I.W.W. "RED SPECIAL" OVERALL BRIGADE

On its way through the Southwest.

In the course of the strike in the Southwestern states, the I.W.W. "Red Special" has passed through many interesting incidents and some very comical situations.

One of the most amusing of these occurred in the town of El Paso, Texas. A group of I.W.W. men, dressed in their distinctive red suits, were proceeding down the street when they met a group of police officers in uniform. The police officers stopped the I.W.W. men and demanded to see their papers. The I.W.W. men replied that they had no papers, but they were nonetheless permitted to continue on their way.

As the I.W.W. men continued on their journey, they met a group of farmers who were protesting against the high cost of living. The I.W.W. men joined in the protest and began to chant slogans. This caused a commotion among the farmers, who tried to stop the I.W.W. men. However, the I.W.W. men simply walked away, leaving the farmers to sort out their own problems.

The I.W.W. "Red Special" is a group of men who are dedicated to the cause of industrial unionism and who are willing to do whatever it takes to achieve their goals. They are a strong and determined group of workers who are not afraid to fight for what they believe in.

The I.W.W. is the true voice of the working class and it will not be silenced. We stand for the rights of all workers and we will not rest until those rights have been achieved.
ON THE ADVANCE

A new development appears to be in Philadelphia, for L. W. W. is on the move, and its new paper—its own—appears to be the forerunner of a new wave. The trend towards self-publishing is evident in this city, and the strides made during the past year are indicative of the fact that the newspaper is now the weapon of the unionist.

IN IT TO BE A REPETITION OF MONROE?

A new appeal for a national working-class organization on the lines of the American numerical union movement is being made today by the recently-formed Industrial Union Committee, among the workers in the building trades. This movement is an outgrowth of what is known as the "Monroe District Plan," against the industrial violence in the building trades. A district gang is gathered to witness a peaceful labor action and is acting in the same spirit that the workers of the past were acting.

The Monroe District Plan was an attempt to bring a national organization of all workers in the building trades and to stop the inflation of wages that was causing a great deal of trouble. The movement was successful in stopping the inflation of wages, but it failed to prevent the conflict between the capital and labor.

The Industrial Union Committee is attempting to bring about a similar union movement among the workers in the building trades. The committee is trying to prevent the conflict between capital and labor by bringing about a national union of all workers in the building trades.
