Lumber Dealers Sign With 544

The Associated General Contractors of America, a national trade association representing over 90,000 construction contractors, has announced the signing of a new agreement with 544 lumber dealers across the United States. The agreement is aimed at standardizing contracts and improving relations between lumber dealers and contractors, ensuring a more streamlined and efficient construction process.

The signing ceremony took place in New York City last week, with representatives from both sides expressing their excitement for the new partnership. "This agreement is a significant step forward in our industry," said John Smith, President of the Associated General Contractors of America. "It will help us to better serve our clients and streamline our operations, ultimately leading to savings for everyone involved."
SOLIDARITY IN WGYO STRIKE IS UNION LESSON

Bill Brown Says—

"I'll bet my old clothes and my head that every man, every woman, and every child has a union post until you've seen the pictures that are being published.""
Imperialism and the Worker in Asia

A few weeks ago, Canadian automobile workers were striking for eight weeks in Oklahoma. The American union organizer had gone up to help them out. He reported that the workers in Oklahoma were more highly paid than the auto workers in Canada. The CIO had tried to join the Canadian automobile workers' union in order to pay off the strike of the auto workers in Canada. However, the provincial government refused to allow the auto workers in Canada to strike.

Imperialism Notes

Yellow Notes

By Otto Ernst

The workers in Colombia had taken over a large farm from the government. The workers in Colombia were fighting the property of the rich landlords. The workers in Colombia were determined to take over the wealth of the landlords. The workers in Colombia were fighting for their rights.

Bosses Appeal to Vigilante Action in Austin Paper

Austin, Minn.—Last week the Austin Herald printed a statement by the Austin newspaper editor that he would appeal to the vigilantes to help the workers in Minnesota. The editor of the Austin Herald is a strong supporter of the workers and is fighting for their rights. The editor of the Austin Herald is a strong supporter of the workers and is fighting for their rights.

LOCAL 20316 TO ISSUE BULLETIN

Every company with which the Warehouse and Inside Workers Local 20316 has a contract has been requested by the union to issue a bulletin to all employees. The bulletin is to be distributed to all employees and is to be read by all employees.

Bakery Blab

By H. V. Otis

Joe O’Reilly, our newly appointed vice-president, tells us that he has met with the workers in his district. Joe O’Reilly is a strong supporter of the workers and is fighting for their rights.

Bakery Bulletin

By H. V. Otis

Joe has been visiting the workers in his district. Joe has met with the workers in his district. Joe has met with the workers in his district.

Watt Notes

Harry Brown, the owner of the bakery, has been in touch with the workers in his district. Harry Brown is a strong supporter of the workers and is fighting for their rights.

Fidelity State Bank

Enrollment on the Fidelity State Bank of Independence, which is a subsidiary of the Fidelity State Bank of Independence, is increasing. The enrollment on the Fidelity State Bank of Independence is increasing.

Diamond Sign Service

Truck Lettering

117.5 Soldier and Broadway

Riverside 4212

UNION SHOP

Consolidated Delivery Service

Truck Lettering

2249 S. 5th Street

Wichita, Kans.

ADOLPH’S

—BAR—

409 Cedar Ave.

Mill City Launderers and Cleaners

Monday, June 23, 1952

Rydell Clothing House

From the Department of Agriculture

The Farmers Home Mutual Ins. Co.

3375 W. 57th Street

Minneapolis, Minn.

LET US BUILD YOUR HOME!

The Farmers Home Mutual Ins. Co.

3375 W. 57th Street

Minneapolis, Minn.

Serving Quality in the Twin Cities...Since 1911.

Haskin & Cooper

317 BEAVER CREEK RD.

Minneapolis 25, Minn.

Burr Funeral Service

1319 Marquet St.

ROCHESTER, MINN.

LYDIA ROYD

1401 4th Ave.

Rochester, Minn.

For IN THE GYD RAIN

Holsom Rye

Holsom Rye

Bread

FRESH! AT YOUR GROCERY'S TUESDAY

Holsom Rye

Holsom Rye

BREAD

FRESH! AT YOUR GROCERY'S TUESDAY
Letters from Worker - Readers

Sacco and Vanzetti—WE REMEMBER!

A look back at the work of the Sacco and Vanzetti defense committees as class struggles. August 22 will mark the thirtieth anniversary of the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti, two men who were assassinated in the service of a world-wide working class struggle.

Since then the workers of the world have had occasion to mourn the lives of two men, victims of state terrorism, held for months in human concentration camps, tortured and starved to death in the service of the owners of this country.

They died as symbols of the class struggle, with a united world in mourning for them. Their death was the signal for the workers of every country to organize in defense committees to honor the memories of the fallen.

The world workers' defense committees, under the leadership of the International Working Men's Association (the First International), financed these defense committees and furnished them with funds, arms, propaganda and literature.

Sacco and Vanzetti became the accepted symbols of the class struggle, a fact which was recognized by the United States State and its brutal agents, held firm against the international workers' defense committees in their attempt to liquidate the Sacco and Vanzetti defense committees.

And to its eternal credit, militant labor, too, refused to allow the murderers of the two men to leave the nation, or the world, unpunished for their cold-blooded crime.

And down to the present day, the defense committees of the United States of America, with their hands in a few pounds of flesh from the hands of the two Italian workers. For, literally and symbolically, the two men died, as workers, as a working class.

No longer the sordid issue of revenge of a criminal court on the workers of the world.

No longer the sordid issue of revenge of a criminal court on the workers of the world.

The workers' defense committees of the United States of America, with their hands in a few pounds of flesh from the hands of the two Italian workers. For, literally and symbolically, the two men died, as workers, as a working class.

And to its eternal credit, militant labor, too, refused to allow the murderers of the two men to leave the nation, or the world, unpunished for their cold-blooded crime.

Sacco and Vanzetti, victims of state terrorism and propaganda, were on the defensive, and in the service of the workers of this country, of the United States of America, of the world, and they are the dead heroes of the working class of the world.

Class struggle.

Sacco and Vanzetti—WE REMEMBER!

Sacco and Vanzetti—WE REMEMBER!

The Old Umbrella Mender

By Mario Pignatelli

THE WOOLWORKERS STRIKE IN DULUTH

The Woolworkers' Strike in Duluth, Minnesota, is another of the many struggles in the United States and Canada to win better wages and working conditions for the workers. The strike was called after the company refused to grant the demand for a few cents an hour increase.

The workers, who are members of the United Textile Workers Union, were demanding a raise in wages and better working conditions. The company refused to grant the demand, and the workers responded with a strike.

The strike lasted for several weeks, and eventually the company gave in to the workers' demands. The workers were able to gain a small increase in their wages and better working conditions.

The strike was a success, and it demonstrated the power of the workers to fight for their rights. It also served as an example to other workers who were struggling for better wages and working conditions.

The strike was settled in the end with the agreement of the workers and the company. The workers were able to gain their demands, and the strike was a success for the workers.

The Woolworkers' Strike in Duluth, Minnesota, is another of the many struggles in the United States and Canada to win better wages and working conditions for the workers. The strike was called after the company refused to grant the demand for a few cents an hour increase.

The workers, who are members of the United Textile Workers Union, were demanding a raise in wages and better working conditions. The company refused to grant the demand, and the workers responded with a strike.

The strike lasted for several weeks, and eventually the company gave in to the workers' demands. The workers were able to gain a small increase in their wages and better working conditions.

The strike was a success, and it demonstrated the power of the workers to fight for their rights. It also served as an example to other workers who were struggling for better wages and working conditions.

The strike was settled in the end with the agreement of the workers and the company. The workers were able to gain their demands, and the strike was a success for the workers.

The Woolworkers' Strike in Duluth, Minnesota, is another of the many struggles in the United States and Canada to win better wages and working conditions for the workers. The strike was called after the company refused to grant the demand for a few cents an hour increase.

The workers, who are members of the United Textile Workers Union, were demanding a raise in wages and better working conditions. The company refused to grant the demand, and the workers responded with a strike.

The strike lasted for several weeks, and eventually the company gave in to the workers' demands. The workers were able to gain a small increase in their wages and better working conditions.

The strike was a success, and it demonstrated the power of the workers to fight for their rights. It also served as an example to other workers who were struggling for better wages and working conditions.

The strike was settled in the end with the agreement of the workers and the company. The workers were able to gain their demands, and the strike was a success for the workers.

The Woolworkers' Strike in Duluth, Minnesota, is another of the many struggles in the United States and Canada to win better wages and working conditions for the workers. The strike was called after the company refused to grant the demand for a few cents an hour increase.

The workers, who are members of the United Textile Workers Union, were demanding a raise in wages and better working conditions. The company refused to grant the demand, and the workers responded with a strike.

The strike lasted for several weeks, and eventually the company gave in to the workers' demands. The workers were able to gain a small increase in their wages and better working conditions.

The strike was a success, and it demonstrated the power of the workers to fight for their rights. It also served as an example to other workers who were struggling for better wages and working conditions.

The strike was settled in the end with the agreement of the workers and the company. The workers were able to gain their demands, and the strike was a success for the workers.