GOVERNMENT POWER AND WHAT ABOUT IT

(By C. M. Male)

WASHINGTON, May 18, 1915.

Yesterday, I was told that there had been an incident at Washington, in which a number of laborers were arrested and taken to jail. The incident arose out of a strike for higher wages and better working conditions at the United States Steel Corporation's plant at Washington.

The strikers were demanding an increase in wages and the establishment of a grievance committee to settle disputes. The company, however, refused to negotiate and dismissed the strikers.

The strikers, who were mostly veterans of World War I, were given no notice of the dismissal and were suddenly fired. They attempted to organize a picket line outside the plant, but were met with violence from the company's security force.

Several of the strikers were injured, and one was severely beaten. The police were called in to break up the strike, and the strikers were arrested and taken to jail.

The incident has caused much concern among labor leaders, who see it as a prelude to a possible government crackdown on labor rights. They have called for the immediate release of the arrested strikers and the establishment of a fair and just process for resolving labor disputes.

The government's response has been mixed. Some officials have expressed support for the strikers and their demands, while others have urged the strikers to return to work and refrain from striking.

The situation continues to unfold, and the government will likely be forced to take a decision on how to handle it.

THE BIG STRIKE GROWS IN MONTANA

KALISPELL, May 18, 1915.

We have just received reports of a large strike in Montana, involving thousands of workers in the mining and smelting industries.

The strike began several days ago, and has since spread to several other counties in the state. The strikers are demanding better wages and working conditions, as well as the establishment of a union to represent their interests.

The mining companies, however, have refused to negotiate and have promised to fire any workers who participate in the strike. The situation has become increasingly tense, with reports of violence and damage to property.

The government has been slow to act, and has not yet made any public statement on the matter.

Do not believe the Eureka Lumber Company strike is over.

The Eureka Lumber Company strike, which has been going on for several weeks, has not yet been resolved. The strikers are demanding an increase in wages and the establishment of a union to represent their interests.

The company, however, has refused to negotiate and has threatened to fire any workers who continue to strike. The situation has become increasingly tense, with reports of violence and damage to property.

The government has been slow to act, and has not yet made any public statement on the matter.

TWO BIG I. W. W. STRIKES

The homes of miners and the homes of woodsmen in Idaho are on strike and the big drive is utterly treacherous. Old timers, men who know how to live, are starting out to get something to eat, but they are hungry and they are hungry and they are hungry.

The woodsmen are striking to get higher wages and better conditions, and the miners are striking to get higher wages and better conditions. The authorities have arrested and imprisoned many of the leaders of the miners, but the miners are still on strike. The authorities have arrested and imprisoned many of the leaders of the woodsmen, but the woodsmen are still on strike.

One of the big I. W. W. strikes is the miners' strike in Idaho. The miners are striking against the coal companies, and they are striking against the mine owners. The miners are striking for higher wages, better hours, and better working conditions.

The other big I. W. W. strike is the woodsmen's strike. The woodsmen are striking against the lumber companies, and they are striking against the lumber owners. The woodsmen are striking for higher wages, better hours, and better working conditions.

The authorities have tried to break the miners' strike by using force, but they have failed. The miners are still on strike, and they are still striking. The authorities have tried to break the woodsmen's strike by using force, but they have failed. The woodsmen are still on strike, and they are still striking.

These two big I. W. W. strikes are a fight for the working class. They are a fight for the working class against the capitalist class. They are a fight for the working class against the employer class. They are a fight for the working class against the bourgeoisie class.

Thee County Handicap — A Great Sale

Modern civilization was celebrated on April 18th at Kinneloa, Iowa, by church and town, each to do with a repast. One of the choicest dishes was the "Kelly's Dripping," a dish which was as rare as it was delicious. The potatoes were cut in thick slices and then baked in the oven. The pepper was placed in the middle of the sliced potatoes and then baked until it was done. The potatoes were then served with a dressing of melted butter and sour cream. The dish was a hit and was a great success. The potatoes were served with a side of roasted brussels sprouts and a green salad. The meal was a great success and was enjoyed by all.
