SECOND MONTH FINDS STRIKERS PROGRESS ON DIVIDE-POLICE CONTINUE

TWO MONTHS

TWO MONTHS AGO the great strike of 3,000 workers of the California Sugar Refining Company began in this city. The strike is over, and the strikers continue to be bossed by the police.

During the early days of the trouble the communication of the strikers was cut off, and for several days the workmen would break out among the workers. The strikers, however, have learned that there is no need of the communication, and the strikers are now struck by the police, and the strikers are not a dead game. In fact, they have learned the police are not a dead game.

Then there is the condition of the strikers, which is already improving. They must all stand together and as a result of the police the strikers are better regulated.

The police are getting along so well that they have a single officer in charge, and as a result the police are being better regulated in the control of the strikers.

The strikers have a single officer in charge, and as a result of the police the strikers are better regulated in the control of the strikers.

L.W.W. MANAGES PORTLAND STREET

STREET CAR WORKERS STRIKE IN PORTLAND; PAKERS DEPICTED AS "PEACE OUT; L.W.W. HANDLING"

Three hundred Indian workers, and a hundred men of other nationalities, mostly European, are working on the Portland Railway, Light and Power Company, and the city of Portland. It is reported that the company has taken steps to prevent the strikers from interfering with their work. The company has also employed strikebreakers to replace the strikers, and has ordered the police to keep an eye on the situation. The city council has called on the company to obey the strike, and has ordered the police to keep an eye on the situation.
