MELLON’S WARS

By HARVEY O’CONNOR

Mellon’s influence is felt throughout the United States, and nowhere more so than in Wall Street. His name is synonymous with finance and money, and his influence is felt in every corner of the country. Mellon was a wealthy man, and his fortune was built on the back of the working class. He was a key figure in the early days of the stock market, and his influence was felt for many years to come.

Every day of hard work is in the air, and Mellon’s money is at stake. His influence is felt in the stock market, and his influence is felt in the lives of the working class. Mellon was a wealthy man, and his fortune was built on the back of the working class. He was a key figure in the early days of the stock market, and his influence was felt for many years to come.

49th STATE IN WALL STREET’S UNION

By J. S. MATHEWS

Wall Street Unionism

The article in the March 1934 issue of Business Week, which appeared in the New York Times as the result of the American Empire Against War and Fascism, gives us a glimpse of the trends in Wall Street unionism. The article states:

“Wall Street unions are on the increase, and the trend is clearly towards the establishment of a strong union movement in the financial centers. The unions are organized around the large banking houses, and the demand for unionization is growing as the result of the depression. The unions are demanding higher wages, better working conditions, and improved benefits.

The unions are most successful in the smaller banking houses, where the employees are more aware of the need for unionization. The large banking houses are more resistant to unionization, but the trend is clearly towards the establishment of a strong union movement in the financial centers.

The unions are demanding higher wages, better working conditions, and improved benefits. The unions are most successful in the smaller banking houses, where the employees are more aware of the need for unionization.
STUDENTS BETRAYED
by ROBERT MOSES LEVY
Professor of French, University of Illinois

In an article in the New Republic, Mr. Francis B. Brown, President of the American Federation of Teachers, noted that the case of a number of students who had been expelled from the University of Illinois was a matter of grave concern. He said that it was essential that the careful investigation of the charge be conducted immediately, and that the results be made known to the public.

Brown pointed out that the case was one of the most serious in the history of the University, and that it was urgent that steps be taken to prevent similar occurrences in the future.

A SEAMAN SPEAKS
by FRANK ROES

As a seaman who has spent many years at sea, I can speak from experience when I say that the conditions on board ships are often unsatisfactory. The work is hard, and the pay is low. In addition, the hours of work are long, and the conditions of living are often poor.

Many seamen have told me that they feel they are not getting a fair deal. They say that they work hard and are exposed to dangers, but that they do not receive a fair share of the profits. They feel that the owners of the ships are making large profits, while the seamen are getting very little.

In some cases, the conditions are so bad that the seamen are forced to work for less than the minimum wage. This is a violation of the law, and it is wrong.

Schools--Not Battleships

By JOHN DARBY

In the midst of the United States, there is a war going on that is tearing the nation asunder. It is a war of words, a war of ideas, a war of the mind. It is a war that is being fought in the schools, in the streets, in the homes, in the hearts and minds of the people. It is a war that is being fought for the sake of the future generations of this country.

In the schools, the teachers are being forced to choose sides. They are being asked to teach the students what the government wants them to learn. They are being forced to teach the students what the government wants them to think. They are being forced to teach the students what the government wants them to believe.

In the streets, the people are being forced to choose sides. They are being asked to vote for the candidates that the government wants them to vote for. They are being forced to vote for the candidates that the government wants them to vote for. They are being forced to vote for the candidates that the government wants them to vote for.

In the homes, the parents are being forced to choose sides. They are being forced to discipline their children in the way that the government wants them to discipline their children. They are being forced to discipline their children in the way that the government wants them to discipline their children. They are being forced to discipline their children in the way that the government wants them to discipline their children.

In the hearts and minds of the people, the fear is growing. The fear of the future is growing. The fear of the unknown is growing. The fear of the government is growing. The fear of the war is growing.

The war that is being fought is a war of ideas. It is a war of the mind. It is a war of the heart. It is a war of the future. It is a war of the nation.

The war that is being fought is a war of the schools. It is a war of the streets. It is a war of the homes. It is a war of the people.

The war that is being fought is a war of the United States. It is a war of the world. It is a war of the future. It is a war of the nation.
Rehearsal at Chaco

The most spectacular event in the history of the American Museum of Natural History was the reenactment of the ancient Chaco culture. The museum's archaeological team, led by Dr. Joseph Elmore, directed a massive effort to recreate the ceremonial dances and rituals that once took place in the Chacoan ruins.

Featuring elaborate costumes, intricate choreography, and a cast of hundreds, the reenactment was a scholarly and cultural achievement. It was held in the museum's vast atrium, where visitors could witness the authenticity of ancient Chacoan life.

Joseph Elmore

Archaeological Director

The museum team worked tirelessly to ensure historical accuracy. They examined the artifacts, studied the ruins, and consulted with experts in the field. The result was a spectacular event that brought the ancient Chacoan culture to life for modern audiences.

The museum plans to continue these kinds of reenactments in the future, using the knowledge gained from this groundbreaking event to further our understanding of the past.
MUNITIONS IN THE STRUGGLE

- Does Fight serve a real purpose?
- Do you want a powerful organization against War and Fascism in the United States?
- Will you help the American League Against War and Fascism to become such an organization?
- We want five hundred individuals to free the staff of the American League Against War and Fascism from daily problems of meeting rent, wages, telephone and postage bills. Activities for some time to come will barely pay for themselves, leaving nothing for overhead.

WAKE UP, PHILADELPHIA!

We have had encouraging orders for FIGHT from many sections of the USA.

Los Angeles orders 1000 copies Denver—500; New York City is selling about 2500, etc., etc., etc.

Where is Philadelphia?
FIGHT is the easiest magazine of all to sell.
People like it!

Steel Workers Like FIGHT
The steel workers like the paper FIGHT very much and we found, in our experience, that the paper was delivered, no matter how thick, to many steel works—so of course the paper men are going to sell it.

We Shall Try
You have been a new paper and only in the first few weeks we have been able to get the paper at a reasonable price. I also think that the one can put every effort into selling information on the papers what we have and have kept up in front of the workers of FIGHT.

Los Angeles Orders 1000 FIGHT
It's a wider good magazine... send us 1000 copies of the January number.

Veteran Editor and Writer Is Pleased
Congratulations on your recent issue. There is so much strong prose and in the usual humanist tone that it is exciting and inspiring to see someone take it out and make it the best magazine in recent years with brilliant articles and great makeup.

From Great Britain
When I asked here I wanted a copy of your magazine, and read every article... FIGHT is a beautiful paper. I suggest that you put an appeal in the Industrial Union to write for FIGHT.

From a Virginia Editor
The two issues of FIGHT strike me in the type of staff that should be distributed widely. Their liberal, progressive, national and international workers should read it and as well as Steel Field, wire and sheet. Congratulations on the work.
