Cease-fire now WAR & PEACE becomes key issue at UN

WEEK of maneuverings in UN's Political Committee wound up with the U.S. and its allies lauding India's Korean truce resolution, and pressing for an immediate vote against a reluctant India which insisted on delay over the week-end. While Iraq and Denmark had offered amendments to bring the resolution close to U.S. desires, the attempt by most pro-U.S. delegates to persuade India to modify ments. Western spokesmen sought to picture the socialist member-nations as rejecting a compromise for peace accepted by everyone else. But Vishinsky said the Committee was making no real attempt at a solution since it was proceeding without "taking into account at all the views of the interested parties." Peking, he said, had already given India a "negative answer" on the resolution 48 hours earlier, but it in this direction-without formal amendments or debate—got results. In the words of Australia's Sir Percy Spender, the U.S. and its allies found the resolution capable "of being molded effectively to meet our wishes.

After India potentially tipped the balance of its proposed four-power POW Repatriation Commission in the West's favor by agreeing that the "um-pire" should be a fifth voting member, the U.S.S.R.'s Vishinsky first vigor-ously criticized the resolution, then India's Krishna Menon had not even mentioned this.

THE EMPTY CHAIR: Vishinsky offered as one amendment his own previous proposal of an 11-member commission (U.S., Britain, France, U.S.S.R., China, India, Burma, Switzerland, Czechoslovakia, N. and S. Korea) to take up all issues including POW repatriation and unification of POW repatriation and unification of Korea. His main amendment was an immediate cease-fire; willingness to accept this—to stop the bloodshed while disscussions went on—was, he implied, the real test of sincerity. He pointed out that the U.S. would still have the N. Korean and Chinese POW's while negotiations continued (a point while negotiations continued (a point made at the outset of the current UN discussions on Korea by Pakistan's Zafrullah Khan).

Peking cabled to Canada's Lester earson, current General Assembly Pearson, Pearson, current General Assembly president, that it supported the Soviet cease-fire resolution as the reasonable way to end the war. This—apart from Vishinsky's statement—was the only reminder that one of the great powers directly involved in the war was not represented in the debate on ending it.

NEHRU'S DILEMMA: Whatever the resolution's fate, it had indeed brought to a head the crisis of the truce talks, clarified some outstanding issues. These were some of the aspects and issues
the debate had pointed up:

Trial judge out of case; Sobell sent to Alcatraz

UDGE IRVING R. KAUFMAN, who sentenced Julius and Ethel Rosen-berg to death as "atom-spies," last week acceded to a defense request for berg to death as another judge to pass upon new mo-tions to invalidate the conviction and another judge to pass upon new motions to invalidate the conviction and set aside the sentence. The new legal move was assigned to Federal Judge Sylvester Ryan, who ordered a hearing for Monday afternoon, but postponed it to Tuesday when government attorneys were unready with their answering brief.

Attorneys for the Rosenbergs and Morton Sobell, convicted with them and sentenced to 30 years, had first appeared before Federal Judge Edward Weinfeld to ask that the hearing be assigned to a judge other than Kaufman; he found "no special circumstances" for such an order. But Judge Kaufman himself asked to be relieved after studying a 12-page affidavit signed by the Rosenbergs charging him with "personal bias, hostility, animus and prejudice against us." Though he called their charges "clearly insufficient" and said they "had a fair trial," he had decided to remove himself from passing on the motions "in the interests of judicial expediency" elf from passing on the motions "in he interests of judicial expediency." (Had he decided not to disqualify himself, his ruling would have been im-mediately appealed to a higher court; a decision there might have taken

"REASON ASSAILED": In their aifidavit, the Rosenbergs charged:

That Judge Kaufman's remarks upon passing the death sentence rested entirely on assumptions of fact which do not comport with truth or reality."

That his conclusions "assailed reason and the intelligent and informed mind;
they were an admixture of misinformation, sired by Ignorance, and of unfair syllo-gisms, erected on infirm premises."

• That the blame he placed on them "for a succession of national disasters" was in complete disregard of the trial record — "his only avowed source of in-formation" — and "contrary to the facts of history and science."

The petition to invalidate the conviction and set aside the death sen-tence was based, defense attorney Emanuel H. Bloch told the court, on "unfairness, fraud, perjury known to the authorities," and the contention —buttressed by affidavits of four internationally-known scientists (GUAR-DIAN, Nov. 27)—that the material allegedly transmitted to Russia was not secret but well-known. Further evidence of its non-secret nature was submitted in the form of more than 100 scientific journals, collected from all over the world, showing the "secrets" were public knowledge as early as 1940.

PRESSURE TO "TALK": During the week Sobell was removed from New York to Alcatraz. His wife gave this Week Sobell was removed from New York to Alcatraz. His wife gave this reason for his assignment to the toughest of federal prisons:

"They want him to name innocent persons as spies and admit a crime which he never committed."

Pressure on the Rosenbergs and Sobell to "confess" and name others has been constant since their conviction. It has been repeatedly suggested to them that Ethel Rosenberg might be freed entirely and Julius given a relatively light prison sentence in return for "tatking." In a prosecution-inspired series of articles beginning in the N.Y. Post Oliver Pilat wrote:

The Rosenbergs have apparently chosen to welcome... martyrdom. Only executive clemency or confession, it appears, can save them from the chair; and Julius Rosenberg apparently rejected the alternative of confession in mid-October after learning that the Supreme Court would not review the conviction,

The Rosenbergs have insisted from the beginning that they have nothing "confess."

VOICE OF THE WORLD: As the execution date (set for the week of Jan. 12) drew closer, supporters of the Committee to Secure Justice in the Rosenberg Case stepped up their activities. More than 2,500 persons overflowed Los Angeles' Embassy Auditorium, contributed $3,500 to the defense. Three of Canada's leading Jewish newspapers urged clemency. The N.Y. Times (11/28) published a letter from

I suggest a stag or a buffalo. The stag is a noble beast, gives warning in time of danger.

The buffalo is typically American, has stamina, strength, a great heart. Of course the buffalo is nearly extinct now. And he was not always too intelligent.

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.

When it comes to taxes Big Business never had it so good. For though they whine and moan, they pay no taxes. We have it on their own word.

Ralph Cordiner, president of General Electric, in a message to his dividend collectors, wrote: "Taxes are a cost of doing business, and corporate management has no choice but to recover these taxes through higher prices."

Whatever taxes are not passed on to us workers and consumers through higher prices result in "lowered profits." Profits are sacred and the reced rate must be maintained at the expense of the people. This Himalayan tax load is used to finance the arms program. The corporate glants take the profits but let the people pay the taxes and do the dying. We who work for a living are at the bottom of the tax pyramid. We cannot pass them on to anyone but must also assume the taxes of profiteers.

It is up to us super-taxed and befuddled cannon fodder to flood Eisenhower with demands that he make good his promise of tax relief. Tell him we want those moneybags who are so fond of war and armaments to pay for them themselves.

WILL STALIN PREDICTION PROVE ACCURATE?

The U.S.-British economic war gets hotter

By Tabitha Petran

As the Eisenhower administration assumes power, the crises in Washington's policies and alliances are coming to a head. One of the most serious of these sits at the head of the table at the British Commonwealth table at the British Commonwealth Conference which opened in London last week. "The most important economic meeting since the war" (Foreign Secy. Eden) marks a critical phase in the undeclared Anglo-U.S. war for control of the British Empire's raw materials and markets.

Proclaimed aim of the conference is to plan for

... the whole free world ... a new pattern of trade and payments to replace the old outworn one which is now characterized by a chronic imbalance between the dollar area and the other countries (N. Y. Times, 11/25).

WHAT U.S., BRITAIN WANT: Although the U.S. is not represented, its shadow lies over the talks in the grey British Treasury building opposite the House of Commons. Commonwealth countries like Canada, Australia, S. Africa, increasingly drawn out of the British orbit by U.S. loans and pressure, carry the ball for Washington, whose goals are:

Convertibility of sterling, backed by a dollar fund, (Convertibility — making sterling more freely exchangeable with the dollar—would subject the sterling area to Washington control.)

• Favorable conditions for U.S. private investment in the sterling area, coupled with long-term contracts for purchase of sterling-area raw materials, (This would consolidate U.S. control of capitali t-world raw material sources, provide a huge market for export of U.S. capital.)

London's aim is to maintain the terling area its own position as area.

sterling area, its own position as area banker; to maneuver, as it has with some success in the past, against the U.S. attack, while getting U.S. aid to suppress colonial liberation movements and help finance rearmament. But its defense of imperial positions at its own people's expense undermines its fight against U.S. domination.

Shrinking Western trade

Contraction of capitalist-world trade forms the backdrop for the confer-ence and the sharpening Anglo-U.S. economic war.

Between 1945 and 1952 the U.S. made available to Britain and W. Europe $26 billion in direct economic aid—roughly $500 from every American family. These countries had emerged from World War II with net income from foreign investments — which formerly bridged most of the gap between imports and exports—largely gone. Britain had lost about ¼ of its wealth, including $4 billion in U.S. securities.

U.S. "aid" was ostensibly to enable these countries to balance their trade. But in every year it totaled less than the amount its recipients were forced to spend on arms as the price of aid The results can no longer be ignored. HOW IT HITS US: In 1951 world trade, which reached a record 76 billion in dollar terms, was in real terms—discounting inflation and population growth—considerably less than the world trade of the late 1920's.

Even this much trade was more than the capitalist world could support the wave of import cuts in late '51 and '52 showed. The collapse of import capacities occurred even though U.S. '51 "aid" to its capitalist partners to make up dollar deficit totaled $4.5 billion. Import cuts by the sterling area, W. Europe, Latin America in turn helped produce a decline in U.S. exports beginning last May. U.S. non-military sales abroad have dropped 26% since the first quarter, total shipments the wave of import cuts in late '51 and since the first quarter, total shipments (including military) 18%.

1952's world trade will show great declines in real volume from '51 and probably in dollar value, too.

YAWNING GAPS: By mid-'52, when the Marshall Plan ended, trade deficits of Britain and Italy were double those of 1948, when it started; France's, $1\frac{1}{2}$ times as great. 1952's last half saw a worsening of the trade picture.

Britain narrowed the import-export gap in the 3rd quarter as a result of drastic import cuts last winter, helped by falling raw material prices. These cuts lowered food available to Britons and the raw materials needed by its key auto, shipbuilding, engineering, construction works. The London Economist (3/22/52) called this policy of balancing trade by reducing its volume "nonsensical save as a drastic and temporary expedient," asked what effects the cuts would have on production and exports. The effects are showing up in declining production and export ume, including engineering and other capital goods—a fall not yet reflected balance-of-payments figures. Prices of British exports are also falling.

France's imports exceeded exports by more than $1 billion in the first 10 months, with exports dropping 35% and to the dollar area, 40%. In Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands, the excess of imports over exports rose, especially with the dollar area.

The struggle for power

The growing trade crisis has bitten eep into dollar-and-gold reserves of deep the sterling area and W. Europe. The former, held in London, stand at less than $1.8 billion—less than half the

des Nation

$3.8 billion in the till in mid-1951.

The Commonwealth Conference will air many proposals to "ease the crisis"; but all will represent the struggle for power among the capitalist nations, rather than solutions, since the basic facts producing the crisis will be

The U.S.-dictated embargo on East-West trade has isolated the capitalist world from expanding socialist-world mar-kets. Trade between the two worlds is barely 2% of total trade among nations.

The weight of rearmament is destroy-ing markets within the capitalist world.

THE PEOPLE PAY: Since 1948 the capitalist world has spent over $200 billion on rearmament—a vast waste of raw materials, capital, manpower, plants, machinery for something totally unproductive. For this destructive waste, the people have paid:

In soaring prices—in every capitalist country living costs are up since 1948: 46% in France, 26% in Britain, 15% in Italy, 21% in the Netherlands, 24% in

In taxes, now at unprecedented highs and paid largely by the poor in the form of sales taxes (in France, for example, only wage earners—who make up 3,000,000 of the 3,800,000 who pay income taxes-pay both direct and indirect taxes).

In lower consumption of food and other necessities.

Spending by the people remains the motive power of capitalist economy; reduction of their capacity to spend is now seen in falling British and W. European production. In 1952's 2nd quarter, for the first time since the war, this area's industry failed to produce as much as in 1951's same period.

PRODUCTION DROPS: Britain's output dropped 6.6% in the 2nd quarter; Labour MP Harold Wilson told Parliament last month manufacturing output was 10% below last year; unemploy-ment is at a ten-year high. France's output dropped 3% in the 2nd quarter. 12% in the 3rd (a much deeper and longer seasonal decline than usual) with consumer industry hardest hit but heavy industry also down. Production declined 1 to 7% in Belgium, Nether-Luxemburg, Sweden, Denmark, Austria.

W. Europe has made new cuts in in-estment in industry, whose badly seded modernization was already vestment needed largely abandoned in 1948 in favor of rearmament. Present cutbacks further weaken its competitive position. Undertaken in the face of declining produc-tion and exports, these cuts "must spell disaster" (New Statesman & Nation, NATO's rearmament program for W. Europe, which had been based on a minimum 5%-a-year rise in production, is being cut this year from a planned $14 to $12 billion. This brought many predictions of NATO's imminent breakdown—designed presumably to in-fluence the new administration and Congress to get more aid.

Statin could be right

Spokesmen for the Washington-dictated policy of the capitalist world, now heading into serious crisis, admit some basic truth in Stalin's analysis of that world's growing difficulties—crowded as it is into an artificially-limited market —and his forecast of the eventual breakup of the capitalist alliance. Frederick Anderson, Mutual Assistance Program deputy representative in Europe, advised alliance members to ... examine the Soviet assumptions with close attention. They contain, he said, "a great deal of penetrating insight" ... (NYT, 11/10).

NYT's Michael Hoffman in Geneva (11/15) found.

He denied the accusation courageously and the judge sent him to jail for contempt; now his fellow-lawyers are trying to disbar him. He had a fine face and he was going to continue to fight.

I looked out beyond him and saw another face. It was a face which somehow I recognized. Paler, thinner and grayer than before, but I knew it. It was the face of a man who once was assistant of the librarian of Congress. Then he served the army as librarian in Japan, while his wife worked in Germany. After his wife worked in Germany. After some years it was said that he was a "security risk." His wife was not allowed to join him. Both were sent home. He could get no work.

Finally Czechoslovakia offered him a job in the state library. He and his wife boarded a Polish ship. The government refused it clearance unless the two were put off. They re-landed in their native land. They re-landed in their native land. For six years he had had no work. His face appeared gaunt across the

HERE are the contrary unreasonable variety of incidents which characterize the irrational. They are not simply wrong and evil—they are crazy in pattern. They are the mass crazy in pattern. They are the mass insanity of a group rather than the aberration of individuals. They represent the effort of individuals to follow the contradictory fashions and thoughts of others, and lead to monstrous results. In the end the nation develops a pattern which is evil; and individuals follow in wild, cruel deeds, which drives them incruel deeds, which drives them in-sane. Civilization falls.

Western world will split apart as a result of commercial rivalry and mutual throat-cutting, a consummation . . . that sober Western businessmen and statesmen know is by no means impossible if U.S. economic policy merely drifts, than a general promise of consideration by China of any Indian try for a truce formula.

The drift, as the new administration will find, cannot be stopped under present policy.

Nehru's graft-ridden, ineffectual government was shaky as the Indian public constantly compared it with the dynamic people's government of China; some serious observers, reported the N.Y. Times's C. L. Suizberger from New Delhi (11/30), 'make comparisons between the India of 1952 and the China of 1946." If Nehru could somehow bring peace to Korea it would raise his prestige at home — but looking as he is for more dollar aid, he cannot take any action that would antagonize Washington.

India ostensibly sought a compromise; but while its resolution conceded the U.S. right to hold back POW's, it offered nothing tangible to N. Korea and China—only a hope that some kind of quid pro quo would be found later in the high-level political conference.

(To the Washington Post, 11/25, Vassar College political science prof. Cecil V. Crabb Jr. offered this suggestion: "We are negotiating merely because we cannot do otherwise. . . . [The] essence [of negotiation] is quid pro quo bargaining, an awareness by both sides that their 'maximum demands' cannot be fulfilled. If, by recognizing Red China or allowing her into UN, we succeeded in breaking the present stalemate, we shall have raid a small price. The choice seems to lie between an approach of this sort, appeasement, or global war—with the last two alternatives containing disastrous risks for the entire world.") world.") At the week-end the briefly flaring hope of ending the slaughter was but a flicker: for if UN passed over Soviet opposition an Indian resolution tailored to Western demands, Chinese-N. Korean rejection would make it ineffective; if India accepted the Soviet demand immediate cease-fire, UN would turn it down.

PHANTOM FORCES: In Seoul, where paper flags and welcoming signs were out for the impending visit of the U.S. President-elect and hundreds of "sub-versives" were thrown in jail, S. Korean President Rhee's circle were ready to Eisenhower (N. Y. World-Telegram, 11/28) that ...the only way out of the Korean impasse is to "fight our way out" ... drive the Chinese Reds completely out of Korea. That Rhee also expressed the wish of U.S. brass in Korea and of Secy. of State-designate Dulles was clear: but as a politico-military strategist Eisen--whose campaign more or committed him to find some solution to "get our boys home"—faced monumental problems. Any attempt to "drive the Reds out"—involving of necessity carrying the war into China—would call for far more fighting men in addi-tion to heavy diversions of planes and weapons. The Western allies could not supply them, and the hopeful "Let Asians fight Asians" election slogan looked increasingly unrealistic. Rhee violently rejected suggestions that Japanese troops be sent, declaring that S. Koreans would prefer to fight them rather than Reds. Using Chiang troops would raise more military and political problems than it would solve; NYWT's Ludwell Denny was now suggesting (11/28) that six-year-old war against the Vietminh, whom it once formally recognized as Indo-China's government within the French Union, was going from bad to worse; the Vietminh Army was "as strong as, if not stronger than last strong as, if not stronger than last year" (NYT from Saigon, 12/1) despite a force of over 460,000 French, German and colonial troops (NYT, 11/25), large-scale napalm bombing and an

and colonial troops (NXT, 11/25), large-scale napalm bombing and an annual expenditure of over a billion dollars (U.S. News, 11/28). Tribune des Nations' "Colonel X" wrote (10/31):

Who can still today see the Indo-China war as anything but a thankless p rticipation in a dubious American enterprise?... There is nothing left but to prepare a rapid resolution of the struggle and repatriation of our troops. This depends less on the enemy, who seems always ready to negotiate, than on us and our allies, [Transport of our troops home] is an unrealizable operation in the present state of our available means in less than several years. And there is little illicilized that the U.S. will lend us [their transport fleet] for the purpose. . . At the most they would agree to organize the transfer from Indo-China to Korea. Thus one is brought back to the only real military problem posed at the moment by the Indo-China war: how to get out of it?
What was most likely to come from Eisenhower's trip was an attempt to arm more S. Koreans to replace more Americans; but realistic commentators

MORE CONFUSION: To seasoned UN observers the Eisenhower trip seemed to promise only further confusion and -no matter what "end-the-mess" for-mula he might present to expectant voters—further bloodshed Eisenhower's comment when he visited UN las' week—"Brother, this is something" shed little light on his philosophy. Big business' position was made clear in Washington Outlook newsletter (11/29):

A truce will make the predicted business slide almost certain. . . Failure of cease-fire efforts could be a stimulant . . . that would call for more men and more guns. . . The more likely result: a firmer business tone, with a delay in the expected dip.

Several Paris papers proposed that, in view of the U.S. pressure to which UN is subject in New York, it be transferred to Geneva.

For Eisenhower as he prepared to leave for Korea, N.Y. Daily News columnist John O'Donnell had a constructive suggestion. He should strike a "blow sensational trial in Czechoslovakia, where Western agents have pecially concentrated their efforts especially since E. Europe's new socialist regimes were founded, 14 top leaders pleaded guilty to attempts to sabotage the eco-nomic reconstruction. Eleven were sennomic reconstruction. Eleven were sentenced to death, including former Foreign Minister Vladimir Clementis, former Communist Party Secy.-Gen. Rudolf Slansky, and former party newspaper editor Andre Simone (pen name for Otto Katz). Simone, who was in Mexico during the '40's, and Clementis, who was his country's UN spokesman in New York up to 1950, were known in New York up to 1950, were known to many Americans. Prague Radio broadcast the complete trials. The U.S. press, concentrating on testimony that 11 defendants were "the testimony that 11 defendants were "the product of Zionist organizations," used it to launch a new wave of "anti-Semitism" charges against Czechoslovakia and other socialist countries, which have made anti-Semitism a major crime and vainly sought in UN to induce other countries to follow suit. (Similar charges of anti-Semitism were made about the Moscow trials in the made about the Moscow trials in the 1930's.) Played down was testimony about industrial sabotage and plotted assassinations which readers might link with John Foster Dulles' "Project X' for spying, assassination and underground war, proclaimed in 1949 and —as many U.S. correspondents have admitted—widely carried out.

NAZI SHADOWS: UP staff writer Neil MacNeil (NYWT, 11/28) in a now-it-can-be-told story disclosed that Clementis had "contacted a leader of the Czech anti-Communist underground" in New York through "a close friend" in 1949, in an attempt to obtain U.S. sanctuary; he had been assured he would get it, but had decided to return home—where he continued several months as Foreign Minister—to face months as Foreign Minister—to face the music.

Some light was thrown on the background of the case by the testimony of former Deputy Security Minister Redrich Reicin, one of the 11 Jewish defendants. Reicin said the Gestapo had arrested him during the war and compelled him to work for them; in 1946 he had revealed the whereabours of the archives of Kerl Frenk westime. of the archives of Karl Frank, wartime Nazi boss of Czechoslovakia, which listed names of Gestapo collaborators like himself. Next day the U.S. Army sent a jeep to get the archives, and subsequently were in a position to blackmail the same people to work for them. This was the only trial testimony conceded in the U.S. to be based on truth: the N.Y. Times parenthesized (11/26):

An incident of this kind actually did take place and led to a Czechoslovak pro-test at the time.

The names of Noel Field, London-orn, Swiss-educated American whom Washington calls a Soviet agent and Moscow a U.S. agent, and of his brother Hermann cropped up in the case as in the Rajk trial in Hungary. Disappearance of both the Fields in E. Europe in 1949 has been a mystery, but last week the Vienna Communist paper Volkstimme and Prague Radio reportedly admitted they were "under a pract edly admitted they were "under arrest Eastern Europe."

Further details on the trial were awaited from the GUARDIAN's Prague correspondent.

LABOR

CIO convenes amid united labor" calls

COR U.S. labor last week there seemed to be a bend in the road.
The arm-chairs occupied for decades by two ex-miners, William Green and Philip Murray, were draped in black, symbolizing the end of an era.

In recent years they had taught the AFL and CIO to look to Washington for the final nod in collective bargaining. They and their lieutenants had found in Washington power and prestige in government jobs, unofficial am-bassadorships, White House audiences. Green and Murray had committed their federations to the domestic and foreign policies of the Democratic administration; in return they were considered in the party's pocket.

THE OLD WAY: Before the Eisenhower landslide, and while Murray and Green still lived, Big Business had already begun its organized assault on labor. Big Steel and Intl. Harvtster set out to replace the wage freeze with a wage slash. Truman boards had long ceased to give comfort to labor, but labor leaders talked as if they still had strings to pull. Under Eisenhower there would be even fewer strings to pullreal or imaginary.

A month after the election, labor leaders—from Harry Bridges to the AFL Amalgamated Meat Cutters—were urg-ing a return to labor's reliance on its own picket-line power.

President Earl W. Jimerson and secy. Patrick E. Gorman of the Meat Cutters

Patrick E. Gorman of the Meat Cutters wrote in the Butcher Workman:

We may have to go sosp-boxing again. There must be a revival of the spilit of sacrifice for the cause, and willingness to get fixed for speaking out against industrial injustice.

We may have to go to jait and risk to be blackballed so the cause might live. The fundamental concepts of the trade union movement will have to be reborn.

UNITY MOVE: George Meany, re-placing Green as AFL president, issued a unity call to CIO that differed from his chief's old formula. He did not in-vite the CiO to "rejoin labor's house." He reactivated the AFL committee to negotiate on unity—with CIO first, then with the United Mine Workers and the railroad brotherhoods.

Within the CIO came answering calls that seemed sure to lead to negotia-tions, though it was too early to predict the outcome. Supporters of president Reuther within the United Auto Workers talked of economic and political unity. Reuther had spoken of a labor party earlier; but with the Democrats in power political plums were too easily plucked to upset the arrangement. Now the scene had changed.

the scene had changed.
CIO leaders meeting in New York to plan a "living memorial" to Philip Murray quarreled instead over who should step into his shoes. The jockeying went on between the ambitious Reuther and CIO organization director Haywood, choice of the steelworkers.

John L. Lewis, ardent proponent of unity was waiting for the dust to settle.

unity, was waiting for the dust to settle; he was preparing for a vacation in South America.

VICTORY FOR WARD: The Big Business offensive also employed murder frame-up. In Chicago, as an aftermath of the bitter Intl Harvester strike, UE leader Harold Ward, a Negro, stood trial for assault with intent to murder one strike breaker, murder of another. The state, seeking to try its strongest case first, brought the assault charge. After two hours the all-white jury acquitted Ward. State's attorneys then sought to postpone the murder trial, but defense postpone the murder trial, but defense atty. William Stewart told the court:

"This is preposterous. Since when do you indict a man and then go out to get evidence to support the indictment?"

The state's case rests on unsupported testimony by a "mystery" eye-witness—Edward Warren. Another eye-witness to the state of the state o to the crime, Jackson Ferrell, will de-scribe 'the murderer of the strike-breaker as having a possible resemblance to Ward.

(Chicagoans were to rally at Labor Temple, 1110 S. Oakley, Sat. night, Dec. 13, to celebrate Ward's victory and to continue the fight for full vindication.)

Willcoxes' passports seized by State Dept.

N October this year a unique assemblage—367 delegates from 37 countries—gathered in Peking for a Peace Conference of Asian and Pacific Regions. Largest delegations came from India (60) and Pakistan (28). The Soviet Union sent six; there were 14 from the U.S. But despite these figures and the effort to make the conference a truly democratic exchange of ideas, to the U.S. State Dept. it was "com-munist-dominated." Last week the first U.S. delegates came home. Flying in from London, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Willcox (he is a well-known construction engineer)

What the PP did

The Progressive Party Natl. Committee, meeting in New York Nov. 29-30, urged immediate demands on President-elect Eisenhower to guarantee a non-jimcrow inauguration—as a first step toward fulfilling his campaign promise to end segregation in the nation's capital.

Other actions called for an immediate cease-fire in Korea with settle-ment of the POW issue later; a campaign to blunt the effect of the repressive Walter-McCarran omnibus immigration and deportation law on the nation's 14,000,000 foreign-born and their families; and full participation by PP organizations in the campaign clemency for Julius and Ethel Rosenberg.

A full report on the PP program and a detailed analysis of the Walter-McCarran Act—and how to fight it—will appear in next week's GUARDIAN.

countries frowned upon by the U.S. government.

Willcox was undismayed. He proudly told reporters next day that he and his wife had gone to the conference to stand up and be counted for peace. For their information he distributed printed copies of a full report on the conference by Hugh Hardyman of California, vice-chairman of the U.S. delegation. Metropolitan papers quoted only that portion of it which declared that the entire delegation was convinced of the validity of germ-warfare charges against U.S. forces in Korea. They ignored the bulk of the report describ-ing the full and free discussions which led to unanimous agreement on how to achieve world peace.

VIENNA NEXT: Harassment of U.S. VIENNA NEXT: Harassment of U.S. delegates to Peking was being used as a threat to prospective delegates to the World Peace Congress meeting opening in Vienna Dec. 12. In addition, the State Dept. denounced the Vienna gathering as being convened by the "communist high command." In answer Dept. We Can Learn Economic Theory Economics is not a dismal science. It is a fascinating study of man's effort to free himself from some of the uncertainties surrounding his life.

Economics is the science and art of making a living.

If we understand the science and practice the art, we will win immense benefits for ourselves, our families, and the communities in which we live.

Look to your economy, fellow citizens. Economics is public business and affects you at every turn.

Economics of the Power Age by SCOTT NEARING

The GUARDIAN has reprinted this brilliant and dispassionate document, terming the case "an offense against all standards of Anglo-Saxon justice," in a 16-page, pocket-size pamphlet entitled

'An Appeal for Clemency'

We urge every GUARDIAN reader, every Progressive Party and American Labor Party organization, every peace and civil rights group, every individual, to obtain a sufficient supply of these pamphlets for community-wide distribution, as well as to friends and members. The article by the distinguished English barrister, whose investigation of the Reichstag Fire trial in 1933 proved Hermann Goering the actual incendiary, is the most compelling and convincing analysis of the Rosenberg Case published thus far.

THE LAW

Decision on CP perils all, say attorneys

OR more than a year a panel of the Subversive Activities Control Board, creation of the McCarran Internal a creation of the McCarran Internal curity Act, conducted hearings to etermine if the Communist Party should be forced to register under the act as an agency of a foreign power. The panel decided it should; the matter is now pending before the full board. Last week attorneys for the CP—Vito Marcantonio, John J. Abt and Joseph Forer-filed briefs and motions against the panel's recommended decision, charged it was based on ... fabricated testimony, misrepresentation and concealment of facts, unfounded inferences and innuendos, and the violation of elementary rules of evidence for the ascertainment of truth.

The brief contended that denying elementary principles of justice to the CP is "jeopardizing the liberty of every American." A separate motion called American." A separate motion called for disqualification of Board chairman Peter Campbell Brown, who was on the hearing panel, because of a Nov. 6 TV appearance in which he praised the Board's work, predicted an adverse rul-ing against the CP.

PAID PATRIOTS: Another motion called for reopening the hearing on the basis of newly-discovered evidence that three of the government's witnesses gave perjured testimony to the knowledge of the Justice Dept. The three swore they were unpaid as witnesses, apart from expenses, and testified as a "patriotic duty." A stipulation signed by the Justice Dept. in the Flynn case in New York shows that one received government pay of $23,-829.45 above expenses, a second $16,225, the third $10,048

The brief declared:

The brief declared:

If the Recommended Decision is permitted to stand, the faccist techniques which it uses to condemn the Communist Party will be applied, under the McCarran Act, to brand political non-conformists as "foreign agents" and "Communist as foreign agents" and "Communist fronts," and to outlaw every organization that dares to express fundamental opposition to the policies of the national administration then in power.

Alger Hiss: no parole

ALGER HISS, convicted of perjury in denying Whittaker Chambers gave him secret documents for transmission to Russia, and described by Lewisburg federal penitentiary officials as a "model prisoner," was denied parole for which he was eligible after serving 20 months. His full term would two more years with time off for good behavior.

The day after he app'ied for parole, his attorney, Chester T. Lane, filed an appeal against a recent denial of a new trial. The defense, in a fabulous undertaking rivaling all detective-story fiction, proved that a typewriter can be constructed to duplicate another machine so faithfully that experts are deceived. Lane bluntly charged that Chambers "framed" Hiss through "forgery by typewriter." In his appeal against denial of a new trial, Lane said Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard had acted

Goddard had acted
... without fair hearing ... accept d the government's unsubstantiated gossip and rumors as sufficient to controvert sworn statements of defense w tuesses.

Pennsylvania Supreme Court Justice Michael A. Musmanno, who has made a career of violent anti-communism, had written the parole board chairman that Hiss is a "dangercus man" and his release would be "fraught with danger." Vice-President-elect Nixon, who as an Un-American Activities Committee member was instrumental in bringing Hiss to trial, said Hiss should be treated "just like any other common criminal—like a thief, ro ber or murderer." The board said it re-ceived 50,000 letters and telegrams, mostly opposing a parole.

It is hard to dispel the feeling that the mood and temper of the present time have created an atmosphere in which a fair trial has been extremely difficult, if not impossible. . . . Preparations continued for a nationwide Clemency Gathering to be held in Washington, D.C., on Jan. 4 and 5. It was also announced that a Prayer Vigil on the White House lawn to be

Freedom hope still dim for Trenton 2

PRESSURE of public opinion had won a victory for the last two of the Trenton Six: their life-imprisonment Trenton Six: their life-imprisonment sentence for a murder they could not possibly have committed was reversed Nov. 24 by the New Jersey Supreme Court. But for the two young Negroes—Ralph Cooper and Collis English, who have spent nearly five years in jail—freedom still looked far away.

The Trenton case, originally made known throughout the world by the GUARDIAN, seemed to be developing into a war of attrition, as:

• The American Civil Liberties Union, "gratified" that a new trial had been granted Cooper and English, said

Union, "gratified" that a new trial had been granted Cooper and English, said its terms of operation precluded it from aiding their defense at a new trial.

• The Natl. Asssn. for Advancement of Colored People, which entered the case with ACLU two years ago, said it would "continue to fight to free English and Cooper" but gave no inkling in what manner it would do so.

what manner it would do so.

N.J. Progressive Party leader
James Imbrie, sparkplug of the educators' and clergymen's group, the Princeton Comm. for the Trenton Six, said he frankly did not know how the group would raise funds to finance a retrial.

would raise funds to mance a retrial.
"FURTHER TORTURE": William L.
Patterson, exec. secy. of the Civil Rights Congress which after fighting alone for the Six withdrew on the entrance of ACLU and NAACP, called on individuals and organizations to write N. J. Gov.
Alfred E. Driscoll and Prosecutor Mario
H. Volne preging dismissal of the case H. Volpe urging dismissal of the case and immediate granting of bail. CRC's N. J. director Lewis Moroze said "further imprisonment and another trial would only mean further torture for the two men, and possibly death for English" (who is seriously ill with a heart ailment). But if a war of attrition was to develop, Trenton officialdom seemed confident of winning it. The Supreme conndent of winning it. The supreme Court's reversal decision, while castigating Volpe for "patently improper practices," found the defendants' "confessions" acceptable as evidence and went far to justify Volpe's assertion that the prosecution had been "sustained execut for a few technical tained except for a few technical matters."

Trenton's leading newspaper, the Evening Times, whose editor-publisher (a member of ACLU's Natl. Committee) has from the outset been calling for the blood of the Six, laconically told its readers that the Supreme Court ruling

... means a third trial for the two de-fendants.... The court held errors had been committed during the last trial.
