The Argument to Dismiss Case

Attorney Clarence Darrow for Defense Analyzes State's Testimony--Shows that No Evidence Has Been Presented Connecting Haywood with Orchard's Crimes--Declares the Case Should Not Go to Jury

THE ONLY THEORY

That was the essence of the evidence which the prosecution presented to the jury of the trial of John H. Haywood, when Mr. F. A. S. Hersey, who has been the leading counsel for the defendant, opened his defense argument. The essence of the evidence was: that when a man was shot in Chicago, the man was shot three or four days later in Missouri, and that Haywood was the man who killed him in Chicago and that he committed suicide in Missouri.

The defense attorney opened his argument by pointing out that the defense attorney did not believe in the theory that had been presented by the prosecution and that he would not try to disprove the theory of the prosecution, but that he would try to show that the evidence did not prove the theory.

Constitutional Amendments

The Constitution of the United States, as amended, provides for the enumeration of the industrial workers of the world. The amendment is to be submitted to the states for ratification. The amendment provides that the industrial workers of the world shall have the right to organize, to form, associate, and to engage in the labor movement, for the purpose of advancing the economic and political rights of the workers. The amendment is to be included in the Constitution as an amendment to Article I, Section 8, of the Constitution.

LEARN WHAT IT IS

INDUSTRIAL COOPERATION

The Industrial Workers of the World is an organization of workers who believe in the principle of industrial cooperation. The I.W.W. is founded on the belief that the workers of the world will not only organize themselves, but they will also organize the instruments of production to cooperate with each other.

The I.W.W. is a revolutionary organization. It is not interested in any temporary or partial reforms. It is interested in the permanent and complete solution of the economic problems of the working class.

The I.W.W. does not believe in strikes as a means of accomplishing its aims. It believes in the use of legal means and the force of public opinion to bring about the desired results.

The I.W.W. is not afraid of the law. It is not afraid of the courts. It is not afraid of the police. It is not afraid of the army. It is not afraid of the government. It is not afraid of anyone.

The I.W.W. is not afraid of any man. It is not afraid of any woman. It is not afraid of any child. It is not afraid of any animal. It is not afraid of any plant. It is not afraid of anything.

The I.W.W. is not afraid of any idea. It is not afraid of any thought. It is not afraid of any dream. It is not afraid of any vision. It is not afraid of any future.

The I.W.W. is not afraid of any present. It is not afraid of any past. It is not afraid of any present. It is not afraid of any future.

The I.W.W. is not afraid of any power. It is not afraid of any influence. It is not afraid of any authority. It is not afraid of any control. It is not afraid of any domination.
