WAREHOUSEMEN WILL ORGANIZE FIGHTING UNION

The Northwest Blood Organizing Committee, established for the purpose of promoting organization among "blood" workers, will hold its first meeting on March 11th in the Union Hall of the Workers Defense League and the Industrial Union in Portland. The committee will be composed of representatives of the various labor unions in the Northwest.

POWER WORKERS TO HOLD GAINS

Bill Brown Says—

The new and enlarged branch of the Northwest Power Workers Union, which held its first annual meeting at Portland, Friday, has decided to hold on to its gains. The union, which was organized last year, has now more than doubled its membership and is looking forward to a prosperous future.

American City,' Book on Local Labor Situation, Is Reviewed

In American City, just published, Charles Walter made a study of the labor situation in a typical American city, using the city of Milwaukee as its base. The book is a valuable contribution to the understanding of the problems of industrial relations in a modern city.

General Drivers Prepare to Renew Union Agreements

With the first leaves of the spring season appearing, the General Drivers Union is beginning to think about the coming renewal of their agreements with the employers of the region. The union has already sent out a letter to the employers, asking them to renew the agreements.

DUNNE BLASTS LABOR ENEMIES OF FRIDAY NIGHT

All Minnesotans Workers to Be Told of Firing Results

In his speech at the recent meeting of the General Drivers Union, Henry Dunne, driver of a truck line, made a strong attack on the union. He said that the union was responsible for the firing of workers, and that it was time for all workers to stand up and demand justice.

Workers often ask us why they have to join a union. We answer them that a union is a necessary organization, and that it is the only way to protect the interests of the workers.

THE AFFILIATED SCHOOLS FOR WORKERS
The Editor
Northwest Organizer
Minneapolis, Minn.
May 8th

The Affiliated Schools for Workers is a pioneering and service-oriented agency that serves the labor movement in many ways. We are writing to you at this time to express our particular interest in the work of our schools, which we believe can be a powerful tool for the advancement of workers' rights and conditions.

The full membership more than ever has the greatest faith in the leadership and we feel sure the new leaders, when they become better acquainted with our workers, will put their trust in them.

We would like to recommend that the following recommendations be adopted and published:

- The organization should be expanded.
- Workers should be trained in the art of self-service.
- The schools should be opened to all workers.

With the Laundry Workers Union

The employment committee recently reported that tickets for our local are being sold by A. E. and B. A. under the name of "The Northwestern Organizer." We have been publishing the name and address of the office workers at the Daily Star in the "Women's Section" of the Minneapolis Star.

A variety agreement covering wages, hours, and working conditions of the employees of this publishing company has been presented to the union for consideration.

For a Labor Temple
The slogan carried on the masthead of the new Northwest Organizer for the building of a Labor Temple in Minneapolis. There is no reason for the Minneapolis labor movement to be denied the opportunity to have one. Such a building, and the desire for it, is deeply shared by the entire working public.

The physical utility of being with your fellow workers, rub-ing shoulders with your comrades in the struggle for a better world, is the chief reason for the desire for such a national union exchange groups. It is valuable for organizing, and for the development of the party. The mere vision of the organization in its present form is inspiring to all.

THE STEEL VICTORY
The smelting of the operation of the National Association of Iron, Steel, and Tin Plate Workers Union in the midwest steel centers is one of the most significant developments of labor's struggle. The winning of a union agreement by the members of the Association is a victory for labor. The success must be taken as a victory for labor which may prove to be a decisive battle in the conflict.

The victory is a significant one in the development of the American trade union movements in the midwest. The strike in the midwest is the most important of the labor movement in its efforts to secure the recognition of an industry which has always been the most vol-tile and the most difficult to organize. The victory of the organized labor movement is a victory back to the homestead and other workers who have been forced to leave the midwest.
