Make Minneapolis a Union Town
ICG Makes Rotten Ruling vs. Drivers

The Interstate Commerce Commission has ordered the New York Central Railroad Co. to pay $30,000 to the state of Illinois, the railroad workers, and the public in general for losses sustained by the railroad workers and investors, in violation of the Interstate Commerce Act.

The Commission will be of greater benefit to the organization involved, and to the public in general, if the railroad workers and investors can recover from their own collective owners and investors than if they are recovered in 30 days by the railroad company.

We urge every IGO member to avoid the meeting on Thursday, March 26, 6 p.m., 227 Peabody Avenue South, where this matter will be discussed.

A limited number of these vital pamphlets are now available in the Northwest Iron & Steel industry. The pamphlet, "Fascism and the American Scene," by Dwight MacDonald, Ten cents.

The author, a journalist and political writer, has written this pamphlet specifically for the Northwest Iron & Steel industry to disseminate to its members. The pamphlet discusses the rise of fascism and its potential impact on the American scene, urging readers to be vigilant against such threats.

Fred Smith, President of the Steel Workers Organization of America, has endorsed the pamphlet, stating: "This pamphlet is a must for all steel workers. It outlines the dangers of fascism and how to combat it."

Confusion Meeting South at Gastonia

J. A. Holley's famous speech at Gastonia, North Carolina, was a pivotal moment in the labor movement. Holley delivered a powerful address to union members, advocating for solidarity and the fight against oppression.

Holliday's speech was part of the broader movement for labor rights and worker solidarity, which included the formation of unions and the struggle against unsafe working conditions.

Coffee Cries Local 275

By Bill and Dan

The Coffee Cries held their annual meeting on May 3rd. A good crowd turned out for the event.

"We need to be more active and engaged," said Bill. "We’ve seen a decline in membership recently, but I believe we can turn things around if we work together." Dan echoed this sentiment, adding: "Yes, we need to reach out to new members and improve our outreach efforts."

Workers Committee at Asears to Meet With Management

By George Bergstrom

The Workers Committee of Thirty-Five, representing the employees in the marketing department, is scheduled to meet with Asears management next Tuesday. By February 10th, the committee, which has been working in close cooperation with the Asears Relief Office, will have accumulated the data necessary to support their demands.

What is the nature of these demands? It is difficult to say precisely, but sources within the committee have hinted that the company may be faced with a serious labor dispute.

On the National Pickle Line

The Workers Committee of Thirty-Five, representing the employees in the marketing department, is scheduled to meet with Asears management next Tuesday. By February 10th, the committee, which has been working in close cooperation with the Asears Relief Office, will have accumulated the data necessary to support their demands.

For the last few weeks, the committee has been gathering data and preparing for the meeting. As the date approaches, the committee members are growing more confident of their chances of negotiating successfully.

The workers are demanding, among other things, a fair wage increase, better working conditions, and an end to the practice of hiring strikebreakers.

The company, on the other hand, is reportedly resisting the workers' demands. However, the committee is prepared to present a strong case for their demands and has already developed a strategy for how to approach the negotiations.

Keeping Step With 544

By Micky Dunn

The strike situation is still on, although there has been some indications that the two sides may be approaching a settlement. The union has nothing to report at this time, but it is hopeful that the strike will be resolved soon.

The UFW has released a statement urging its members to continue the strike until a fair contract is reached. The union has also appealed to the public to support the workers by boycotting Dole products.

Why the Workers' Alliance Has Gone to Seed

If any worker wants to know why the nation's unions are struggling, he need only look at the Minnesota Workers' Alliance. In this situation, he would realize that the leadership of the workers' alliance has become ineffective, and that the organization has lost its ability to represent the interests of its members.

"Our meetings with various welfare boards and with the state's labor departments have taught us that the problem of unemployment and relief is the most serious one that we face," said William Watson, president of the Minnesota Workers' Alliance, on February 4th, 1939, to the chairman of the various boards of county commissioners throughout Minnesota.

Mr. Watson related that the leadership of the workers' alliance would realize the need to change their approach in order to provide a meaningful representation of the workers' interests.

The rest of the letter is in exactly the same vein, only the considerations of space prevent reproduction of his full letter. The Workers' Alliance similarly suggests that more work should be done by the various boards of county commissioners of the state to aid the workers in creating an alliance sympathetic with the workers' interests. The letter ends by stating that the rest of the letter should be published at a later date, but that it will be sent to those interested.
