Defendants acted drugged at 'confession', doctor says

By William A. Reuben GUARDIAN special correspondent TRENTON, N. J.

THE prosecution's claim that the defendants in the trial of the Trenton Six signed voluntary confessions appeared to have been shattered last Friday by the doctor who examined the men three years ago, at the time of the signing.

When Dr. James Minor Sullivan 3d was sworn as a witness for the state on Thursday, this was his story beginning shortly after the murder of the junk dealer William Horner:

He had been called in to examine the defendants at the now-famous midnight "confession" signing ceremony in 1948. One week thereafter he was appointed to a $2,600-a-year job with the City of Trenton. At the first trial he testified that the defendants had in no way been mistracted during had in no way been mistreated during their five-day detention. A few weeks before the second trial was scheduled to begin last January (it was post-poned several weeks) Dr. Sullivan was given a $4,000-a-year post with the County. Prosecutor Mario H. Volpe described him as a "dis-interested observer, a member of the same race as the defendants."

THE BOMBSHELL: On Thursday, repeating the testimony he gave at the first trial, Dr. Sullivan said he had examined and questioned the defendants when they signed "confessions," that there was no sign of abuse, that none of the men made complaints to him.

This testimony followed similar tes-timony by seven policemen in the ten days since the jury was excused during the discussion of the admissability of the "confessions" as evidence.

In Portland, Ore., food prices in February were at an all-time high. In 1939 purchasing terms, Portland's food dollar had shrunk to 40c.

Dr. Sullivan resumed the stand on Friday morning and dropped a bomb-shell into the proceedings. He volunteered to list symptoms manifested by drugged persons and attributed some of these symptoms to each of five defendants who signed one of the al-"confessions

He described McKinley Forrest as in a state of excitement, shaking all over as he tried to take his clothes off"; James Thorpe as depressed and sug-gestible; Collis English as "highly nervous and confused"; John MacKen-sie and Ralph Cooper as having an ap-pearance that could have been induced only by drugs.

DEFENSE OBJECTS: In redirect examination the flabbergasted prosecutor read to the doctor extracts from his previous testimony. Defense attorneys bitterly argued that this was an improper attempt by the state to impeach the testimony of its own witness. Judge Ralph J. Smalley allowed the prosecutor to continue and himself participated in the questioning.

The judge pressed for an elaboration Sullivan's description of Forrest and the state's witness replied:

"Forrest was so afraid and excited that couldn't tell what was going on."

Volpe, reading from the record, re-minded the witness that he had attributed Cooper's appearance to lack of aleep, too much sleep, or the seriousness of the charges against him. Dr. Sullivan answered that no matter what he had testified to previously,

"the appearance of Cooper's eyes suggested to me the use of marijuana."

WITNESS UNSHAKEN: Then came the following questions about Cooper by Judge Smalley and Dr. Sullivan's

Q. [by Volpe]. What besides drugs might have caused this (state)?

A. I don't know of any other situation that would have put a person in a controlled state other than hypnosis.

Late Friday defendant Collis English was taken to the hospital for examination for a heart condition. There was some speculation that the trial might come to an abrupt halt if English's condition was serious enough to require lengthy hospitalization.

Franklin Delano Roosevelt

(b. Jan. 30, 1882; d. April 12, 1945)

We could get a world accord on world peace immediately if the people of the world could speak for themselves. Through all the centuries of recorded history . . . wars were made by governments. . . . They [the people] wondered whether the people themselves could not some day prevent governments from making war . . . to propose in this newer generation that from now on war by governments shall be changed to peace by peoples. -December 28, 1933

Industrial and agricultural production for a war market may give immense fortunes to a few men; for the nation as a whole it produces disaster. It was the prospect of war profits that caused the extension of monopoly and unjustified expansion of industry and a price level so high that the normal relationship between debtor and creditor was destroyed.

It is] hard for many Americans, I fear, to look beyond—to realize the inevitable penalties, the inevitable day of reckoning, that come from false prosperity. To resist the clamor of that greed . . . would require the unswerving support of all Americans who love peace.

—August 14, 1936 -August 14, 1936

Vast armaments are rising on every side and . . . the work of creating them employs men and women by the millions . . . Such employment is false employment; . . . it builds no permanent structures and creates no consumers' goods for the maintenance of lasting prosperity. We know that nations guilty of these follies inevitably face the day when either their weapons of destruction must be used against their neighbors or when an unsound economy, like a house of cards, will fall apart.

for any other cause than that of the victims of so-called mental hospitals.

I have pointed out to the NAACP, and to Tuskegee Institute, that in some states the Negroes are much worse treated than the white people in so-called mental hospitals, and that all the hard work of the institutions is done by the so-called patients as slaves; but they take the view that as long as the white people are also slaves—working for nothing, not even decent food and accommodations—there is no racial discrimination, so it is no concern of theirs. I wish some editor in this country would take an interest in this slavery.

SAY, FRIEND: What did you ever do with that postage-paid

SAY, PRIEND: What and you ever no with that postage-place subscription envelope we sent you last month along with an extra copy of the GUARDIAN? Didn't mislay it, did you?

It's been a month or more since the first ones went out, and everyone has had one for at least two weeks. Yet up to now the number to come back to us with new subs enclosed has been alarmingly small.

We of the GUARDIAN are really counting on you not to waste

We of the GUARDIAN are really counting on you not to waste that return envelope. We need the readers and the people around you can centainly use the GUARDIAN as an antidote to the poison-ivy press of this country.

So let's get together on this. The hard facts are that papers like the GUARDIAN have to be built by individual elbow grease—by YOU handing the paper to others and getting them to cough up $2 for their own subscription. That's the way the GUARDIAN has got as far as it has—matter of fact it is probably the way you got your own first copy.

YES, WE'VE TRIED (and are still trying) the "organizational approach" but we would be less than candid if we didn't admit that up to now this has been the same old merry-go-round that the campaign singers used to chortle about in '48.

We've offered handsome commissions and caught the checks for some rather monumental mailing bills, and some clubs have cooperated to the fullest; but up to now the results have been on the whole a goose-egg compared to the building job our own readers have done on this paper since the week it was born back

Hence we're back again on the old "Have you got four friends?" track—and we'll gladly settle for just one if you can find four who don't already get the GUARDIAN.

SO RETURN THAT ENVELOPE - don't pigeon-hole it, don't chuck it out in your spring cleaning; keep it up there on top of the heap and give it a chance to work on your conscience. Some one will pop up in your mind who ought to be a GUARDIAN subscriber if you can't think of anybody right off; and when that happens you'll have the postpaid sub blank right at hand.

Can we make it any easier?

Rayburn's war scare fell flat. Anger over the "trumped up world crisis," said the N. Y. Times, "gave impetus to a coalition drive against adoption of UMT." Even MacArthur's headquarters in Tokyo could find "no tendency" toward a Soviet build-up in Manchuria. Moscow denied it had any troops in Manchuria. The N. Y. Times' Moscow correspondent found no hint of crisis

MacArthur's role

But the Rayburn maneuver appeared to be only part of a dangerous game being played by U. S. policymakers. It coincided with London reports of 3,000 Soviet planes poised in Manchuria "to support the Chinese offensive." It was followed by reports published in Washington and India that MacArthur has authority to bomb China "under certain conditions." On April 5 the President refused to say that MacArthur had this authority but clearly indicated that he did by declaring it was cated that he did by declaring it was a technical military matter. The N. Y. Herald Tribune reported April 7:

Officials at the Pentagon . . . said there could be no question but that General MacArthur had the authority—implicit it not spelled out in so many words—to send his bombers over Manchuria air bases if the planes there began an all-out attack on UN forces in Korea. "follow the conventional pattern of meeting force with maximum counter-force as we never failed to do in the past...It seems the Communist conspirators have elected to make their play for global conquest, and that we have joined the issue thus raised on the battlefield; that here we fight Europe's war with arms, while the diplomats there still fight it with words; that if we lose the war to communism in Asia, the fall of Europe is inevitable; win it, and Europe most probably would avoid war yet preserve freedom. As you point out, we must win. There is no substitute for victory."

The MacArthur letter created a furore, especially in Britain. Labor MP Will Nally offered a motion in Commons saying that Britain has lost confidence in MacArthur. The Labour Government was not expected to permit the motion to be debated "even though it may privately share the sentiments expressed by Mr. Nally." (N. Y. Herald expressed by Mr. Naily." (N. Y. The Herald Tribune reported from that the Government had in London that the Government had in-structed its Washington embassy "to register a strong complaint" against the proposal to use Chiang's forces and Britain's "surprise that such a proposal could be made publicly by a military officer." This report was later diplomatically denied. But the British-U.S. split was widening.

split was widening.

WHO'S THE BOSS? In the U.S. the MacArthur clique in Congress demanded that a committee be rushed to Tokyo to consult the general "on strategy in the worldwide struggle against communism." The first substantial attack on MacArthur came from Sen. Robert Kerr (D-Okla.) who said:

"Parts of what he is doing could get us deeper into war instead of successfully ending the one we are already in."

White House press secretary Short said the Formosa policy was unchanged. (Administration Formosa policy is the foundation stone of the Mac-spring). The N.Y. World Telegram re-ported that the Joint Chiefs of Staff favor recalling MacArthur for open defiance of orders not to talk on political questions. The Times said a rebuke was more likely.

The most significant fact about the entire MacArthur incident was the Administration's failure to repudiate him for what could be regarded as an for what could be regarded as an open call for war. The press here and abroad played his statement as defiance of the President. But the evidence strongly suggested it was a trial balloon launched with Washington's approval. (The Peking radio reported April 8 that 24 U.S. B-29's and jets dropped that 24 U.S. B-29's and jets dropped more than 50 bombs in Antung in Manchuria near the Korean border.)

MacArthur's agitation for war with China, wrote Walter Lippman, "would strain to the breaking point our alliance with the British nations and Western Europe. It would widen—perhaps irreparably—the breach which has already been made between this country and the Arab-Asian bloc."

Europe's reaction

As a result not only of the MacArthur incident but also of U.S. conduct at the four-power meeting of deputies in Paris, the dangerous impression was spreading in Europe that the U.S. considers bargaining useless and war inevitable, CBS correspondent Howard K. Smith reported from London April 8. Smith, who had just returned from Paris, said that five weeks of talk have revealed that the U.S. has no terms for settlement, that the Russians have yielded on many points and the U.S.'s Jessup is afraid of the topic of German remilitarization.

British and French diplomats told him privately, Smith said, that they considered the U.S. position "wrong and dangerous." Europe's attitude toward the Paris talks was summed up by Britain's Manchester Guardian:

The Western deputies have gained their primary points on an agenda and to go on raising objections suggests that they do not really want a conference.

If there were no huge and expanding defense program in the picture and if there were no international situation that might turn decidedly worse almost overnight, there would be little doubt that the very large inventories in manufacturing and distribution channels — coupled with the sudden coyness of the buying public—would constitute the basis for expecting a general commodity price decline of major proportions.

The Big Scare is on, Mrs. Moos asserts

If civilization is to survive we must cultivate the science of human relation-ships, the ability of all peoples, of all kinds, to live together and work together in the same world, at Peace.

-Franklin D. Roosevelt

MRS. ELIZABETH MOOS, small, MRS. ELIZABETH MOOS, small, sprightly 61-year-old grandmother and an author of books on education, was busily at work abroad cultivating the science of human relationship, collecting material in Poland and Czechoslovakia for a new book. On Feb. 9 this year, along with Dr. W. E. B. DuBois, Abbott Simon, Kyrle Elkin and Sylvia Soloff, she was indicted for failure to register under the Foreign Registration register under the Foreign Registration Act as a representative of the U.S. Peace Information Center, which was dissolved last autumn.

Already abroad when the indictment was returned, Mrs. Moos could not have been extradited. But last week she came flying home—"on my own steam and of my own free will and fighting mad"—because "peace is the basic issue" and she was convinced she could best serve the cause of peace by stand-ing trial now with the others. At the airport she was promptly handcuffed and hustled off to be booked.

TRIAL MAY 15: She was released the same day on $1,000 bail; April 20 was set for a hearing on motions and the trial date was set for May 15.

Her main concern is to communicate

Her main concern is to communicate to Americans "the depth of the peace sentiment abroad." She said:

"The timing of our trial is significant—the world peace movement is now reachits peak. The purpose of the indictments was to frighten others from working for peace. If Americans knew the scope and strength of the movement abroad they would take heart; a danger of not knowing it is the feeling that they are fighting alone, a sense of isolation. The Americans must come to know that in working for peace they are part of an enormous world movement. The reverse of this is that Europeans are so surprised to meet an American standing for peace that they react like one woman I encountered: she invited me to ber home so her child could look at me. But wherever I talked to people, they assured me that they realize that the U. S. government, not the U. S. people, promotes a war spirit."

SCARE TACTICS: The House Committee on Un-American Activities took a hand during the week at frightening Americans from the peace movement; it issued a lengthy "report" describing the world "peace offensive" as "the most dangerous hoax ever devised by the international Communist, consuitthe international Communist conspiry," and containing a new smear list 350 prominent Americans who have sponsored or supported peace groups here and abroad

The State Dept. seized the passport of Mrs. Theresa Robinson, prominent Negro leader, a veteran Elk and long an active Republican, because she violated technical restrictions by attending the World Peace Congress in Warsaw last December. The National Labor Relations Board approved the discharge of a Wisconsin hosiery mill worker for signing the Stockholm Peace Pledge.

PEACE VS. DYNAMITE: In the min-ing regions of the Coeur d'Alene Valley in Idaho there was a series of violent acts against peace workers; the trailer home of one was dynamited; others were physically attacked; one nearly lost an eye. But a correspondent reports that "new forces are joining the fight."

A public opinion poll in New York's Greenwich Village showed 77.6% in favor of peace now in Korea; 75% against sending troops to Europe and

U.C. loyalty oath is ruled illegal

THE University of California one time was rated as one of the nation's best institutions of higher learning. Fourteen months ago its Board of Re-gents ordered its educators to sign a special non-communist loyalty oath as a condition of employment; since then the school's standing has declined sharply. Gone were 110 scholars, many of them at the top of their professions. Twenty-six were dismissed for refusal to sign the oath, 37 resigned, 47 refused to accept appointments. A total of 55 courses had to be dropped. More than 1,200 leading members of the academic world publicly protested the oath requirement; 20 professional societies and groups condemned the oath.

Of the 26 dismissed, 18 appealed the ruling. Last week the Third District Court of Appeals reached a unanimous decision: the oath is unconstitutional, the dismissed educators must be reinstated. The court held that the regular constitutional oath of allegiance is suf-

Top progressive choice is Rev. Warren L. Broussard, full-time longshoreman, part-time deacon, formerly a volunteer organizer for the CIO Oil Workers Union, chairman of the East Bay Harry Bridges Defense Committee, field ex-aminer for the Natl. Fair Employment

Foes shake backers of sales tax rise

STAID businessmen stood up in New

STAID businessmen stood up in New York's Hotel Biltmore last week and proposed picket lines, parades, stoppages and tax refusals by 103,000 N.Y. retailers. One said:

"They haven't got enough jails to put in 103.000 people at one time."

The rally was, called by Walter Hoving, president of Bonwit Teller and head of the Anti-Sales Tax Committee, to plan the fight against the proposed rise in the city's sales tax from 2% to 3%. He welcomed delegates from labor groups, right, left and center. Only the real estate interests were for the bill. Otherwise the city seemed solid.

Nevertheless, before the public hearing at City Hall on Friday, the skids had reportedly been greased, the tax rise a sure thing. Some 5,000 New Yorkers descended on City Hall Plaza that day. They filled the gallery, lined up at the microphone. Outside were pick-ets from the Distributive, Office and Processing Workers of America, the Union of department store and ware-house employees. house employees.

"COMPROMISE": Arthur Schutzes, executive secretary of the Americas Labor Party, speaking against the tax grab, asked that the city's needs be met via an accurate estimate of the city's revenue (underestimated this year by $44,548,474 to plead poverty), re-assessment of big real estate holdings, and a special session of the legislature to increase state aid.

When he finished, Bronx Council-

When he finished, Bronx Councilman Joseph Keegan asked him to step outside, said he might go along with a demand for a special session of the legislature. To Schutzer it seemed a tip-off to administration strategy: ask for a special session, pass the tax boost in the meantime. It would accomplish the Democratic administration's objective and throw the head back on the heavily Republican state legislature.

State Dept. defends McGee's sentence

WORLD-WIDE protests against Willie McGee's death sentence were worry enough to the Administration, but particularly worrisome was the size of the protest movement in England. The U.S. Embassy in London recently issued a bulletin asserting that McGee's lynch trials "have been in the best American tradition wherein justice is assured for all...." The State Dept. announced that it had obtained its information on the case from Mississippi's attorney general. The Civil Biobte Congress. The Civil Rights Congress general.

general. The Civil Rights Congress commented:

"The State Dept., by this action, stands exposed as an agent of the legal lynchers, it did not come to McGee's attorneys or to his wife, or to the witnesses who have offered to swear to his innocence. It went to the very forces who knowingly framed an innocent man on perjured testimony, and are sending him to the electric chair only because he is a Negro. . . The complicity of the U.S. government, particularly in the crimes committed by the Southern states against the Negro people, has been clearly brought out. . . ."

WHITE HOUSE DELUGED: In Laurel, WHITE HOUSE DELUGED: In Laurel, Miss., county prosecutor E. K. Collins, announced he would promptly arrest any one there working in McGee's defense. But around the rest of the country there were few towns, no large cities, where defense activities were not being whipped up to maximum pace. Telegrams, letters and postcards were flooding the White House urging Pres. Truman to intercede.

Lawyers Guild meets on rights violations

COR Friday evening and all day Saturday, April 13 and 14, the Consti-tutional Liberties Committee of the National Lawyers Guild scheduled a conference on civil liberties in New York's Willkie Memorial Bldg. Nineteen leading attorneys were listed as speakers. The Guild said:

PLEA FOR MARZANI: The Committee in Defense of Carl Marzani issued a new appeal for a letter-writing campaign to James V. Bennett, Director, Bureau of Prisons, Washington, D.C., urging an immediate parole. Marzani has already served more than two years of a one-to-three-year sentence, has twice been denied parole, and has been deprived of his time off for good behavior for a minor infraction of prison rules.

Pennsylvanians rally against new repressive legislation

DENNSYLVANIANS were scheduled to rally at Harrisburg April 10 in the face of the state legislature's worst offensive against freedom.

The non-partisan People's Lobby named the day People's Day and issued the call. Up for legislative action were

- Loyalty oaths from state employees with provisions threatening perjury prosecutions and blacklisting.
- The death penalty for "sabotage" (loosely defined) even in peacetime. (Already passed and waiting the governor's signature.)
- Registration of "subversives" ineluding those with suspect connections up to 5 years before the act's passage.
- New taxes on low income groups.

The Progressive Party threw its forces behind the lobby. A citizen committee, including former U.S. Supreme Court Justice Owen J. Roberts and Clarence Pickett of the Friends Service Committee was formed to oppose the bills. Also in opposition are the Baptist Ministers' Conference of Fastern tist Ministers' Conference of Eastern Pennsylvania, Americans for Demo-cratic Action, Pennsylvania State Federation of Womens Clubs, Jewish Com-munity Relations Council, Philadelphia CIO Council.

Progressives in Local 600 nominated

Dave Moore, Negro vice-president of the Gear and Axle Building in Ford to "end a 15-year shame." He got only Reuther was unopposed for the presidency.

APPLES AND RATS: The delegates gave little time to the record. (Auto workers wages have risen only 13c an hour since July, 1949, less than the increase in the cost of living.) They hastily considered wage stabilization, fair employment practices and the state of the nation—all in omnibus resolutions carrying no plan of action.

BOOKS Monopoly today more brazen than ever

By Charles Kramer

THE faceless Costello's diffident hands told a good story in the Kefauver investigation of the gambling monoand its hold on political machines. But there a real and more powerful monopoly whose hands a deep in government and who face is quite openly displayed.

Its members are the "privileged minority" Sen Fulbright vaguely referred to recently. Only it doesn't have to bribe government officials; it makes up a good deal of government itself. It doesn't slip them envelopes; it sets up million-dollar campaign funds. It doesn't send delegations to Washington; it moves right in-to Federal offices. It sets the prices you pay, the wages you get, decides your taxes and, quite possibly, determines whether you will live or die.

HERE THEY ARE: Labor Research Assn. has done a valuable job by giving the names of the privileged minority in Monopoly Today. Here are the 400 directors of the biggest 400 directors of the biggest firms, banks, railroads and insurance companies in America. Here are the cross-connections which tie them into eight or 10 smaller and more powerful groups which control the econ omy. And here is the sad truth we had better face: that despite 50 years of trust-busting and anti-monopoly suits, federal and state "regulation," investigation after investigation, the lords of monopoly grow more powerful than ever and fewer in number.

Monopoly Today shows you how they make the vital decisions and, as GUARDIAN has demonstrated, how big business domination works. You never voted for Charles (Morgan's GE) Wilson, but he decides how much you will eat and wear next year. You weren't called on to recognize Franco Spain or not, but Chase (Rockefeller) Bank shoved out a loan to Franco, the State Dept. opened the diplomatic doors and, tomorrow, some other monopoly representative will order the shipment of arms. The operations are not too secret except on occasion, as when Standard Oil bought control of Arabian oil fields "just coincidentally" a few days before the Truman Doctrine was

SUPPLY AND WHAT? Monopoly today tells you about the hypocrisy of "free enterprise," which means "freedom to control." GM defended its enor-mous profits as "necessary because otherwise in periods of production, prices ts would fall." In In other words, monopoly keeps prices high and there isn't any free competition; demand and supply don't determine prices book tells you how and why monopoly exercises these con-

But don't read it for its chills. Put it to work. There ought to be 400 supplements to this book, one in every state city. Progressives take the material in this book and make an audit of their own communities with it. Who runs your state or city? Who owns the banks, factories, real Who contributes to the Democratic and Republican political machine? Who gets the fat government contracts?

Your community survey may not be put on television, but it will be an exciting show for a long time to come.
