.

The German workers realize that both are conscious liars for the purpose of aiding the fascist dictatorship and that the struggle is not between the open fascist dictatorship and the KENTUCKY GOVERNOR PLANS Bruening government, but between the masses led by the Communist Party and fascism, led by Bruening Hitler or any other agent of the capi talist class and supported by the socialists-the social fascists. The Bruening government knows that the national opposition is part of the same capitalist apparatus as itself. The New York Times reported

WEAKNESSES IN OUR UNEMPLOYED WORK

By O. PIATNITSKY

(From his recent pamphlet "Unemployment and the Tasks of the Communists." Just published by the Workers Library Publishers; price 15 cts.)

THE unemployed workers' movement cannot yet be considered a mass movement—if we take into consideration the enormous number of persons without work; there are thousands in the unemployed workers' movement, but there are, millions of unemployed.

There is a dangerous gap between the struggles of the workers in employment and the unemployed. In Germany enthusiastic demonstrations of the unemployed are continually taking place, but there are no strikes of any great importance. The struggle of the unemployed is not always supported by means other than strikes of workers engaged in industry. In Witersfeld (an industrial town in Middle Germany) for example, during a period of four weeks (in April and May) the unemployed carried on a struggle against a reduction in the scale of relief. They besieged the town hall and twice succeeded in getting their unemployment benefits on the old scale. When the police interfered during the third siege of the town hall, the unemployed did not fall back but continued their struggle, in spite of conflicts with the police, but since the movement obtained no support from these engaged in industry, it broke

In England, France, and, to a lesser degree, in the United States, on the other hand, big strikes frequently occur, but there is an almost complete absence of demonstrations and other forms of struggle on the part of the unemployed. This sort of thing is very dangerous, for the bourgeoisie and the reformists can more easily deal with each movement separately than they could if the two movements—of the unemployed and employed—proceed simultaneously.

Finally, the unemployed organizations—committees and councils of unemployed in the majority of cases work extremely badly.

All this can be explained by the fact that the Communist Parties, Red Trade Unions and Trade Union opposition work badly and much too little among the unemployed.

Despite the fact that in the parties and organiations indicated there are sufficient forces available, the work has been, and is still, carried on among the unemployed in general, and not chiefly among the entirely destitute sections of the unemployed—and it is to this section that the majority of the unemployed belong.

In the work among the unemployed, the organization of demonstrations and processions has always predominated, and still predominates, without this method of work being linked up with the organic, permanent activities of the committees and councils of unemployed, such as fighting against eviction of unemployed, against the introduction of new rationalizing measures and a longer working day in the factories, which throw ever-growing armies of new workers on to the streets; the organization of demonstrations is not linked up with the creation of children's dining-rooms, with the organization of a systematic continuous powerful pressure upon State and municipal institutions with a view to getting from them temporary assistance for unemployed or aiming at the introduction of unemployment insurance, the organization of the unemployed to help in strikes of workers in the factories, and so on.

In a word, the demonstrations are not linked up with the organic, persistent, day-to-day work on all questions which might be d interest to the broad masses of unemployed and the employed. In this connection it should be mentioned that the slogans of the Communist Parties and the revolutionary trade union movement are frequently too abstract and incomprehensible, and defeat their own ends in mobilizing the unemployed and drawing the broad masses of unemployed into the movement.

The relations existing between the revolutionary trade union movement and the unemployed workers' movement have also not helped to broaden' the unemployed workers' movement. In England a National Unemployment Workers' Committee has existed for many years, but until recently it has not had either formal or actual connection with the Minority Movement and the struggles of the workers. In Germany, until quite recently, the unemployed workers' movement was attached to the trade union opposition, and in America it was attached to the weak red trade union, which are few enough in number. The association with the "red trade unions" and "revolutionary trade union opposition" drove away the unemployed who belonged to other political parties and to the reformist, catholic and other trade union organizations.

Joint Action of the Employed and the Unemployed

In the development of joint action of the employed and the unemployed, little progress has been made. While the unemployed workers have in almost all cases fought side by side with the employed workers in strikes, the mobilization of the employed to fight for the demands of the unemployed has made little progress. Only in the miners' strike did we put forward joint demands for the strikers and the unemployed in the hunger marches organized. The fight for the 7 hour day, the struggle against rationalization and the stagger plan. has not been pressed forward. In the fight for the unemployed in only a few instances did we develop demands for part-time workers. The fight against forced labor (which is increasing on Government work) and the maintenance of union rates on all jobs, has received little at tention

Accidents in the Iron and Steel Industry

Taken from a forthcoming pamphlet, Dangerous Jobs, issued by the International Pamphlets, written by Grace M. Burnham, of the Labor Research Association.

(Tron and Steel Accidents, by Labor Research Association.)

MUCH has been written in the employers' press in praise of the safety work of the United States Steel Corporation and its subsidiaries, which was started in 1926. Two things must be kept in mind, however, when discussing this work. In the first place, up to 1926, the death and accident rate in the steel industry was nothing short of a scandal. Men were actually caught up in the molten steel and burned alive in the red hot mass. There was no compensation insurance at the time. Damage suits piled up. The companies began to see the financial gain in preventing accidents and thus preventing unwelcome publicity as well as damage suits.

So safety education was started by the U. S. Steel Corp. for plain business reasons. This safety campaign was merely feature of capitalist rationalization. Its investment of $4,000,000 in safety education during 10 years is claimed to have brought a return to stockholders of $9,000, 000. "The men who direct the policy of this corporation," states the Bulletin 11 of the United States Steel Corp., "have never lost sight of the fact that the first object of any company is to make money for its stockholders."

The sufferings of the workers in steel can never be told in cold figures: the swoop of gigantic overhead cranes, the terrific noise, the unbearable intensity of the heat, the utter exhaustion of the workers who are forced to war with molten metal 12 hours a day (or night) 7 days a week. But even when crushed and burned bodies are reduced to statistics, careful analysis of the figures reveal conditions for the majority of the workers in the industry to be far from safe.

In 1907 the accident frequency rate, per 1,000, 000 hours exposure, in the steel industry had reached the high figure of 80.3. During the years 1913 to 1929 plants doing intensive safety work had cut the rate from 60 to 18. But only about half the workers in the industry are employed in such plants, and even within this "safety" group, many plants and certain processes show rates far in excess of the average reported, with increase in both the severity and frequency of accidents. In steel foundries, for example, the rate for 1927 had risen to 51.60 as against 48.10 for 1926. Certain steel plants in 1927 reported rates as high as 151.86, 111.60, 101.71, while in one foundry the rate was 411.61. These are the figures for plants doing safety work.

For the other parts of the industry, the U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics estimates the average frequency rate to be not 10.2, but closer to 50. For foundries reporting for the years 1920-24

Red Sparks

Who Runs This Column, Anyhow?

We used to think that I did. But now we're "onsartin." Maybe you noticed that some of these sparks joined the Tammany Hall crowd and became repeaters. That wasn't our fault. You see, in actual fact, we editors might as well run along home. We don't get any pay anyhow; and the chaps in the printshop run the paper, anyhow. And that's just how they run it. It appears that the other day they liked some of our Sparks so much hat they put them in a couple of times. Sort of an encore. We've begged them to desist. Enuf said.

Ain't It Awful, Maybelle?

The capitalist cartoonist, J. N. Darling, is just too darling for anything. More, he's trying to hog the Pulitzer prizes for both anti-Soviet cartoons and anti-Soviet journalism.

He has visited Soviet Russia and is horrified: "All Russia looks as if the bosses have disappeared and left the help in charge."

But, dang it all: "As I watched these people day after day and looked to see if any one among them showed signs of loneliness for the absent aristocracy, I found none."

How sad! And what's more: "There are many things which the Russian populace grievously mourn the lack of, but the list does not, so far as I could discern, include a landlord."

Still worse: "There is not even a merry-goround, with a wheezy old calliope, in all Russia!" Worse yet: "They have no table manners."

BUT: Although "Janitors and office boys are in charge"—"They finally get something done." AND MORE: "No wonder they like it. They are not starving."

Which is more than Darling can truthfully stay about the janitors and office boys of America. But to him-Russia "is inexpressibly dismal."

POSTSCRIPT: However, there's one thing that capitalist artists do when they go to the U.S.S.R.; they come back and write things and draw things. But when the John Reed Club sends a delegation of supposed proletarian artists and authors, they come back yawning empty in too many cases and produce nothing save a vast wonder of what the hell they went over for And it is our humble opinion that if the Soviet Union doesn't inspire a proletarian artist or writer, it is questionable if he is artist or writer, and almost certainly not a proletarian.

Beware the narcotic squad: "You must not only listen to the dope we are giving out here, but join the I. L. D. Come tomorrow night to our English Branch meeting of the I. L. Danville Section can now serve as an example for a good start in shop work to all other sections in this district and many more sections in other industrial districts.

The following achievements were made in this section since the last Party District Conference.

A Mill Nucleus of four members was organized in one of the mills in the Section. Steps are being taken now to activize this nucleus. Three shop groups have been set up in three of the biggest Textile Mills in this Section with about eight workers in each. One group has issued the first Mill Bulletin in the shop. One thousand copies will be distributed in the mill.

How Was This Done? The Party conference discussed the main decisions of the 13th Party Plenum, which impressed the comrades not only with the need of shop organization, but also with the possibilities for this work. The district buro worked out in detail the plans for immediate work. Danville Section was selected to be given the first attention. The District Organizer went to Danville and worked with the comrades there for two weeks. He did not merely assume the job as an instructor, but also going with the comrades to workers' homes and discussing conditions and grievances in the mills. We learned that the workers believe that the Reds are good fighters. The only ones who can win better conditions for them. But that it is too dangerous to get connected with the Reds as the mill-owners fire every one who is connected with them.

We had to convince the workers that we know how to protect them from being fired. As a result of our conversation with them, the workers then proposed methods of inside shop work

The Most Dangerous Form of Opportunism in Practice

We cannot help the situation by declarations that the Communists in the shops are poisoned with opportunism and with unwillingness to work in the shops, nor by the conception that . our weaknesses can be overcome by disciplinary measures, expulsion, etc. The most dangerous form of opportunism in practice that hinders us from building the shop nuclei does not appear among the Communist workers in the shop, but in the approach of our functionaries to them. The fear of the difficulties of shop work by the Communist worker is be cause of the fact that we do not know HOW to carry out this work. ALL the attention of he Party must be concentrated on HELPING r comrades in the shops to solve their prob-(Frein the main resolution of the 13th num.)

organization we can prevent the firing of the most militant workers from the shops, by presenting the grievances to the boss in an organized manner instead of an individual attempt to fight back. The workers told us that many individual workers have been fired for telling the boss to go to hell or even going into a fist fight with the boss. We explained to them how to fight against the rotten conditions affecting all workers, and the need of united organized action.

On the basis of this experience we learnt: Only through more help and attention to individual workers in the shops, by discussing every step we take in shop work with the workers in that shop, developing the initiative of individual Party members and other militant workers and building the confidence of those workers in themselves can we achieve real shop organization and lay the basis for our Party rooting itself in the factories.

Lets get some real competition from other sections and more experiences in Shop Work.

"LABOR AND TEXTILES"

Labor and Textiles analyzes the crisis in cotton and wool and tells in a factual and dispassionate manner an almost unbelievable story of speed-up, women workers. unemployment, night work and industrial feudalism. The authors show the movement of the cotton mills from New England to the South and its effect on the workers in both districts: whole families living in company owned shacks which they are allowed to occupy so long as they furnish a quota of hands to the looms, children forced out of school into the mills, the struggle of the workers to improve their condition—Lawrence, Gastonia, Passaic and New Bedford.

dred delegates were assembled who brought with them over 100 resolutions, a large number of block delegates are indirectly are against the Diswhich directly or indirectly are against the District and International fakers of the U. M. W. A. Probably never before were such a large number of resolutions introduced, which in unmistakable words speak of the treacherous role played by the misleaders of the U. M. W. A. Here is a quotation:

"Resolved, that Local Union No. 492, of Springfield, Ill., calls upon the delegates to the District Convention to demand on the first day of the convention the resignation of every district official, and in case they refuse to resign that they be placed on trial in that convention by the delegates and that the delegates take over the functions of the convention and operate it in a method that will solidify our ranks and adopt a program free from coal operators' influence that will blaze the way for action nation-wide of the oppressed mine workers."

A number of local unions from different parts of the state had similar resolutions and demanding elections in the U. M. W. A. directly by the miners themselves. For Struggle.

Five local unions adopted a resolution calling on the miners to set up an Illinois District Unity Committee of the miners from the pits, which is to map out a militant program based on struggle.

The same local unions adopted a resolution formulating demands and to prepare for a strike to enforce these demands.

"Resolved, that the scale committee shall formulate the final draft of demands, taking into consideration the following: (1) A weekly minimum wage; (2) abolition of the bug light; (3) abolition of the Cardox system of shooting coal, as a dangerous method; (4) full payment for yardage in all narrow work; (5) enforcement of all present state mining laws; (6) creation of others to safeguard miners at work; (7) no discrimination in apy form against Negro and foreign born miners; (8) immediate unemployment relief, and for unemployment insurance; and be it further

"Resolved, that our organization of miners if necessary takes on a role independent of corrupt officials, and that our efforts be based upon a militant program of action."

Also, these very same local unions introduced resolutions demanding the release of the organizers of the National Miners' Union arrested in Franklin County and held on charges of criminal syndicalism, and for release of all class war prisoners.

A local union from Gillespie declares: "That the delegates in this convention go on record condemning the action of the International Union for not supporting those innocent miners in Kentucky who are facing the electric chair."

Score Walker's Paper. Likewise, resolutions have been introduced demanding suspension of the Illinois Miner, which is the official organ of the Walker gang in the U. M. W. A., published at the expense of the miner. age pension.

Those resolutions indicate the growing discontent and radicalization of the miners of Illinois and that the miners are beginning to realize that their worst enemies are the fascist and social fascist officials of the union. Ray Edmundson, who headed the so-called rank and file movement, no longer has the same support as a few months ago because it has become clear to the miners, as some of his supporters stated during the caucus meeting of the convention that this "rank and file movement" of Edmundson's was sanctioned by Lewis and also supported by Lewis for the purpose of winning radical miners away from the N. M. U. into support of the Lewis machine in Illinois. About this Edmundson movement, the resolution of 5 local unions states: "Whereas, in Illinois the so-called 'Rank and File' movement of recent origin proved itself incapable of leading the miners into struggle, betraying the Orient strike. and proving its policies do not fit into the present situation."

For Real Leadership.

More than any time before, there is a need of independent leadership of the miners in Illinois in struggle against ever worsening conditions in the mines, speed-up, stagger system and unemployment and against officialdom of the U. M. W. A. of all factions, Lewis, Walker, Edmundson, etc. Such a leadership can be given only by the National Miners' Union and developed by applying a united front from below, uniting miners in the local unions and mines on the basis of immediate concrete demands and issues uniting membership of the N.M.U. with U.M.W.A. into the local Miners Unity Committees of Action.

A statement of the N. M. U., submitted to the delegates of this convention, stated: "To develop an independent leadership of the miners headed by the Unity Committee of Action, who are composed of rank and file miners and of the National Miners' Union, and to sever relations with both the district and international organizations of the U. M. W. A., be it of Lewis, Walker, Edmundson, Watt, or any other misleaders and fakers. To cease payment of dues to any district, national organization or fraction of the U. M. W. A., and to keep dues in the local unions and work for affiliation of the local unions with the National Miners' Union."

From the report submitted to the convention by the Secretary Treasurer of District 12 of the U. M. W. A., Walter Nesbit, we see that the membership in District 12 has been dropped from 98,985 in 1923 to 41,472 in 1930 of which only 26,953 have been employed in the mines. In other words the majority of the miners in the last few years have been disemployed in the mining industry and, therefore, have been driven away, tens of thousands who remain are on the point of starvation and there are already cases of deaths from starvation in the coal fields. But there is no starvation in the officials' families of the U. M. W. A. The financial report submitted by faker Nesbit shows that the up-keep of the bunch of fakers costs miners approximately $1,000,000 a year-and employing some 150,000 workers, the rate fell only 2.3 from the 1907-24 average, while in 1925 it rose to 65.9, almost the highest point in 18 years. In puddling mills the rate rose from 47.1 in 1917 to 51.7 in 1925, while in forge shops the rate in 1925 was 79.7. The rise in accidents in spite of the scientific advances in medicine and safety measures are due to speed-up and rationalization.

Diseases in the Iron and Steel Industry The iron and steel industry has a bad record of trade diseases. The excessive heat of the furnaces, with temperatures as high as 220 degrees, and the intense glare of the burning metals, are bound to injure the internal organs of the body as well as the eyes of the steel worker. Heat stroke, exhaustion, and heat cramps are the more acute results of such exposure in an industry notonous for long hours and night work. "Gassing" is also common. In one such accident in Pennsylvania in 1919, 55 men were "gassed." The men were relining a blast furnace. The company had been warned that the methods used would lead to fatal results, but they went ahead nevertheless. Twenty-five of the 55 workers paid the price with their lives.

Asthma, bronchitis, tuberculosis and even internal hemorrhages are recognized hazards in the trade. They result from breathing gritty dust and sand and from constantly filling the lungs with poisonous gases and fumes. Heart disease with many workers collapsing and dying on the job is a direct result of the terrific heat, hard work and long hours. Rheumatism from sudden changes from heat to cold, as workers with steaming bodies are exposed to drafts, leads to much permanent suffering.

In spite of regulations which are supposed to control the heat, and dust, foundries continue for the most part to be filthy, dusty, suffocating places where workers become sick and die. In the sand blasting departments air is so filled with sand that most of the men have to quit the job within a year. Some shops make this the time limit for employing a worker.

Brass foundries are particularly dangerous because of the dense, whitish green poisonous fumes rising from the molten brass as it is poured into the molds. "Brass chills" is the name given to this type of poisoning. Furnace men have the worst of it. Next come the brass pourers. Braziers and galvanizers also suffer. Attacks of "brass chills" may yast as many as 20 hours. Over one-quarter of 212 New York brass workers examined by the U.S. Public Health Service averaged attacks of "brass chills" once a week. Heart disease was found among 17 per cent of one group of molders examined and among one-third of the workers in another group. Hardening of the arteries was found among over one-third of the workers in both groups examined. Almost a million workers are employed in the steel mills and foundries of the United States. With over ten million workers unemployed in the crisis, rear of 1931, hours for steel workers still average 54.6 for a full-time week. One fourth of the workers in the steel industry are still on the 7-day week, and 11 per cent of the blast furnace men are on the 12-hour day.

A guy named Erlicher, who "started as an office boy," has been appointed purchasing agent of the General Electric Co. Ask the other office boys if he didn't have to be more than just an Erlicher.

Wages of "teel workers in the United States are lower than in any other country in relation to the total value produced by the workers. The average American steel worker produces 81 tons of pig-iron for $100 in wages, while his English brother produces 41 tons for the equivalent in wages. But that is not enough for the United States Steel Corporation and its stockholders. Wages must be still further reduced to protect the profits of the owners of steel shares and the stock exchange gamblers who trade in them. Wage slashes of 10, 15 and 20 per cent are already common in the crisis winter of 1931-32. The steel workers are unorganized. Slav and Negro, Hungarian and Italian-the policy of the corporations is to keep them divided. How far this policy can be carried in the face of starvation, disease and death, remains for the workers to decide. Only an industrial union, uniting all steel workers on the basis demands of shorter hours, a living wage, and safe work places, can put an end to the horrible conditions.. (Section from a forthcoming pamphlet "Dangerous Jobs" by Grace Burnham, of the Labor Research Association. Pamphlets to be published by the International Publishers.
