LOGGERS STRIKE IN COOS BAY

The Denver of Cape L. O'Connell, Ore., re-ceived all loggers who were in W. I. A. or predecessor camps who left at once and went to the W. I. A. hall in Manzanita, Ore. Local 205, which is the head office of the W. I. A. in that district, has called a strike of all Cape L. O'Connell loggers. By May 12 the strike at Cape L. O'Connell had spread to the entire timber industry in the vicinity.
There are about 200 loggers and 300 other employees in Manzanita. The Ross district of the coast is dead.

The men are demanding a twenty-five cent increase in wages.

The time is ripe for a large strike in Coos Bay and the bosses are already trying to break the ranks of the lumbermen. It was in this region that the early Bartlett Naples impression gained its greatest strength.

Some of the grievances are:
1. Wages to be increased in accordance with the standard scale of the International Labor Union.
2. The company to provide suitable quarters for the men.
3. The company to provide first aid and medical service.
4. The company to provide adequate provisions for the men.

The strike is expected to spread to other areas and the company is at a loss to know how to handle the situation.

No DONT'T SHIP TO PILCHUCK

I have never met any of the loggers in the vicinity
in the pilchuck region and they are in no way restraining the strike. In fact, I have been advised that the two sides are making progress and that the strike will be settlement.

The Oregon loggers are well organized and it is in their interest to keep the company from exploiting their unions.

WATICH LITTLE FALLS CASES

The Little Falls case is making headway in the courts.

The Boss has been ordered to pay $1200
for the damage done to the property.

The case is expected to be heard by the Supreme Court of the United States.

NOT BY A DAM SITE

People claim in a dam near Great Falls, Mont., is said to be leaking.

The Great Falls are a series of cascades which are fed by the Missouri River.

The dam is expected to hold back a large amount of water and cause the river to rise.

The people living near the dam are warned to prepare for floods.

The dam is expected to be completed
by the end of the month.

In commemoration of the death of Joseph Mikolasek

In commemoration of the death of Joseph Mikolasek, who was murdered by the authorities and vigilantes of San Diego, Cal., on May 2, 1913, a memorial service was held at the largest service at their 1912 Law.

Proliferated Miller delivered the sermon.

The service ended with the audience singing the hymn of the Pacific Northwest. The spirit of vigilance is thus carried on.

The service was followed by a speech by the mayor and a prayer by the clergy.

The service was concluded with a benediction by the Reverend Mr. Smith.

THE SPIRIT OF REVOLT

The I. W. W. is a revolutionary union, industrial in form, direct in its methods and open in its ultimate purpose. While better immediate conditions are fought for, they are merely incidental to the main object of building an organization strong enough to hold the place of the institutions now in existence and to form the basis of production in the new social order. The I. W. W. can never afford to gain in membership at the cost of the realization of its principles, for out of the union movement comes the real force of revolution. Our outward form may be imperfectly copied by other bodies, but our history of continuous and unbroken struggle unites us in a higher and greater work.

The spirit of revolt must be preserved naturally. The very idea of the labor movement is based on the struggle for the improvement of the working people — the working people must be freed. In the struggle for the improvement of the workers, the working people are the only ones who can be freed. It is the Workers' own spirit of revolt that must be preserved at all costs.

The Workers' movement is the only one that can save the Workers. The only way to save the Workers is to preserve the spirit of revolt against any kind of slavery.

THE TRAMP

You called him a tramp when you greeted him. You have a house, a wife and children by your side, a steady job. In other words, you have the privilege and the responsibility of providing the comforts of home for those who tell you, "You are a tramp."

But what made him a tramp? Do you think he was just some man who chose to be a tramp? Not at all. He was the result of a society that forces men to become tramps. He was the result of the capitalist system.

It is not his fault that he is a tramp. It is the fault of society. It is the fault of the capitalist system. It is the fault of the capitalist system that makes men tramps.

But the truth is, the tramp is a man who is trying to make a living. He is a man who is trying to earn a living. He is a man who is trying to survive. He is a man who is trying to keep his head above water. He is a man who is trying to stay alive.

The tramp is a man who is trying to keep alive. The tramp is a man who is trying to survive. The tramp is a man who is trying to keep his head above water. The tramp is a man who is trying to stay alive.

THE HARD WORKER

You called him a hard worker when you greeted him. You have a house, a wife and children by your side, a steady job. In other words, you have the privilege and the responsibility of providing the comforts of home for those who tell you, "You are a hard worker."

You think he is some man who chose to be a hard worker? Not at all. He was the result of a society that forces men to become hard workers. He was the result of the capitalist system.

It is not his fault that he is a hard worker. It is the fault of society. It is the fault of the capitalist system. It is the fault of the capitalist system that makes men hard workers.

THE LABORER

You called him a laborer when you greeted him. You have a house, a wife and children by your side, a steady job. In other words, you have the privilege and the responsibility of providing the comforts of home for those who tell you, "You are a laborer."

You think he is some man who chose to be a laborer? Not at all. He was the result of a society that forces men to become laborers. He was the result of the capitalist system.

It is not his fault that he is a laborer. It is the fault of society. It is the fault of the capitalist system. It is the fault of the capitalist system that makes men laborers.

But the truth is, the laborer is a man who is trying to make a living. He is a man who is trying to earn a living. He is a man who is trying to survive. He is a man who is trying to keep his head above water. He is a man who is trying to stay alive.

The laborer is a man who is trying to keep alive. The laborer is a man who is trying to survive. The laborer is a man who is trying to keep his head above water. The laborer is a man who is trying to stay alive.

THE UNION MAN

You called him a union man when you greeted him. You have a house, a wife and children by your side, a steady job. In other words, you have the privilege and the responsibility of providing the comforts of home for those who tell you, "You are a union man."

You think he is some man who chose to be a union man? Not at all. He was the result of a society that forces men to become union men. He was the result of the capitalist system.

It is not his fault that he is a union man. It is the fault of society. It is the fault of the capitalist system. It is the fault of the capitalist system that makes men union men.

But the truth is, the union man is a man who is trying to make a living. He is a man who is trying to earn a living. He is a man who is trying to survive. He is a man who is trying to keep his head above water. He is a man who is trying to stay alive.

The union man is a man who is trying to keep alive. The union man is a man who is trying to survive. The union man is a man who is trying to keep his head above water. The union man is a man who is trying to stay alive.

THE STRUGGLER

You called him a struggler when you greeted him. You have a house, a wife and children by your side, a steady job. In other words, you have the privilege and the responsibility of providing the comforts of home for those who tell you, "You are a struggler."

You think he is some man who chose to be a struggler? Not at all. He was the result of a society that forces men to become strugglers. He was the result of the capitalist system.

It is not his fault that he is a struggler. It is the fault of society. It is the fault of the capitalist system. It is the fault of the capitalist system that makes men strugglers.

But the truth is, the struggler is a man who is trying to make a living. He is a man who is trying to earn a living. He is a man who is trying to survive. He is a man who is trying to keep his head above water. He is a man who is trying to stay alive.

The struggler is a man who is trying to keep alive. The struggler is a man who is trying to survive. The struggler is a man who is trying to keep his head above water. The struggler is a man who is trying to stay alive.
The Tryal of Benjamin Legge

The trial of Benjamin J. Legge began on May 3, after a delay of nearly a month. The prosecution continued into its third week, but the defense rested on June 3. The case involved a dispute over the ownership of a piece of land in the town of Newburyport. The defendant, Legge, was accused of trespassing and interfering with the plaintiff's property. The trial was marked by intense public interest, and the outcome was closely watched by the legal community. Ultimately, Legge was found guilty on all counts and was ordered to pay damages and costs. The case set a precedent for future land disputes in the region.

Lowell Celebrates May Day

Lowell, the city of mills and manufacturing, celebrated May Day with a parade and a day of festivities. The city was abuzz with activity as people gathered to enjoy the warm weather and the festivities. The parade featured floats, music, and paraders dressed in colorful costumes. The day ended with a fireworks display, which lit up the night sky with a spectacular display of lights. The city was filled with joy and excitement as people celebrated the arrival of spring and the start of a new season.

Notice to Pacific Lumber Workers

Located on the shores of San Francisco Bay, the Pacific Lumber Company is one of the largest and most successful timber companies in the region. The company has a long history of providing employment and economic opportunities to the local community. However, in recent years, the company has faced challenges due to changing market conditions and increased competition. Despite these challenges, the company remains committed to its workers and continues to provide high-quality products and services to its customers.

A Study of the Behaviors of Certain Species of Primates

This study aims to understand the social behaviors of primates in their natural habitats. The research team has been observing and recording the behaviors of several species of primates, including monkeys, chimpanzees, and gorillas. The study is designed to help researchers better understand the social structures and dynamics of these species, which can provide valuable insights into human behavior and evolution. The study is ongoing, and the team is actively collecting data to support their findings.
