THE SLUM PROLETTARIAT

The W. W., especially the W. W. in the East, has been accused of being a "dope" by its opponents, or distinguished from them later opponents, because of its slum character. In the East, where the root of the thing is, this is just the truth, and anyone who has traveled over a hundred counties in the East, and who has seen the homes of the W. W., can tell you that the statements made about the W. W. are all true.

The W. W. is not a political party, but a collection of people who have been thrown together by the same class of circumstances. They are the poorest of the poor, and they live in the most overcrowded and poorest of the slums. They are the people who have been driven from the cities, and who are now living in the most congested and poorest of the slums. They are the people who have been driven from the cities, and who are now living in the most congested and poorest of the slums.

THE CONSTITUTION—
RULE OF THE I.W.W.

PALPEHAN.

The four leading principles enunciated by the industrial workers in the advancement of their class are: (1) the necessity of the international control of labor; (2) the necessity of the control of the means of production; (3) the necessity of the organization of the industrial workers in the world; and (4) the necessity of the working class as a whole to unite in order to achieve its ends. These principles are the foundation of the I.W.W., and they are enshrined in the Constitution. All members of the I.W.W. must subscribe to these principles and work for their realization.}

ARTICLE IV.

The constitution of the industrial workers in the world is to be the supreme law of the land, and all members of the industrial workers in the world must be bound to obey its provisions. The Constitution is to be amended by a two-thirds vote of the membership of the I.W.W. at any meeting at which a quorum is present. All amendments must be submitted to the membership for a vote, and if adopted by a majority of the members present at the meeting, the amendment shall become a part of the Constitution. Any member of the I.W.W. may suggest an amendment to the Constitution, and the Constitution shall be amended whenever a majority of the members present at the meeting, and if adopted by a majority of the members present at the meeting, the amendment shall become a part of the Constitution. If a proposal for an amendment is submitted to the membership for a vote and is not adopted by a majority of the members present at the meeting, the amendment shall not become a part of the Constitution. A member of the I.W.W. may withdraw a proposal for an amendment at any time before the vote is taken.}
