AN INJURY TO ONE IS AN INJURY TO ALL

The Industrial Union Bulletin

OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF THE INDUSTRIAL WORKERS OF THE WORLD

"LABOR IS ENTITLED TO ALL IT PRODUCES"

Vol. I No. 11, CHICAGO, MAY 11, 1907.

50c a Year.

Eyes of the Labor World on Trial at Boise

Special Correspondence of "The Bulletin" Shows Gravity of the Situation -- The Defense Counsels Moderation Upon All -- The "Mob" Ready to Start Something That May Be Charged to the Defense -- The Preston-Smith Trial

By WRAY F. PARKS.

Boise, Idaho, May 15, 1907.

The eyes of the labor world are fixed upon theIdaho court room as the trial of the trial of the Preston-Smith affair approaches. The defense and the prosecution are both being conducted with moderation, as is the custom in American trials. The jury is composed of twelve men, and the trial is expected to last about two weeks. The defense is expected to be based on the theory that the defendants acted in self-defense, and the prosecution is expected to be based on the theory that the defendants acted with malice.

The Preston-Smith trial is of great importance to labor, as it will determine the future of the Idaho miners. The miners have been striking for higher wages and better working conditions, and the trial will be a turning point in the strike. The defense is expected to argue that the miners are justified in their actions, and the prosecution is expected to argue that the miners are not justified.

The trial will be held in the Idaho courthouse, and the jury will be sequestered during the trial. The trial is expected to be held in secret, and the public is not expected to be allowed to attend.

The trial will be a test of the strength of labor in Idaho, and the outcome will be of great interest to all laborers. The miners are determined to stand their ground, and the trial will be a test of their determination.

The Preston-Smith trial is of great importance to all labor, and the outcome will be of great interest to all laborers. The miners are determined to stand their ground, and the trial will be a test of their determination.

The Preston-Smith trial is of great importance to all labor, and the outcome will be of great interest to all laborers. The miners are determined to stand their ground, and the trial will be a test of their determination.

The Preston-Smith trial is of great importance to all labor, and the outcome will be of great interest to all laborers. The miners are determined to stand their ground, and the trial will be a test of their determination.
INDUSTRIAL UNION BULLETIN

SATURDAY, MAY 11, 1907

BACK TO FIRST PRINCIPLES

It is an excellent thing now and then to return to the basics, especially if these basics are sound. In doing this we are not implying that there is any sort of misunderstanding or disagreement. The purpose of this issue is to remind our readers of the fundamental principles that underlie the Industrial Workers of the World, and to encourage them to review these principles in light of the current events.

The Industrial Workers of the World (IWW) is a union that was founded in 1905. Its goal is to organize all working people into a single union, regardless of their occupation or industry. The IWW believes that the only way to achieve this goal is through direct action, which means that workers must take control of their own workplace and thereby gain the power to negotiate with their employers.

The IWW also believes that workers must organize themselves into a single union, regardless of their occupation or industry. This is because only by working together can workers gain the power to negotiate with their employers. The IWW also believes that workers must organize themselves into a single union, regardless of their occupation or industry. This is because only by working together can workers gain the power to negotiate with their employers.

The IWW is a union that was founded in 1905. Its goal is to organize all working people into a single union, regardless of their occupation or industry. The IWW believes that the only way to achieve this goal is through direct action, which means that workers must take control of their own workplace and thereby gain the power to negotiate with their employers.

The IWW also believes that workers must organize themselves into a single union, regardless of their occupation or industry. This is because only by working together can workers gain the power to negotiate with their employers. The IWW also believes that workers must organize themselves into a single union, regardless of their occupation or industry. This is because only by working together can workers gain the power to negotiate with their employers.

The IWW is a union that was founded in 1905. Its goal is to organize all working people into a single union, regardless of their occupation or industry. The IWW believes that the only way to achieve this goal is through direct action, which means that workers must take control of their own workplace and thereby gain the power to negotiate with their employers.

The IWW also believes that workers must organize themselves into a single union, regardless of their occupation or industry. This is because only by working together can workers gain the power to negotiate with their employers. The IWW also believes that workers must organize themselves into a single union, regardless of their occupation or industry. This is because only by working together can workers gain the power to negotiate with their employers.

The IWW is a union that was founded in 1905. Its goal is to organize all working people into a single union, regardless of their occupation or industry. The IWW believes that the only way to achieve this goal is through direct action, which means that workers must take control of their own workplace and thereby gain the power to negotiate with their employers.

The IWW also believes that workers must organize themselves into a single union, regardless of their occupation or industry. This is because only by working together can workers gain the power to negotiate with their employers. The IWW also believes that workers must organize themselves into a single union, regardless of their occupation or industry. This is because only by working together can workers gain the power to negotiate with their employers.

The IWW is a union that was founded in 1905. Its goal is to organize all working people into a single union, regardless of their occupation or industry. The IWW believes that the only way to achieve this goal is through direct action, which means that workers must take control of their own workplace and thereby gain the power to negotiate with their employers.

The IWW also believes that workers must organize themselves into a single union, regardless of their occupation or industry. This is because only by working together can workers gain the power to negotiate with their employers. The IWW also believes that workers must organize themselves into a single union, regardless of their occupation or industry. This is because only by working together can workers gain the power to negotiate with their employers.

The IWW is a union that was founded in 1905. Its goal is to organize all working people into a single union, regardless of their occupation or industry. The IWW believes that the only way to achieve this goal is through direct action, which means that workers must take control of their own workplace and thereby gain the power to negotiate with their employers.

The IWW also believes that workers must organize themselves into a single union, regardless of their occupation or industry. This is because only by working together can workers gain the power to negotiate with their employers. The IWW also believes that workers must organize themselves into a single union, regardless of their occupation or industry. This is because only by working together can workers gain the power to negotiate with their employers.
LOCAL EXECUTIVE BOARD

SATURDAY, MAY 11, 1907

PREAMBLE OF THE I. W. W.

The working class and the employing class have nothing in common. There can be no peace as long as hunger and poverty are found among millions of working people, and the wealth of the world is held in the hands of a few. When the working class becomes conscious of this fact, and organising as a class, it will be organised as the working class for the purpose of raising its own standards of life. Between these two classes a struggle must go on until one or the other is exterminated. The employing class do not woven to make peace with the working class, and will not make peace without exterminating it. The working class, on the contrary, will not make peace with the employing class. Either class can make peace with the other, but only on its own conditions, in a way that will maintain its own standards of life. With the rapid growth of the trade unions, the employing class will lose its hold over all the members of the working class, and the trade unions will be able to make peace with the other class only on the conditions which will maintain the standards of life of the working class. The working class, in the course of time, will make peace with the employing class. Between the working class and the employing class there can be no other way.

ITS UP TO US

BY DON M. RUTHERFORD

The working class and the employing class have nothing in common. There can be no peace as long as hunger and poverty are found among millions of working people, and the wealth of the world is held in the hands of a few. When the working class becomes conscious of this fact, and organising as a class, it will be organised as the working class for the purpose of raising its own standards of life. Between these two classes a struggle must go on until one or the other is exterminated. The employing class do not woven to make peace with the working class, and will not make peace without exterminating it. The working class, on the contrary, will not make peace with the employing class. Either class can make peace with the other, but only on its own conditions, in a way that will maintain its own standards of life. With the rapid growth of the trade unions, the employing class will lose its hold over all the members of the working class, and the trade unions will be able to make peace with the other class only on the conditions which will maintain the standards of life of the working class. The working class, in the course of time, will make peace with the employing class. Between the working class and the employing class there can be no other way.

INDUSTRIAL UNION BULLETIN

[Continued from previous page]
Recent Defeat of Carmen’s Union at San Francisco

Thompson After Fakers

The following announcement has been sent out by local 61 of the Carmen’s Union from the International Union of Railway Electricians in Chicago.

The International Union of Railway Electricians, in Chicago, has requested the local 61 of the Union to negotiate with the Pacific Electric Railway Company for a new contract.

The request was made by the local 61, which represents the Carmen’s Union, and was accepted by the Pacific Electric Railway Company.

The new contract will go into effect on May 1, 1907, and will run for one year.

The pay scale is as follows: $1.00 per hour for the first month, $1.25 per hour for the second month, and $1.50 per hour for the third month.

The time has been fixed at 8 hours per day, 6 days per week.

The number of men employed will be determined by the management.

The contract also provides for the establishment of a pension fund, payable upon retirement.

M. E. TRAUTMANN
310 Bufton Temple
Chicago, Ill.