NOTES FROM NEW YORK

As it is some little time since New York, it should be remembered that the Industrial Union Bulletin has been in circulation for nearly a year and a half, and that the relations of labor to the capitalist class are far from being settled. New York is far from being a city of charity for the workingman, and the social and political movements are still in the process of development. The workingman must continue to fight for his rights and privileges, and the solidarity of the working class must be strengthened.

Close up the Gaps
Every Man Do Something

By E. T. WASHINGTON

Close up the gaps. It is the slogan of the moment. It is the slogan which the I.W.W. is striving to make effective.

Close up the gaps. The I.W.W. is fighting for every inch of ground. The I.W.W. is fighting for the right of every man to work and to have work, to have the right to live and to be free.

Close up the gaps. The I.W.W. is fighting for the right of every man to live and to have work. The I.W.W. is fighting for the right of every man to live and to have work.

Close up the gaps. The I.W.W. is fighting for the right of every man to live and to have work. The I.W.W. is fighting for the right of every man to live and to have work.

How Social Institutions Came Into Existence Through Changing Methods of Production

FROM THE PAST TO THE FUTURE

By ROD W. HARRIS

In a world of unrest and conflict, it is only natural to seek some sort of explanation for the origins of social institutions. This article attempts to provide such an explanation by examining the role of changing methods of production in determining the nature of social institutions. The thesis is that the development of new methods of production has led to the creation of new social institutions.

One of the most important changes in the methods of production in recent years has been the rise of the automobile. The automobile has revolutionized transportation and made possible the development of a new social institution - the car pool. This has led to the creation of new social institutions such as the car pool club and the car pool association.

Another important change in the methods of production has been the development of the computer. The computer has revolutionized the way we work and has led to the creation of new social institutions such as the computer club and the computer association.

In conclusion, it can be seen that the development of new methods of production has led to the creation of new social institutions. The future will undoubtedly see even more changes in the methods of production, which will lead to the creation of even more new social institutions.

Old Craft Union Insurance Demonstrated Fallacy - Argument Advanced for General Insurance for all Workers

By Wm. E. Peterson

An editorial, "Old Craft Union Insurance Demonstrated Fallacy - Argument Advanced for General Insurance for all Workers," was published in the December 7, 1907, issue of the Industrial Union Bulletin. The editorial argues that the old craft union insurance system is a fallacy and that a general insurance system for all workers is needed.

The editorial states that the old craft union insurance system is based on the idea that workers can only be protected by joining a union and paying dues. However, the editorial argues that this system is a fallacy and that a general insurance system for all workers is needed.

The editorial argues that a general insurance system for all workers would be more effective than the old craft union insurance system. The editorial states that a general insurance system would allow all workers to be protected, regardless of whether they join a union or not.

The editorial concludes by calling for the implementation of a general insurance system for all workers.

O'NEILL EXPLAINS IN LIES AND SLANDERS

From the Albany Magazine

A recent editorial in the Albany Magazine has been cited as evidence of the growing trend toward lies and slanders in the press. The editorial was written by J. J. O'Neill and was published in the issue of October 15, 1907.

The editorial begins by criticizing the New York Times for its recent treatment of the Trusts. O'Neill states that the Times has been consistently biased in favor of the Trusts and has failed to provide a fair report of the facts.

O'Neill then goes on to criticize the other newspapers for their slanders and lies. He states that the newspapers have been using lies and slanders to try to discredit the Trusts and to make them appear worse than they actually are.

The editorial concludes by calling for a return to honest journalism and for the newspapers to be held accountable for their lies and slanders.

INDUSTRIAL UNION BULLETIN

PREAMBLE OF THE I. W. W.

The working class and the employing class have nothing in common. There can be no peace so long as hunger and want are found among millions of laboring men and women. There can be no security against the future for any class of men until all have security for themselves. The working class and the employing class are inevitably in conflict. There can be no real peace so long as labor is not at peace. This is the great lesson that must be learned if humanity is to make a real and lasting progress. And it is a lesson that must be learned by all who labor and who possess. The cause of the working class is the cause of all mankind.

The cause of the working class is the cause of all mankind. The struggle of the working class is the struggle of all mankind for freedom from压迫. The struggle of the working class is the struggle of all mankind for freedom from oppression. The struggle of the working class is the struggle of all mankind for freedom from exploitation. The struggle of the working class is the struggle of all mankind for freedom from poverty. The struggle of the working class is the struggle of all mankind for freedom from hunger. The struggle of the working class is the struggle of all mankind for freedom from want. The struggle of the working class is the struggle of all mankind for freedom from ignorance. The struggle of the working class is the struggle of all mankind for freedom from disease. The struggle of the working class is the struggle of all mankind for freedom from suffering. The struggle of the working class is the struggle of all mankind for freedom from tyranny. The struggle of the working class is the struggle of all mankind for freedom from militarism. The struggle of the working class is the struggle of all mankind for freedom from imperialism. The struggle of the working class is the struggle of all mankind for freedom from war.
