Furniture Workers 1859 Will Join Upholsterers

February 19, 1960

The newest written ballot presented to the membership of Local 1859, the Furniture Workers Union, is shown in the illustration above. The ballot was distributed to members in the spring of the year, and it was signed by E.F. Ruffing, the president of the union.

The ballot is divided into two sections. The first section asks the members whether they approve the issuance of a new constitution and bylaws for the union. The second section asks whether the members approve the election of new officers. The ballot is printed in black ink on a white background.

The ballot is signed by E.F. Ruffing, the president of the union, and it is dated February 19, 1960. The ballot is presented in a clear and concise manner, with each question clearly stated and easy to understand.

The ballot is an important document, as it represents the voice of the members of the union. It is a tool that is used to make important decisions about the future of the union, and it is a reminder of the power of the members to make a difference.

The ballot is a symbol of democracy, and it is a reminder of the importance of voting. It is a reminder that every voice counts, and that every vote matters. It is a reminder that the future of the union is in the hands of the members, and that they have the power to shape it.
