Bill Brown Says—

The St. Paul house is one of the largest in the country and is operated by a select group of women employees. The house also employs many veterans of the war who have been employed by the same company for many years. The house is known for its high standards and strict discipline. The work is divided into different departments, each under the supervision of a manager. The employees are paid well and receive benefits such as health insurance and retirement plans.

St. Paul Laundry Workers Sign First Union Contract

Seven hundred members of the Laundry Workers Union Local 150 Gain Seniority, Time and One-Half, Week's Vacation

Seven hundred members of the Laundry Workers Union Local 150 in St. Paul, Minn., have signed the writing agreement printed below, the first ever signed in the St. Paul laundry industry. Many years of previous working conditions are embodied in the contract, including time and one-half for overtime, seniority, wage increases, and shop committees, which won't materialize with pay increases.

This agreement is to be observed by those members of the Laundry Workers Union Local 150 in the 8th district of Minnesota, and it is to be enforced by the American Federation of Labor.

A provision of the contract provides for a one-year term from the signing date and the union will take a percentage of the profits to be invested in the union.

The union will be able to negotiate with the management for the future, including wages, hours of work, and other matters.

In any controversy arising from the terms and provisions of this agreement, the union will be able to bring the matter before the arbitration board for settlement.

The agreement also provides for a grievance procedure to be followed in case of disputes between the union and the management.

For the benefit of the industry, the agreement is designed to be a model for other unions to follow.
