AGITATE, EDUCATE—ORGANIZE—FIGHT FOR THE EIGHT HOUR DAY

A COAL MINER APPEALS FOR HELP

A CLEAUS MINER SPEAKS AT OLYMPIA—SAYS LAWYERS ARE AMBASSADORS FOR THE MINERS KILLED DAILY—COUPLES ARE NOT FORGOTTEN IN THE STRUGGLE.

Agitating for the eight hour day has been a cause for coal miners for years. A miner, who is more than ever a 'claim miner', is a man who has seen and has experienced the fact that the miner's wages are not enough to support the family. He is a man who has seen and has experienced the fact that the miner's wages are not enough to support the family. He is a man who has seen and has experienced the fact that the miner's wages are not enough to support the family.

The report suggests the proposed miner employment law has been effective in the elimination of some forms of child labor. However, it also points out the need for further research and action to address the issue completely.

THE FACTOR: COAL MINER'S STORMY DAY.

The miner's day at work is a stormy one. The mine is dark and damp, and the noise of the machinery is deafening. The work is hard and dangerous, and the miner is constantly exposed to hazards. But despite these challenges, the miner perseveres, knowing that his work is essential to the success of the industry.

On the job, it is a matter of trying to find a way to make ends meet in a world where wages are low and the cost of living is high. The miner must work long hours, often in dangerous conditions, in order to support his family.

The miner's life is one of struggle and sacrifice. But through it all, he perseveres, knowing that his work is essential to the success of the industry.
