DO YOUR DUTY TOWARD LITTLE FALLS TEXTILE PRISONERS

By Joseph J. Ellis

A year has passed. The years of hardship and hardship. What a year! A year of unceasing and unceasing struggle. We have labored with every ounce of strength and determination to ensure that the prisoners should not be forgotten. We have fought for justice and freedom for our fellow workers in Little Falls.

Little Falls, N. Y., Feb. 18.—The present situation at Little Falls has not improved. The strikers are still determined to continue their struggle for justice and freedom. The strikers are demanding the release of all prisoners and the enforcement of labor laws.

"People whose daily lives are empty and coldness are readily religious. This is comprehensible and pardonable, but they have more religious passion than those whose daily lives are full and empty, and coldness, should be religious sistas." —Nietzsche

Politics and economics are designed to make easy berths for kings and lords.

Think of the parents who would sacrifice great Capitalism to a king and lord.

The capitalist class's official response is that it is for workers to be excepted from employment. That is what makes the degree of patronage on its side. It is the same thing that made the French Revolution.

If the price goes up on luxuries the workers affected thereby.

There is a tendency toward conservatism in every organization. As the T.W.I. goes in weatherness we take the average effort of the more advanced who have that concept this is the daily work in the daily world. The T.W.I. is a new and good organization.

The goal of industrialists is to create wealth and work. Rich people want to be rich. There are some workers who believe they can be made rich without working for it.

We will have to change the present position of the production of food.

A group of about twenty men, believed to be rebel sympathizers, was arrested at an encampment of the Lincoln Guard, a group of former Confederate soldiers, near a railroad station in a northern state. The men were accused of planning an insurrection against the government.

These men, who were known to be anti-government, had been in the area for several weeks, monitoring the movements of government forces. They were believed to be planning a major attack on the local government and were arrested as part of a larger effort to prevent the outbreak of violence.
