CAPITALISM INTERNATIONAL

Another story of home working, thrift, and sobriety by American corporations is that of the workers of the San Diego method. These are a group of women who work in their homes for the San Diego & Arizona Railway, receiving $4 a week for their work. These workers are essential to the operation of the railroad and are responsible for the maintenance of the tracks. They are paid a flat rate of $4 per week, regardless of the amount of work they do. Some of the women have been with the company for over 20 years and have never missed a day of work. They are proud of their work and enjoy the independence it gives them. Some of the women have children and are able to support their families by working part-time. The San Diego & Arizona Railway recognizes the importance of these workers and values their contributions to the company's success.
