F-L State Convention Marked By Conservatism

Platform Gives Scant Space to Main Issues Facing Workers—FDP Shifts to Right on War Question—AFL Demands Brushed Aside—Asodore, Endorsed Candidates Endorsed—Convention Spent Little Time on Pressing Problems

The most conservative platform ever adopted by the Farmer-Labor Assembly was presented to the delegates at its 18th annual convention in St. Paul this summer. The platform was far more moderate than the line advocated by the major parties in the state. It was, however, a considerable departure from the platform of the 1956 convention, which was adopted by the party in 1956. The 1957 convention was marked by a marked shift to the right on most issues.

The convention was marked by the almost complete silence of the delegates on the platform. They were content to accept the platform as given and to concentrate on the import of labor's day, the oncoming of winter, and the uncertainty of labor's health during the coming winter.

Working Farmers Facing Workers

At the convention assembled, the major problems confronting every worker and working farmer (the former the case of the former, the latter the case of the latter) were brought up to the fore. The need for a defense of the Farm-Labor movement was emphasized, and the need for a defense of workers' rights was stressed. The convention adopted a platform that was conservative on all major issues, including the need for a defense of the Farm-Labor movement.

Amendments Voided

Speaking on behalf of the Minnesota Building Trades Council, Walter Frank, an attorney for the council, stated that the convention had no right to amend the platform as adopted. He pointed out that the convention had no authority to amend the platform, or to alter the wording of the platform, as it was adopted by the convention.

The convention is in the process of approval of the platform as adopted. Neither the Minnesota Building Trades Council nor the convention of the state has the authority to amend the platform as adopted.

Drivers Unions in 11 States Present Over-the-Road Pacts

Local 544 Calls All Ball-Players

With the appointment of Tony Alaimo as team manager, the National Trucking Workers Union, Local 544 in the Pacific Northwest, has taken a stand against the practice of switching drivers from one traffic to another, which it considers unfair to the driver and the employer.

The main issue involved is the application of the practice, as well as the question of whether or not it is necessary to have a driver on the road all of the time.

The union has decided that it is necessary to have a driver on the road all of the time, and that drivers should have the right to make their own decisions regarding their work schedules.

With the Limousines

I am not sure what we are going to do, but I am sure that we will make a decision soon. We have a lot of work to do, and we need to make sure that we are not wasting our time.

The limousine company has agreed to a new contract, but it is not clear if this will be enough to satisfy the union. We are going to have to see what happens.

Oil Barons Force Showdown In Mexico; Hands Off Mexico

With the announcement of the Mexican Government's decision to seize all oil fields, the situation in the country has become very tense.

The government has ordered all oil companies to leave the country, and the companies have been given 72 hours to comply.

Tiny Harlan

Since last week, the Mexican Government has been forcing oil companies to leave the country. This has caused a lot of tension, and it is not clear how long this will last.

Harlan said that he was very concerned about the situation, and he called on oil companies to leave the country.

The government has also ordered all oil workers to leave the country, and this has caused a lot of hardship for the workers.

Warehouse Union Preparing Pacts

The Warehouse Union has been preparing new pacts for the past few weeks, and it is expected that these will be announced soon.

The union has been working hard to ensure that all workers are protected, and it is believed that these pacts will be a significant step forward.

As you can see, there is a lot going on. We need to stay focused and make sure that we are doing everything we can to protect the workers and the companies.
