The Northwest Organizer

March 7th, Congress quietly passed a bill known as the "Excess Profits Tax" which has been in the making for some time. The bill, known as the "Excess Profits Tax" Act of 1942, is designed to tax "excess profits" earned by the owners of large corporations during the war. The tax is intended to make the owners of large corporations pay a higher proportion of their earnings in taxes, and to help finance the war.

The bill provides that the tax will be levied on the "excess profits" of corporations, as defined by the Act. The "excess profits" are defined as the profits earned by the corporation in excess of a specified amount, which is determined by the amount of the corporation's capital and the average return on it.

The bill also provides that the tax will be levied on the "excess profits" of corporations, as defined by the Act. The "excess profits" are defined as the profits earned by the corporation in excess of a specified amount, which is determined by the amount of the corporation's capital and the average return on it.

The bill has been welcomed by many members of Congress, who believe it will help to finance the war by making the owners of large corporations pay a higher proportion of their earnings in taxes. The bill has also been criticized by some members of Congress, who believe it will be too burdensome on the owners of large corporations.

N. Y. IBEW Men Framed By Jury of Businessmen

Harry Van Andel, Jr., a local business manager of New York State of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and three other union leaders were convicted recently in New York Supreme Court of accepting a bribe payment of $500. The fines which result from the conviction will probably be about $200. The judge sentenced one to two years in Sing Sing; one to five years in Sing Sing; and one to six months in Sing Sing.

The investigation followed a raid on the hotel by police last August at which time a $500 bribe payment was paid to Van Andel. This settlement was made out of twenty years of personal knowledge of the man, Charles M. McCann, who was also convicted and sentenced to two years in Sing Sing.

The case was conducted last August at which time Van Andel, who was charged with having received a bribe, paid the bribe and was not present. The man who received the bribe, McCann, was found guilty of having paid the bribe. The other two men, charged with having received the bribe, were found guilty of accepting it.

The judge said that the conviction of Van Andel was a result of a settlement made out of twenty years of personal knowledge of the man. McCann was found guilty of having paid the bribe, and the other two men, charged with having received the bribe, were found guilty of accepting it.

Theresa 131 "Gas and Suds"
By R. E. N. C., Box 4222

The past few weeks' business has been pretty steady at Theresa 131 "Gas and Suds" on Laundry and Clive Street. They have been clearing the drunks out of the place, and it has been a lot easier for the managers to keep the place neat and clean.

Mr. Burtis (of Burtis Bros.) was recently in town and spent a few hours at the store. He said that he had never seen anything like it before and that he was very impressed with the place.

Mr. Burtis also said that he had been to several other stores in the area and that this was the only one that had any real character. He said that he would like to see more stores like this one in the area.

The store is open from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Sunday. It is located at 112 Market St., next to the post office.

CIO Strike Is Postponed

The pending strike of about 2,000 workers at the Minneapolis steel mill of the Stassen Steel Corporation has been indefinitely postponed by agreement between the company and the United Steelworkers of America.

Stassen decided to make the announcement of the indefinite postponement because of the union's continued refusal to accept the company's offer to sign a collective bargaining agreement with the union.

The company's offer was accepted by the union last week, but the Strike has been indefinitely postponed until the union agrees to sign the collective bargaining agreement.

The strike was scheduled to begin on Monday, but the company has now decided to postpone the strike until further notice.

The Stassen Steel Corporation has been negotiating with the union for several weeks, but has been unable to reach an agreement on the terms of the collective bargaining agreement.

The company's offer includes a contract that would provide for a minimum wage increase of $1.50 per week, a 40-hour workweek, and the establishment of a grievance procedure.

The union has rejected the company's offer and has demanded a contract that would provide for a minimum wage increase of $2.00 per week, a 40-hour workweek, and the establishment of a grievance procedure.

The company has now decided to postpone the strike until further notice, in the hope that the union will accept its offer and the two sides can reach an agreement on the terms of the collective bargaining agreement.
