ON THE NATIONAL PICKET LINE

Marcel Schultz

A few moments after high noon, the picket line outside the Summit Hotel on St. Paul Avenue, headquarter of the Minnesota Summit Hotel Teamsters, was set up. The Summit Hotel is a popular lunching spot for such a large number of people, who bring their lunch in lunch boxes.

In order to keep the picketers at the hotel, a large number of the Summit Hotel Teamsters' local union members turned up the street and blocked the entrance to the hotel. Several of the union members were taken to jail.

The Summit Hotel is the headquarters of the Minnesota Summit Hotel Teamsters, and a large number of union members turned out to support the picketing.

By the way, Mary, who said Automatic Hot water costs too much?

Have you seen the new Rundt automatic gas water heaters— with the Rundt Metal tank guaranteed for 20 years? Now you get sparkling hot water—plenty of it—24 hours a day—at a new low cost.

No more interruptions or "roll peaks" breaks in service. No wonder hundreds of homes are installing this new trouble free appliance. Minneapolis Gas Company, Marquette at Eighth Street. Phone Main 5433.

Burlington Workers Rally To Defense of Janosco

Burlington, Iowa—In preparation to try to open its struck plant November 1st, the Northwestern Cabinet company is studying plans to improve the middle classes with the idea that (a) the workers really want to do a good job, and (b) that John Janosco, organizer for the North Central Federation of Labor, is not trying to cause trouble. Janosco was hired by the management of the plant because he failed to improve the products of the workers.

Last week the Burlington Daily Argus was written by an employee of the strike, to the point of the long list of all the anti labor actions thatJanosco had been planning. It was then that the Burlington Workers decided to take up the case and make a stand against the strike. The Burlington Worker decided to name several names of the members of the federation which had been planning to cause trouble in the plant, and they were always right about the strike, always wrong about the strike. This week, Janosco was gone, but for all we know, he might have been planning something else.

The latest report to be released was that he was doing some anti labor work somewhere else.

CLU on Air Mondays Over WLOL

Last Monday evening the CLU on Air show was on the air, reaching the first listeners in the area with its words and music. A radio show provided by WLOL, the local radio station, brought an important message to the area, emphasizing the need for unity in the face of a strike. The CLU on Air show aimed to build up the union spirit and the strike spirit, reminding the listeners that the strike is on another level of unity.

On another absolutely reliable source, strikers have learned that the company is trying to delay the strike as long as possible in order to prevent the workers from uniting and striking. The company has been trying to delay this threat with the following tactics: 1) keeping the union members separate from each other when and when a change in the company's plans would cover wages, hours of work and the same. This has been the position from the start of this dispute, and here we stand.

The union intends to keep up this stand with the same force as this time ever. Fighting for a cause is what it's all about. Strikes are not usually on the radar, but they are now with the rising of the workers and its effects.

On Anti-Labor Law Killed by Court In Oregon

The extremely anti-labor bill passed the Oregon legislature during the last session. The law, which would have allowed companies to discharge employees for union activities, was struck down by a federal judge in a 3-1 decision. The judge ruled that the Oregon law has caused violence throughout the state of Oregon and has been detrimental. The judge also ruled that the law is in violation of the 1st Amendment.

On the other hand, the Oregon court has said that the law is not constitutional. Oregon law makers are expected to remove similar anti-labor laws in the state. The judge's ruling is a victory for workers and a defeat for employers.
