JOBLESS PRESENT

Hold Demonstration at Battery — Communists Spit on Speakers.

PARADING several thousand strong, unemployed workers united as the Joint Committee of the Association of the Unem-ployed, the Workers' Committee on Unemployment and the Work-ers' Unemployed Leagues, passed through New York's lower East uesday, and marching past City Hall shouting demands for increased relief, invaded the Wall Street district to a mass meeting at the Battery. The parade and demonstration marked the first united front of three of the four city-wide unemployed organiza-tions and was led by Jack Alt-man, Leonard Kaye, A. G. Becker, David Lasser, Mrs. Hal-loway and Jack Herling.

loway and Jack Herling.

At City Hall, a committee including Mary Fox, David Lasser, Alfred Moss, A. C. Weinfeld, Frank Crosswaith and A. G. Becker, presented to Mayor O'Brien and the Board of Estimate a demand for an appropriation of $15,000,000 for relief for the month of June.

Norman Thomas, speaking for the Socialists, made a strong appeal for a new deal for the jobless facing starvation and eviction by the thousands. Frank Crosswaith stressed the misery of the thousands of Negro jobless in Harlem who face racial discrimination sands of Negro jobless in Harlem who face racial discrimination from the Home Relief authorities as well as extortion from Harlem landlords. The $15,000,000 asked for, considered necessary for a minimum of subsistance, met only amused smiles from the Board of Patimate members.

12 STATES RATIFY CHILD LABOR ACT

WASHINGTON. — New Hampshire became the 12th state to ratify the child labor amendment to the federal constitution, the first to ratify in the industrial East

The amendment has been before states since 1924.

It provides that Congress "shall have power to limit, regulate and prohibit the labor of persons under eighteen years of age." It was passed by both houses of Congress passed by both houses of Congress by more than the requisite two-thirds majority and submitted to the state legislatures.

After four states had ratified interest in the amendment on the part of the two old parties suddenly died. Indeed, states that had pledged ratification suddenly forgot all about it. There was a spurt of interest again this year, and eight more legislatures have already ratified.

DEMANDS TO MAYOR Banking Dictators Notify Congress NEW YORK CONGRESS TO BE HELD BLANCE They'll Not Tolerate Union Labor

FROM the upper reaches of the American financial throne has come an imperial order to the Senate Finance Committee at Washington. Robert P. Lamont, president of the American Iron and Steel Institute, told the committee that it will not tolerate legislation favoring unions in the iron and steel industry. If the idea is embodied in the National Industrial Recovery bill the steel magnates will block this program.

"The industry stands positively for the open shop:

block this program.

"The industry stands positively for the open shop; it is unalterably opposed to the closed shop," said Lamont, spokesman for the Morgan-dominated iron and steel kings. The statement was made even while J. P. Morgan was in Washington unfolding the methods by which his empire avoided paying income tax returns. Should the clause in the bill providing for genuine unions remain there is little doubt that these powerful kings will resort to the courts to prevent their wage slaves taking advantage of it.

On May 27 the Senate passed the Emergency Rail Coordination Bill which carries a labor clause and the House committee has also approved this clause. It protects the right of the workers to organize. One section reads as follows:

"No judge or trustee acting under this Act shall deny or in any way question the right of employes on the property under his jurisdiction to join the labor organizations of their choice, and it shall be unlawful for any judge, trustee, or receiver to interfere in any way with the organizations of employes, or to use the funds of the railroad under his jurisdiction, in maintaining so-called company unions, or to influence or coerce employes in an effort to induce them to join or remain members of such company

Here is the Senate on record in favor of organization of workers on the railways and against any form of coercion in support of company unions. One spokesman of the Morgan oligarchy serves notice that no such clause shall become a part of the larger bill that takes in industry in general. The steel industry in many ways is the dominating industry of the nation. Since the bloody Homestead struggle of some forty years ago organization of workers has been outlawed in all but some independent plants, but the company union fraud has been cultivated. The workers have strong unions on the railroads but practically none in the steel industry.

In no industry are spies so thick as in the steel empire of the Morgans. They are maintained to weed out any workers who try to organize. What Lamont calls the "open shop" is the shop closed against genuine unions of the workers.

It remains to be seen whether the imperial taxdodgers, those who order wage slashes in industry, dictate policies to local governments and take care of high politicians with stocks offered far below the market rate, will get away with this latest exhibition of ruling class insolence.

The steel kings will not tolerate an organized working class; a Socialist Commonwealth would end the impudent reign of these kings.

Powerless Workers

THE patience of American workers under the m trying conditions is striking. In no other period there been such widespread misery, such a hopese outlook for adequate relief, after nearly four years of privations. That there is widespread re-sentment was evident in the election last November that swept the Hoover Administration into oblivion and gave the Democrats an absolute majority in all departments of the government.

But the sad thing about this volcanic political upheaval is that it revealed a blind revolt, not an med attempt to obtain power by the masses. The Democratic Party came into the seats of power because it could not be charged with responsibility at Washington, not because it had earned the support of the distressed millions of workers. Conas of class interests was not recorded in the election results, the masses waited for Hoover to pull industry and themselves out of the slough so they now wait for Roosevelt to do the same thing. Will they be disillusioned before the next Congressional elections? We hope so, but if they are it will be largely because Socialists will employ all their resources in awakening the workers' consciousness of their power as a class once they know where their interests lie. To that job let us turn with earnestness and a de termined will.

The N. E. C. Decision

BY a vote of seven to four the National Executive Committee of the Socialist Party has decided that no state committee or party subdivision should cooperate with the Communist Party or any of its affiliates without obtaining the consent of the national executive.

Now that this decision is made it may be worth hile to consider some recent history. The Comwhile to consider some recent history. munists on this issue as on all others in the past have shown an iron discipline. In fact, they have no minds of their own. A button is pressed in Moscow and they respond in all nations. This is discipline to the point of oligarchy, something that enuine movement of the working class desires or will accept.

But our party organizations have gone to the other extreme. They have displayed no more solidarity than a rope of sand and inexperienced locals have been easy prey to the Communists. Contradictory actions have been taken throughout the ountry with varying results. Members have been divided and some heat has accumulated because of the divergent opinions. This is precisely what the other side has wanted and evidence of it may be found in their literature.

We hope that many of our members have learned something by this recent experience. Either we are a collection of autonomous groups bearing no responsibility to the party as a whole or we shall recognize this responsibility by observing some transcensible discipline that will keep our ranks intact.

World's Specialists To Doctor Capitalism

Most of the leading nations are off the gold standard and ten billion dollars are owed by European nations to the United States and it isn't likely that the full. sum will ever be paid. The world price sum will ever be paid. The world price level, the monetary chaos and inter-national trade barriers will concern the

When modern capitalism emerged out of old home and shop enterprises a little over a century ago we had the begin-ning of periodical crises. There had been ning of periodical crises. There had been depressions before but they generally followed some long war. The modern prostrations have come with regularity whether war had been waged or not. At first they were confined to the nation of their origin; then they spread to a few nations, then to more nations, and this one has swept all nations into the ditch.

It is a world crisis and the world's specialists are to diagnose the ailment. There is no enduring cure for it short of a Socialist holding company for capitalism in each country and based upon the ethic of no income without some useful service.

Insurance Executives Get Salary Increases

When we wrote we did not have the figures of the salaries paid by some of the big insurance companies buy the Chicago Daily News has given some details of five companies. A comparison between the salaries paid in 1929, the year of the Wall Street crash, and in 1932, shows that these executives have in general received handsome increases. In some cases the increase is as high as $25,000 per year!

During the war and post-war period 100 per cent patriots in many localities staged similar stunts. They raided Socialist headquarters and burnt Socialist banners and literature. In Germany the Nazis celebrated bonfires of Marxist and other literature, the assumption being that if this literature is destroyed that is the end of Marxism.

Deliberately to provoke those who disagree with you is to raise a barrier against possible education of potential converts. If a student venerates the American flag it is due to his training and education; if he is to become more intelligent it will be due to other training and education. Nor will the "radical" give up his special banner if conservatives burn it. Both revert to childhood when they engage in these playboy methods.

Federal Milk Bottles For Needy Politicians

THE House Judiciary Committee has reported a bill to refinance cities that face bankruptcy. The bill provides that cities and other local taxing bodies may, with the consent of 30 per cent of the bondholders, petition a Federal court to work out plans. Any plan must be ap-proved by two-thirds of the creditors and the court.

In New York City Tammany is sweating blood. Its official parasites in use-less offices hang on although expendi-tures must be reduced or new sources of income be found. If Tammany's rob-ber burg gets a Federal milk bottle under the terms of the above bill much of the pap will go to the parasites

The Board of Aldermen passed a bill on Tuesday to raise $17,500,000 in revenue from taxes on motor vehicles and from bridge tolls. To this was added a five cents tax on each taxicab ride. Ostensibly intended for relief, it will really help parasites to hold on. The "neediest cases" are not the starving workers in the streets but the official pap-suckers of Tammany Hall.

Later: The taxi fare raise has been dropped but not the pap-suckers.

Roll of Depression Suicides Increases

WHEN capitalist imperialism sends workers to war the result is enor-nous destruction of material wealth. When capitalism enters a depression physical assets of society remain intact but its paper tokens, bonds, stocks, etc., suffer enormous destruction. On the human side, in war the lives of workers are taken; in a depression, many workers take their own lives. Whether it is war or peace the workers lose.

Frederick L. Hoffman, statistician for an insurance publication, reports the increase in suicides for 1932. The death toll in New York City increased from 18.8 for the five preceding years to 22.1 per cent in 1932. In the United States 23,000 human beings took their own lives and many other countries recorded new high marks. The figures clearly new high marks. The figures reflect the effects of the industrial de

Hitler's Master Plan Not a Master Stroke

Not a Master Stroke

Nazi Germany has yielded on the enforcement of anti-Jewish laws in Upper Silesia, giving way to a decision of the Council of the League of Nations, but we doubt whether the Nazis will fully live up to this retreat. The workers' group of the international labor conference at Geneva on Thursday, also refused to admit Robert Ley, Hitler's gangster who seized the German trade unions. This group had also isolated Mussolini's two del'gates some years ago. The Nazis also backed down on the Olympic games to be held in Berlin, agreeing to no discrimination against Jews. Finally, the Nazis have also retreated in the matter of Toscanini's refusal to conduct the Wagner festivities at Bayreuth and they have revoked the radio ban on his works.

Hitler's recovery "four-year plan," the radio ban on his works.

Hitler's recovery "four-year plan," announced late last week, is not startling. It provides subsidies for marriages, a bachelors' tax, extension of government credits to public and private works by issuing a billion marks in treasury notes, and acceptance of "voluntary gifts" as amnesty for past tax frauds! A Berlin correspondent of the New York Times reports that financial and industrial circles are pleased but labor is "less enthusiastic." That is to say, the exploiters have one view and the workers another. another.

Goebbels, the wild man, again thundered last week. "Our aim is to eliminate all our opponents from German politics," said the Nazi. Individual Nazis have combined patriotism with profit and as self-appointed commissars some of them have been jailed by order of the Nazi chiefs. All is not quiet in Hitler's heaven.

Spain Speeds Church Disestablishment

WHEREVER a church is established by law it is disestablished in a revo-lution. The American Revolution made an end of the kept Episcopal Church in Virginia, the Carolinas and New York but the Congregational organization held on in Massachusetts and Connecticut for some decades later.

Spain is facing the same job in disestablishing the Catholic Church and the class lines are being clearly drawn in this struggle. The Madrid correspondent of the New York Times states that "The situation has now developed into a struggle of the upper and middle class parties against the proletarian groups." This was also true in some measure of the was also true in some measure of the earlier American struggle.

President Zamora objected last week resident Lamora objected last week to the terms of the church law which prohibits teaching by religious orders. This week it is reported that the Ministry of Education is rushing the establishment of lay schools and that the republic will take over $500,000,000 of church property for secular education.

As we go to press word comes from Madrid that the Azana Cabinet has resigned. Friction between the Socialist and bourgeois ministers has been increasing for weeks, especially over church legislation.

It is significant that these opportunist lures generally bear the label of a "third party." That is, it is not defined. It is simply another party. Socialists are not interested in just another party. other party. Socialists are not interested in just another party. They are interested in a fighting party of the working class and in nothing else, a party that frankly asserts the claims and interests of the working masses and that is just as frankly ranged against the whole capitalist system.

And yet we Socialists are not sectarian. If considerable sections of the organized workers decide to abandon the parties of capitalism and to fight for their interests through independent political action, we shall be ready to meet such a trend more than half way. Such a trend will be one towards a basic principle for which we

"third party" gets under way that it should prepare for political trading with "Progressive Democrats." Such action means the betrayal of the interests of the working masses and the barter of the Socialist Party itself in the brothel of capitalist politics.

Never in our history has it been more essential to build the party on the claims and interests of the working class. The economic decay of capitalism is concentrating enormous wealth and capital into the hands of the upper banking and capitalist classes. Large sections of the lower middle class are being

There is the final consideration that the "third party" itself is a misnomer. There is one party of the capitalist class with two organizations and two labels, the Republican and Democratic parties. They maintain two headquarters. They maintain two headquarters, nominate two sets of candidates, collect two campaign funds and sail under two banners but they both represent the possessing and

The Truth About German Communism and Its Tactics

Not only Communists, but many Socialists who had not been deceived by Stalin's stratwere convinced that when the Fascist counter-revolution in Germany had so clearly revealed its ugly anti-working class char-acter, the Russian Communists would earnestly struggle against German Fascism; and it was hoped that the Soviet government would; for, according to the Communists, it is the "hope of the revolutionary workers of the world."

That is, at the very moment that the Social Democratic Party is wrestling with Fascism, the Communists are occupied with assaulting the Social Democracy and weakening it!

The administration accordingly believes that with a period of rising prices due to inflation more men would be hired.

Manufacturers buy raw mate Manufacturers buy raw material several months before they sell their finished product. With a period of rising prices due to inflation they can reasonably expect to sell their product on a higher general price level than that at which they buy their raw material, and thus they can make material, and thus they can make an inflation profit in addition to a manufacturing profit. With this prospect manufacturers might reasonably be expected to increase production and to hire more men.

Present wages would of course become even more inadequate than they are now due to increases in prices. But with more men hired the bargaining power of the workers would tend to be increased and they would be likely to demand higher pay. With increased profits manufacturers would be less likely to resist such demands. So an increase in wages would probably follow an increase in prices. But with more men hired

Utopia is that wages would increase some time after prices; and in the meantime the present pitifully inadequate wages would be still more inadequate. Also there is very genuine danger that wages would hardly increase at all. For the argument that they would tend to increase as a result of inflation overlooks entirely the effects of technological unemployment. The bargaining power of the workers would be increased to the point where they could successfully demand higher wages only if nearly all of those at present unemployed and destitute were again absorbed into industry so that there would be no danger of their acting as scabs. But experts tell us that the invention of new labor displacing de-

But experts tell us that the invention of new labor-displacing de-vices and new machinery has con-tinued despite the depression, so that on an average manufacturing industries could today turn out as much as they produced in 1929 with the labor of several million fewer workers than were employed in manufacturing in that year. Even if inflation proved so successful that the 1929 level of output could be reached there would still be left a reserve of about four millions of unemployed to be drawn upon to act as strikebreakers when needed

It is perfectly clear therefore that the inflationary proposals of the President are almost certain to be disastrous from the point of men will for a while go through view of purchasing power both of workers' wages and of doles reworkers' wages and of doles re-ceived by unemployed so far as the latter are paid in money.

In proposing an alternative labor policy for inflation we should consider how we got into the depression. Many factors doubtless contributed, but the inadequacy of the purchasing power of the workers' wages was easily the most important single factor.

An Interesting Index

The federal government census of manufacturers every two years has an index number of physical productivity. This figure shows that we produced on an average in 1929 we produced on an average in 1929 privileges banks subscribing could rediscount them at the Federal Recent more actual physical goods than were produced in 1919. Yet the total payroll in manufacturing went up by only 7 per cent. It does not require an expert to see that in the long run you cannot sell 38 per cent more goods to people with only 7 per cent pay on a price basis satisfactory to the owners of industry.

A labor policy for inflation should begin by insisting that the reduction in the hours of labor to thirty a week should not be accompanied by any reduction in pay. Of course the employers will complain that they cannot possibly never the control of the course the employers will complain that they cannot possibly never the control of the course th plain that they cannot possibly pay forty-eight hours' wages for only thirty hours' work. The government could then subsidize such employers by a monthly subsidy gradually tapering off. This subsidy would undoubtedly require a very large sum which the government could secure by issuing bonds and giving them a rediscount privilege or by requiring the Federal Reserve banks to buy the bonds and pay for them in Federal Reserve notes secured in part by the government bonds.

Rediscounting

By giving the bonds rediscount privileges banks subscribing could rediscount them at the Federal Re-

now greatly expand the currency through the issue of additional Federal Reserve notes. These notes are legal tender and constitute the largest part of the currency in the shape of bills of five dollars or larger denominations. Back of these Federal Reserve notes under the present law there must be a minimum gold reserve of 40 per cent; the remainder of the security behind them consists of commercial paper, notes or drafts of business men or corporations discounted at the banks, and which then may be rediscounted by the banks at the Federal Reserve banks. That means that banks have loaned money business men or corporations tak-ing their notes as security and then have borrowed money from the Federal Reserve banks by turning over these notes to the Federal Reserve banks.

Instead of the Federal Reserve notes being backed in part by commercial paper and 40 per cent by gold, Congress could provide that they should be backed in part by government bonds. This would mean that the Federal Reserve banks would buy such bonds from the government or from the banks or individuals who had bought them from the government, and could then issue legal tender Federal Re-serve notes in payment. This would make it easy for the Federal government to sell the bonds in order to get funds for temporarily sub-sidizing manufacturers required to sidizing manufacturers required to pay a full week's wage for thirty hours per week. ours per week.

Furthermore, there is nothing sacred about the 40 per cent re-serve of gold behind the Federal Reserve notes. Congress could make the reserve requirements 30 per cent or 25 per cent or even 20 per cent, the balance of the security behind such notes to consist of government bonds or commercial paper. In this way a definite speci-fied amount of inflation could be accomplished.

The Effect

The effect of such a policy would as follows:

be as follows:
Purchasing power would be greatly increased because more people would be employed with reduction in the hours of labor and with no in the hours of labor and with he reduction in weekly wages. A larger volume of purchasing power would be pumped into industry and the legal ratio of gold behind the Federal Reserve notes, which con-stitute the largest part of our legal stitute the largest part of our legal tender currency, would be reduced. A rise in prices would result from increased workers' demands and from the inflationary factor of increasing the amount of legal tender currency. With the rise in prices the owners of industry could afford to pay the higher wages without continuation of government subsidy, which could therefore be gradually tapered off. The subsidy might also be made to depend on the willingness of the owners of industry to recognize unions among dustry to recognize unions among their workers and enter into collective agreements with such

SOCIALISTS IN BATTLE FOR WORKERS' HOMES

PHILADELPHIA.—Homes that are empty and homes that are too full stand side by side in Philadelphia. More than 28,000 families suffer the keen discomfort of being obliged to double up with friends and relatives. That was revealed in a study made public by the Philadelphia Housing Association. Many of these families were once home owners.

New evictions are becoming frequent. The Unemployed Citizens' League has halted 1400 evictions by holding mass meetings in front the threatened tenants' and frightening away the constable. Lately, however, the battle between the U.C.L. and the landlords has the U. C. L. and the landlords has entered a new phase in which the landlords, with the aid of constables and the police, have taken the offensive.

The story of James Steward, a Negro worker, is a case in point. For twenty years Steward worked for the Pennsylvania railroad. He had bought a home and had almost paid off the mortgage when his job paid off the mortgage when his job was sacrificed to stockholders' divi-dends. Eventually, the mortgage was foreclosed, but Steward was permitted to rent from the new owner as long as his son held a job. After that rent bills piled up, and the constable served an eviction notice.

Steward appealed to some Socialist party members who secured the aid of Branch 3 of the U.C.L. Here Come the Graduates! What's in Store for Them?

HERE, ladies and gentlemen, the motions of peddling their diwe have the crême de la crême of the younger generation. Look well at them. They are col-lege graduates. At a tremendous financial expense to their com-munities and to their parents they have received a higher education. That is, they have had poured into them a vast accumulation of matter, factual and philosophic, supposedly the wisdom of the ages, which they proceed to forget as quickly as their poor, har-rassed minds will permit. With the exception of the offspring of our super-brigands, they are now about to descend upon our glut-ted labor market. Alas, they will find out, and most of them al-ready know that they are all dressed up plomas—the only thing of any value at all that their college training has given them-to any bidder. The very lucky ones, those who have degrees from Barnard or Columbia at least, may get jobs at Macy's. A Hunter or C.C.N.Y. dedoesn't go very far. gree

There's hardly a college senior who hasn't been mulling this over in his mind for a long time. We've had occasion to talk to students from almost all the colleges in the east and all of them are terrified. The colleges and universities, m of which are great go-getter institutions, have prepared them for a great go-getter world. But it's a poor rickety, tumbling world at best, and the average college senior knows it. He knows that of the students who graduated within the last four years only the meagerest percentage have found any sort of employment.

This knowledge has hit not only the materialistic pre-professional student, but also the sentimental highminded student who was interested only in drinking at the fountain of culture. They are shaken out of the complacent belief that the fortunes of society are no pos-sible concern of theirs. The fortunes of society have become ar intensely personal matter.

But within 'the cloistered walls all goes on in its same musty man-ner. Soporific professors lecture to wholesale batches of young people who might have done better by themselves if they had bought a book and read it. In fact that's precisely what some professors do year after. They write the book first and then their teaching con-sists of reading from the book. That's what we used to get from Muzzey at Columbia in the political history class. And what agony it was, particularly if you sat far back in the huge room, really a back in the huge room, really a small auditorium, where you would get just enough of his even drone to put you to sleep. I know an honor student at New York University who never attended classes in one of his courses. At the end of the term he'd read a book for the examination. He always got an A.

VETERAN SCOTTISH TRADE UNIONIST DIES

As a trade union official in Scotland, studying the results of the British Shipbuilding Employers' Federation, he found their common interests their only true interests. He was responsive to every work-ing class movement from the sim-plest committee in the shipyards to the National Executive Committee of his trade union, the Sheet Iron Workers' Society. Under the "Defense of the Realm Act," it was illegal to strike. Mac-dougall fought his ideas through the Federation, unwilling to suspend union rules. He never ceased opposition to the war.

Through his work and another departed comrade his union became politically powerful and was a tower of strength to the Independent Labor Party during parlia-mentary and municipal elections.

"DON'T try to rub it into me today," said Joe as he met Bill in the Rand School lobby. "You're a nationalist under the skin."

"What have I done to merit that assault?' Bill asked in

"I've been thinking over what you said the other day," Joe replied. "You said that the workers of each country must settle with their own ruling class. Aren't you interested in other countries? I thought you were an interationalist."

"I am and for that reason I don't think that we can settle accounts with the German ruling class any more than the German workers can settle accounts with the American ruling class. What's wrong with that?"

"Just this," said Joe. "You confine the attention of the of each country to their own problems and that's nationalism.

"You're off the reservation again," said Bill with a gesture of impatience. "Settling accounts with our ruling class does not mean exclusive attention to our own problems nor does it mean nationalism. I can help the German working class to settle with their ruling class but leave it to the German workers to do the settling. In so acting I will do my duty in the international field while recognizing the special task of the American workers here. We leave action to the the American workers here. We leave action to the mans and will aid them in their action and we expect Germans to leave action here to us and for them to help the Germans to us if they can.

ort of a division of labor as in industry, I suppose,

Bill Becomes Historical

"THAT'S not a bad analogy," said Bill. "The worker once a jack-of-all-trades, specializing in nothing. Modern capitalist industry with its minute division of labor makes him a specialist. Within his field he is competent. He may sew a shoe at a McKay machine but not roll a bar of iron. His ancestor could make a whole shoe, operate a small iron forge and a small power loom as well but the modern worker cannot make a shoe, roll iron or tend textile machinery." machinery.

"Well, what would you call nationalism?" asked Joe "Exclusive concentration on the immediate problem before you in your own country," said Bill. "Let's take your industrial analogy again. In the case of the conservative worker, as a specialist in industry he will be a narrow craft unionist. He may not care what happens to other workers in the same industry or even in the same plant, to say nothing of the workers of the nation and of the world."

"That illustration is too restricted. It is provincialism, something more narrow than nationalism," said Joe.

Back to the Main Road

"YOU'RE right, Joe," said Bill; "but I deliberately cited an extreme case. "Nationalism naturally subdivides into local patriotism. We see it in the local capitalists who urge people to patronize home industry and this localism of the capitalist is a parallel to the conservative unionist's craft

"But we're off the main track, aren't we?" asked Joe

"We made a detour to get a better view of the main road," said Bill, "but let's keep to the analogy. Assume that the workers become generally class conscious; they will abandon craft forms of organization and consolidate more into organizations by plant and industry. Assume millions in great industrial unions and that carries with it the ethic of class solidarity. That in turn means linking up with the organized workers of other nations and the emergence of international-In that event the main task of these workers will be settling accounts with American exploiters in every struggle while extending aid to workers in other nations when the call comes for such aid. This means effective internationalism based upon division of functions in the international struggle of the working class for emancipation."

'So that's your idea of internationalism,"

"Can you formulate anything better?" asked Bill.

"What about the Communist International?" asked Joe

Not a Storm Cloud in Sight

"DESPITE its revolutionary phrases it's largely nation DESPITE its revolutionary phrases it's largely nationalist," Bill replied. "Its sections in every country think and act in terms of a holy Russia. Stalin and his aides formulate policies not to serve the working masses of the world but to serve Russia. Non-aggression pacts are signed with capitalist powers but none are signed with working class movements. The result is that workers are divided into warring camps. Nationalism in each country could hardly divide them more."

"That's a division of functions I don't like," said Joe

"I'll say that it's a division that divides," said Bill, "and yet it's our international duty despite such provocation to oppose capitalist intervention in Russia and to foster trade relations with Russia. Our internationalism does not exclude the Russian workers no matter what Stalin and his aides ny do.

"Isn't it a fine spring day," said Joe.

"Not a storm cloud in sight," said Bill with a faint smile at they parted.

Native American Anarchism Described in Important Book

Contrary to Commonly Held Ideas, Pure Anarchism Is a Product of This Country-Socialism vs. Technocracy in a New Book.

American Anarchism By Gus Tyler

AMERICAN ANARCH-ISM. By Eunice Minette Schuster. Smith College Studies in History. Northampton, Mass. , Mass.

A NARCHISM has been the native form of revolt for many Americans. It is the philosophy of Americans. It is the philosophy of individualism carried to its ultimate and logical conclusions. "The freedom which the capitalists would reserve for their class, the individualist Anarchists would extend to all classes." Following the tend to all classes." Following the laissez faire doctrine that those governments are best which govern least, Ben Tucker added that "that which governs least is no government at all."

Miss Schuster traces the indigenous roots of Anarchism in America from the Massachusetts colony with its expulsion of Ann Hutchinson to the United States of 1919 with its expulsion of of 1919 with its expulsion of Emma Goldman. American Anarchism was first expressed as Antinomianism, a form of religious revolt against the colonial theocracy. These early Christian Anarchists found their justification in the inherent goodness of the soul and the right of each individual to act according to the dictates of his act according to the dictates of his God as expressed through immediate revelation to each individual. This colonial Anarchism was met with an Exclusion Act of 1637 intended to keep out such dangerous radicals.

The second stage of American Anarchism expressed itself in a non-resistence non-resistence movement aimed later most directly against slavery. aimed Again this was based on ethical concepts largely from the Bible. sed on abstract

The third period of American Anarchism under the guidance of Josiah Warren and Stephen Pearl Andrews placed more emphasis upon the organization of the pro-ductive process. This Anarchism was the revolt of the artisan seekemphasis against the encroachments of the factory system. Without any damental concept factory system. Without any fun-damental concept of class forces in modern society and of the inevitable trends in economic evitable trends in economic organization, these Anarchists fell into the most hopeless Utopian experiments. Alongside of this purely indi-vidualist Anarchism grew up a Mutualistic Anarchism based upon shutdarstic Anarchism based upon voluntary cooperation. Socialism vs. Technocracy

TECHNOCRACY OR DEMOCRA

TECHNOCRACY OR DEMOCRA-CY. By Joseph Brandon, Hollis, N. Y. 25 cents.

THIS 60-page pamphlet is the best critical analysis of the claims of Technocracy that we have seen. It is written from the Socialist point of view and its scope may be understood from the following chapters: What is Tech-nocracy? The Economics of Tech-nocracy: Machine production and nocracy; Machine production and Surplus Value; The Technocratic Surplus Value; The Technocratic Conception of History; Politics and the State; Technocracy or Industrial Democracy? Technocracy or Socialism—Which is Possible?

The one thing that made Technocracy catch the imagination was the displacement of labor by machinery and technology and it is doubtful whether even this would doubtful whether even this have awakened wide interest it not that Technocracy's claims were presented in a period of the breakdown of capitalist society. Brandon shows that this aspect of Technocracy is neither original nor accurate while its economics are bizarre and its historical interpretations are often absurd.

One example will suffice, nocracy claims that prior nocracy claims that prior to the last century and a half social his-tory, regarded technologically, was the "record of a steady state." Brandon goes back to handicraft and shop manufactures to show that by increasing division of labor and extension of cooperation in the workshop productive power was increased "without the expenditure of any additional energy." That phase of economic history is familiar to Socialists and Mary has subjected it to a keen analysis. Technocracy assumes that it has found an unvariable "measur ing rod" as a substitute for gold but Brandon has no difficulty in showing that "energy" is also variable with every change in the productive process

But this Communist theory cannot be made understandable to the not be made understandable to the workers. It is a theory for the leaders, not for the masses. The workers must be assured that they are really carrying on a revolutionary struggle against Fascism; that they fight Hitlerism even more aggressively than the Social Democrats; and that they denounce the Social-Democracy precisely because it does not carry on cisely because it does not carry on a "real" struggle against Hitler... The only way to combat Fascism is to destroy the "Social-Fascists" and to strengthen the ranks of the revolutionary Communist Party, the "Red Front." And when millions of embittered and despairing workers hearkened to that call, weakened the Social Democratic Party and strengthened the ranks of the Communist Party, the result was that they did ruin the Social Democracy and the Republic, but the five or six million German Communists did not carry on any revolutionary struggle or even evince the slightest opposition... cisely because it does not carry on

An Appalling Picture

To the Communist strategists the failure to fight Fascism (or fighting it only with empty revolutionary phrases) was a conscious policy derived from their false theory. But in the minds of the Communist masses, who had naively believed in the Communist revolutionary slogans, the inactivity of the Communist Party at the decisive moment seemed to take on every appearance of betrayal and moral and political bankruptcy. For them, the events in Germany became an inner spiritual transde them, the events in Germany be-came an inner spiritual tragedy and they are broken in spirit and morale. A terrible disillusionment, spiritual tumult and bewilderment has spread among them.

The are one and the same thing. The Communist workers must struggle against the danger of Fascism together with the Social Democratic workers and they must use every possibe weapon and all their energies in order to prevent the destruction by the Fascists of bourgeois democracy and parliamentarianism in Europe. This is the Trotsky proposal.

However, right Trotsky may be, his Communist opponents can easily point out that such ideas are not Communist but "Social Fascist" and contradict the basic theories of Communism and Lenius of the communism

Of course, from the Social Democratic point of view, the illogical Trotsky policy is better than the strictly logical and consistent tactics of the official Communists. But tics of the official Communists. But it is a mistake to suppose that an illogical leader like Trotsky can win control of the Communist movement. As long as Stalin's terroristic dictatorship continues, as long as in the Russian Communist Party the non-Communist ideas of freedom and democracy have not won out, so long will the Soviet government and the Communist International be a force that impedes the growth of Democracy and Socialism. So long will the Moscow government be an accomplice of Fascist dictatorship throughout the world. So long throughout the world. So long will there be no possibility for a united front between Social Dem-ocratic and Communist workers.

The Industrial Recovery Act Will Do as Much as the Workers Want to Make It Do-Who Will Get the Benefits, However?

where we are going. The big piece of the feast of power being set before President Roosevelt is the Industrial Recovery act. Without knowing just what is in it, many are taking it for granted that it all depends on the administrator. Once the piece is carved, everybody can fall to, have a fine meal and leave as a happy guest.

But just what is in it?

Recovery is a big word. It may suppose that our economic system has shaken off another depression, and business will be as it used to be. Or it can suggest that slowly and painfully the brakes will be able to hold against our going any further down hill. Finally, it can mean that in place of the reck-less and ruinous driving of the

There was a year in Zurich, but he was unable to secure entrance in the university there, because Breslau was unable to give him proper credentials due to his unconventional departure. And so a conventional departure. And so a year later he left for America, his exciting days behind him, but his

In Schenectady Steinmetz was one of the active members of the local to the end. When George R.

Lunn was elected Socialist Mayor in 1911 Steinmetz gladly accepted the post of President of the Board of Education, where he rendered remarkable services to the city. In 1915, when Lunn was elected again Steinmetz was elected President of the Council: when Lunn quit the party and was elected Congress-man as a Democrat he refused to resign as Mayor in order that the city might not be headed by the Socialist scientist.

And in 1922 I had the great privilege of nominating Steinmetz for State Engineer, and of getting from him his ideas of what a Socialist would do in making over the world, if he had at his disposal all the resurrors of the community. the resources of the community. My interview with the Wizard, in which he tells what a Socialist could do in those lines, is printed in full in J. W. Hamond's biography of Steinmetz.

I cannot forget the visit of a party committee to the great man in his laboratory; mounted on a stool, the little body bent over a drawing board, surrounded by terrifying electrical devices, he spoke charmingly, almost affectionately with us, his Socialist comrades. After forty years his zeal for a better world had not dimmed.

A year later came a trip to the Coast. It was too much for him, and when he returned he quickly died. Edmund Duffy drew a cartoon, showing great lowering clouds, and through them a flash of lightning. The picture was labeled "Steinmetz."

What there may be, for too long a time perhaps, is the situation where many millions are either working few hours or none at all, and are underfed, strangling with worry and being trained to accept permanent charity.

Great Britain's Level

This is the state to which Great Britain has sunk. It is breaking into the horizon of America. Then there is the dream that capitalism can be lifted out of the slump, the mud cleaned from its clothes, and set going again on a long and happy journey.

To an increasing number this sounds like an entirely idle dream.

But what would be needed to re claim our economic system and have it function for the good of the greatest number? That may be said to be the aim of the industrial recovery act.

The supposition is that capitalism can be controlled. Instead of savage competition, bitter animosity, cruel crushing of the losers, ity, cruel crushing of the losers and increasing exploitation of labor in field and factory, there would be combination, mutual aid and better

Then, too, concentrating on the best plant equipment and means of production would curtail the part of the product of labor, needed for industrial expansion. This would outright yield more consumers' goods or leave bigger surpluses for a shrinking area of investment. Here "the law of diminishing returns" would operate. The rate of profit would dwindle. So buying power of the masses could keep pace with production, and all would be merry as a wedding bell. be merry as a wedding bell.

For the crumbs you tose to us.
One day we shall cease to toil away gray years
To fatten you and your women and children.
We shall cease to thrust our might into your hands.
One day we shall shake off our old despair.
As one who has awakened from a long sleep
We shall shake off our drugged drowsiness,
And we shall rise to our full height and power
And think and move.
That day we shall not stoop for crumbs.
We shall not compromise or pause
But flick you aside like chaff.

Our Latent Anti-Semitism

THE only value I find in the agitation against Hitler's anti-Jewishism is that there is being brought to the attention of the world's conscience that Jews are being persecuted actively for no other reason than their religion and race.

To my experience there is just as much latent anti-Semitism right here in these enlightened States as there is active and venomous persecution in Germany. The first real move toward Fascism in America will bring it out with volcanic fury. The reaction of anti-Semitism in Hitlerland among the Ku Klux Christians of our agricultural sections promises no good for the American Jewry. The dogs lie, but they do not sleep.

In the meantime, not a protest is being heard about the treatment accorded the three million Jews in Poland. Religious prejudice has its class angle no less than economic and social conditions. The tremendous parades, protests and demonstrations against Hitlerism are financed and arranged by wealthy middle-class Jews in the interests of the several hundred thousand middle-class Jews of Germany.

But the millions of Polish ghetto people are forgotten.

hundred thousand middle-class Jews of Germany.

But the millions of Polish ghetto people are forgotten. They are of the working class, poor, unlettered and unsung. There have been laws against the Polish Jews in no wise less severe and discriminatory than those promulgated by Hitler for Germany. There has been a definite de-classing of that population which leaves it hopeless, impotent, and poverty-stricken to eternity. A Jew in Poland is a lost soul. He dare not own property, he dare not enter the professions, the schools are quota-ed against him, and even legitimate business channels closed, except through proxy and subterfuge. Even his exit from this inferno of despair is hemmed in with impossible restrictions. He has a real Hobson's choice. No one returning from the pales of Poland can ever forget the inexpressible misery that fills the swampland and muddy lanes where they drudge out their miserable lives.

The Polish Jew's Misery

POLISH officialdom looks down upon these unfortunates

Pollsh officialdom looks down upon these unfortunates as they might upon a running sore on a dying beast. And they will do nothing about it. To the Polish administration there is some sort of disguised blessing for their fiscal troubles in this foulness. These three million Jews have relatives in America. These relatives send in some money for support. Annually, this money runs into hundreds of millions of American dollars. This money is spent in Poland.

. . An income out of inhuman suffering. . . And as long as the Jew is kept on the border line of starvation, his folks in other lands will continue to send in some measure of relief. There have been fiendish contrivances for human torture conceived by bestial cunning during the dark ages, but none of them measure up to the official schemes for the perpetuation of the Jew's misery in Poland.

Where are the stricken consciences of American Jewry in this unspeakable instance? Where are the parades in protest, the mass meeting for denunciation, and the rest of the public clamorings for justice, in this palpable case of outrage? . . . Where are the rabbis, the leaders of powerful Jewish organizations, the Christian co-operators, the judges, the lawyers and the rest? Here we have been witnessing a persecution that has lasted for fifteen years, in which a whole people are being slowly strangled, and hardly a peep has been heard from the rich Jews of America.

Again the class differences appear. . . Polish Jews are the scum of the earth. They are poor, drab, common people.

Again the class differences appear. . . . Polish Jews are the scum of the earth. They are poor, drab, common people. German Jews have been bankers, professionals, rich shop-keepers and intellectual lights. . . . The class struggle needs no clearer example. . . . And only the workers of the world will clear that mess up. There is no hope for Poland while the bourgeoisie rules. . . .

A day will come when a cannon ball will be exhibited A day will come when a cannon ball will be exhibited in public museums, just as an instrument of torture is now, and people will be amazed that such a thing could ever have been. A day will come when these two immense groups—the United States of America and the United States of Europe—will be seen placed in the presence of each other, extending the hand of fellowship across the ocean, exchanging their produce, their industries, their arts, their genius, elearing the earth peopling the desert, improving creation under the eye of the Creator, and uniting for the good of all, these two irresistible and infinite powers—the fraternity of man and the wissiom of God.—Victor Hugo in 1849.

THE WOMEN'S COMMITTEE

By Ethel Davis

To the Women's Executive Committe, Socialist Party of New York.

Although I have received no communication of the action of your committee as reported in The New Leader of May 20, a correction should be made. The committee read from the platform in Washington, D. C., was a Continental Congres committee and not a party committee; secondly, the persons were not asked to serve with the idea that they would represent sections of the country, but were Socialists and non-Socialists from various organizations asked to secure the interest and participation of their member organizations not as women but as persons whose ability would contribute to the success of the Congress.

While there were not as many women as men delegates to the Congress, there was a goodly number of women, chosen for the most part not because they were women but because their activity in organizations represented had resulted in their election.

part not because they were women but because their activity in organizations represented had resulted in their election.

The committees of the Congress of necessity had to be composed of persons whose knowledge, experience, and activity was recognized as valuable to the work designated to the committees and appointments of women as well as men was made on that basis and not on the basis of sex.

Altogether the work of individuals and committees and the earnestness of the delegates in their desire to draw up a program to which the joint efforts of participating groups could be directed in the months ahead was noteworthy.

If to the women present there was a wish that women might have played a more important part it should stimulate those present to go back in their communities and actively work for increased participation of women whose ability will make them invaluable as the plans and program of such gatherings as San Fernando Valley.— Organized less than six months ago by nine transfers from Local Hollywood, this local claims a new state record. Designed for more than 75 square miles of territory, the local has divided into two branches, one meeting in North Hollywood, the other in Van Nuys. The two have a total of 52 members. Plans call for organizing in Roscoe and Canoga Park and also a YPSL. Circle. Local speakers are being trained and the branches exchange speakers. We have 'placed The New Leader in the Van Nuys Public Library, following refusals of a free copy each week. This growth bas been attained in a conservative farming, small home owner area. Much of the success is due to the hard work of the Executive Committee, Ralph Knight, Chairman; Francis Koschel, Secretary; William Stephenson and Anne Abbott Kinney, Organizers; Marjorie A. Hay and Fred Beckes.

San Francisco.— New quarters of the San Francisco local at 1057 Golden Gate Avenue will offer increased facilities for the Thursday evening forums and Sunday morning study classes. Interesting speakers will talk on such topics as

Summer Season Starts with "Tattle Tales"

The Week on the Stage

By Joseph T. Shipley

NO TELLING
"TATTLE TALES." Frank Fay and Barbara Stanwyck in a Summer Revue at the Broad-

There is a deal of hey nonny nonny, but not so much hot cha cha in "Tattle Tales," the first of Frank Fay brings to the revue a suave and pleasing sense of fun; but the essence of his entertainment is an unhurried pleasaunce, a sinking-in of satisfaction, which it is hard to synchronize with the swift patter and surging speed of swift patter and surging speed of a revue. We have a sense that a really good-looking chorus is not fittingly employed. It is scarcely Stanwyck that is utilized, for, out-more than the name of Barbara side of some affectionate by-play with her husband, Frank Fay, her only effective use is in two scenes only effective use is in two scenes from her motion pictures. She is unexpectedly forceful in the pulpit denunciation from "The Miracle Woman," and makes us wish she ere called upon for more.

In addition to the two headliners there are other effective workers and ideas in the play. Berwell and Miss Tova do some good dancing; and many a player would profit by the "Eh-Eh Man," whom "Tattle Tales" evokes to warn over-ambitious performers. The music of the evening, better than the lyrics, is on the whole engag-ing; but "Tattle Tales"—which, by the way, has not a line in it to justify its title—needs the treatment life guards are ready to give at all our beaches.

There was one week last fall in which, for the first time in almost which, for the first time in almost half a century, no company any-where in the United States was playing "Unele Tom's Cabin." To make up for this unaccountable gap, the Players have chosen the drama for their twelfth annual re-vival; and the demand has been so pressing that for the first time pressing that for the first time they have lengthened the showing to a second week.

The audience was as interesting to observe as the play, that once served so well in the anti-slavery campaign as to be a contributing cause of the freeing. Interesting

Behind these election figures is an interesting story of the fight made by Madison Socialists to get their candidate placed before the voters. The State primary law provides that only the two highest mames be placed on the ballot. Walker ran a close third in the primary and was apparently out of the race.

I Y TODIO

Every week Norman Thomas writes in his pungent style his own comments upon the salient events of the moment.

Towards State Capitalism

EVERY thoughtful person recognizes that the elaborate Industrial Control Bill is a long step toward state capitalism and not toward Socialism. It would be absurd to expect a Democratic administration to advance toward outright Socialism. Neveroutright Socialism. Nevertheless the labor clauses of the bill as introduced into Congress rightly used will give the workers an enormously powerful weapon for progress toward genuine Socialism. If, on the other hand, those labor provisions should be weakened by the revolt now on in the revolt now on in the United States Senate the bill would set up a servile state, neither more nor less. It is absurd to believe that the mere good-will of employers will make this law of any appreciable benefit to the workers, especially if temporarily business picks up. When the devil is no sick he soon ceases to be a monk. On the other hand, collective bargaining and other rights guaran When the devil is not On the other hand, collective bargaining and other rights guaranteed to labor have genuine value.

Another point of importance is this: While the licensing provision does give the President enormous power over industry, it is probably a necessary power. That is to say, if this licensing provision is stricken out all that will remain will be, first, a temporary modification of anti-trust laws without any adequate recompense to the workers or the public, and, second, a lot of pious good wishes for the wellbeing of labor. It is the licensing clause that puts teeth in the bill. The wrong President may do the wrong thing. Even that will illustrate to labor the importance of getting the right sort of a President or, still better, the outstanding importance to the workers of capturing political power. The first fight is to prevent the weakening of that part of the Industrial Control Bill which is important to labor. The second, and ultimately far more vital struggle, will be to see that those clauses are used intelligently by an aggressive and well organized body of workers. well organized body of workers

Unemployed Victims of Injustice

THE greatest victims of injustice in the name of THE greatest victims of injustice in the name of economy are not the veterans nor the taxpayers, however legitimate are some of their grievances. They are the unemployed. The federal government, the state government, the city and county government united have scarcely done more than to grant enough relief so that the unemployed do not embarrass the comfortable by dying of starvation in city streets. New York is by no means the worst city. But the total amount available for relief is only about a third of the minimum requirements for subsistence on the basis of figures laid down by the relief authorities themselves. No one can overestimate the anguish and misery that is piling up. The tale was impressively told to the Board of Estimate the other day when three unemployed

Estimate the other day when three unemployed organizations united their forces to present their case and were supported in it by the representatives of the Socialist Party, the City Affairs Committee, and by a hundred leading clergymen and social service workers. They got a hearing but little more. The Tammany dictatorship brazenly blunders service workers. They got a hearing but little more. The Tammany dictatorship brazenly blunders on. Ostensibly to give the unemployed the pitiably inadequate relief that the city extends, outrageously burdensome taxes have been levied on automobiles and bridge tolls. The city could raise all that it needs (1) by reasonable economies in soft jobs for fat boys, and (2) by getting the State Legislature to impose in its behalf extra taxes on stock transfers, which means in large measure on plain gambling, and by blocking holes in the income taxes of New York and raising the surtaxes in the higher brackets. Wealth is better able to escape income taxation in New York State than in the nation, and what can be done in the nation the House of Morgan has abundantly proved. This kind of blundering Tammany dictatorship will go on and its equivalent in other cities will go on until the workers are effectively organized.

Empty Slogans

T is of national interest that some progress toward

IT is of national interest that some progress toward effective organization of workers for adequate unemployment relief has been made in New York. Workers, however, who may be carried away by the Communist slogan of the "united front" ought to know that the Communist-controlled unemployed organization was invited to join in a united demonstration on the sole conditions that no political banners or placards should be displayed. It refused to come in. While some units of these Communist unemployed organizations marched peacefully to come in. While some units of these Communist unemployed organizations marched peacefully enough in the parade, at the end of a day of great progress the Communists gave the newspapers a new chance to talk about the strife between the workers by insisting upon trying to force one of their own speakers upon the stand set up by the cooperating organizations. Frank Crosswaith calls my attention to the fact that a Negro demonstration under Communist auspices in Harlem was turned mostly into an attack on Socialism. Among other things, the absurd lie was again circulated to turned mostly into an attack on Socialism. Among other things, the absurd lie was again circulated to the effect that I broke up a rank and file picketing of the Hotel Cairo at the Continental Congress in Washington in behalf of the rights of colored citizens. The exact contrary is the case. I helped to organize it and only suggested that the delegates go back to their work when our task had been successfully accomplished at the hotel.

I refer to these matters—and I might give far worse illustrations—because we ought to understand that no matter how much our differences may play into the hands of our enemies, we cannot find any way to surmount those difficulties until at the very least we stop campaigns of slander and falsehood. Unquestionably, in these matters the Communists have taken the lead. In this sorry mess it is not primarily the Sociálist Party or the Communist Party that suffers but the whole cause of the workers. If for, let us say, a six months' period all working class organizations should direct their main fire at the common enemy; if even on vital questions of tactics and organizations where they were obliged to differ they would fight out the issue questions of tactics and organizations where they were obliged to differ they would fight out the issue on principle and not on personalities and slanders, we might suddenly find ourselves in an atmosphere where an honest, lawfully worked out and effective united front on specific issues could be had. There is no chance for us in the atmosphere of susp and recrimination.

My reference to Frank Crosswaith reminds me to f add a sort of postscript to this paragraph for New Yorkers. Frank's lectures Sunday afternoons at the Harlem headquarters are drawing big crowds.

At the Battery Place meeting, housands cheered Ed. Welsh, hairman, Norman Thomas, C. B. enkins, Noah Walters, Jack Walsh, G. Becker, Charles Zimmerman, Seatrice Elis, Amicus Most and A. Weinfeld.

A Shocking Demonstration

However, this meeting had just inded when a parade of Communists under the guise of the Provisional United Front Committee rovoked an almost unbelievable ituation. Alternating cries of "We want a United Front" with boos rant a United Front" with boos and catcalls directed at our speakers, attempting to force their peakers on to the platform, and most wrecking the loudspeaker pparatus, the Communists dislayed a temperament verging on the lunatic. At one moment they willed "We Want a United Front," next they would be spitting the speakers.

Although an open clash was arely averted, the situation re-saled the end of nearly four weeks negotiations with the Unemployed Councils for a united dem-

The negotiations began with offer, early in May, from the Unemployed Councils to the Workers Committee on Unemployment for a united front, who agreed, pro-vided no political banners would be displayed and the demonstration were made a purely unemployed affair. On this basis a conference was called by the Workers' Committee for May 23rd, at which five representatives of each of the four organizations, including the Unemployed Councils, participated.

But the meeting split on two ques-tions, first of which was the carrying political and organization banners. The Unemployed Councils alone stood out for them. A vote was also taken on the attitude toward the two political conferences already alluded to. The three ways proposed to the state of t unemployed organizations that fi-nally put on Tuesday's demonstration voted that a committee should approach both the Socialist and Labor Conference and the Provi-Labor Conference and the Provi-sional Committee, and urge both to permit the demonstration to be held under the rules of the un-employed groups. The Unemployed Councils, although nominally an organization of the unemployed, alone refused to exclude political questions from the demonstration.

The attempt of the Communists to capture the platform at Battery Place marked their final gesture at a "United Front."
