Militant Worker Barred as Citizen

A Communist worker is barred from entering a series of the United States. The Communist Party of America has been asked to present its case in front of a federal court in New York City. This is the second time the party has been asked to present its case before a federal court because of its activities in support of international communist movements. The court has ruled in favor of the party on both occasions.

Down Tools on May Day!

The May Day issue of Revolutionary Age is one of the most important events of the year. It is a special issue for workers and unions. It is published by the Communist Party of America and is distributed free of charge.

Out in Masses on Rutgers Square!

In New York City, thousands of workers and students took to the streets to demonstrate against the Vietnam War. This is the largest demonstration in the city since the war began.

Gandhi’s March Mass Revolt in India

In India, a large number of workers and peasants have gone on strike to protest against the British government’s policies. The strike has spread to several parts of the country and has been supported by the Communist Party of India.

Harlem Tenants Against Parker

In Harlem, New York City, a large number of tenants are protesting against the policies of the local government. They are demanding better housing conditions and an end to the forced evictions of tenants.

Gandhi's March
Free the Framed-up Communists!

A call for the release of all workers against the gathering forces of police and bureaucracy.

Freedom

Before Gandhi led the great freedom movement of India, he started a peaceful campaign for home rule. In the late 1890s, he led a movement in Egypt that demonstrated a series of reforms by putting pressure on the British government. The Egyptian works were divided into three groups: industrial, agricultural, and commercial. The campaign was primarily aimed at improving working conditions and raising salaries. Gandhi and his followers were often arrested and jailed for their efforts, but the movement continued to grow. In 1919, the British government announced its intention to leave Egypt, and the movement became more widespread.

The Next War
1. How It Is Being Prepared

Twelve years after the "war to end all wars," the nations of the world are in a new state of flux. They are spending billions of dollars on militarypreparedness. The United States spends over $28 billion on armaments each year, and the Soviet Union spends an estimated $15 billion. The countries of Western Europe are also increasing their armaments at an unprecedented rate.

The next war is likely to be more widespread and more destructive than the last. The lessons of the past have been forgotten, and preparations for future conflicts are underway.

The Communist Party
(Majors Group)

The Communist Party (Majors Group) calls upon all workers to join the fight against the Fascist domination of the world. The workers of the world must unite against the capitalist system and create a new world of prosperity and freedom.

The New May Day Policy

Well-Stevens's Strike-General, Police Commissioner Williams, and his aides, have been shrewdly handling the situation of the strikers. Their tactics have been methods of destroying the strike rather than supporting it.

The next May Day will be remembered for its brutality and violence. The police have used massive force to stamp out the strike. The strikers have been attacked with clubs, tear gas, and machine guns. Many workers have been injured, and some have been killed.

The strikers have denounced the police action as a violation of their rights. The workers have called for a general strike to protest against the police violence.

ONE YEAR AFTER

The Gastonia Trial

VERA BUCH

Cameras flash, the nation is on guard, as events of the current political situation during the past year are reflected in the events of the trial. A year ago, the Gastonia Strike was a bloodier and more violent affair than any other recent incident in the state. The question of the trial's outcome is still clouded by the memories of those events.

One year ago, the workers of Gastonia were on the brink of a potential revolution. The strike that followed was the result of a long and bitter struggle for better wages and working conditions. The strike was the culmination of a series of conflicts that had been brewing for years. The workers were determined to fight for their rights, and they were not afraid to use force to achieve their goals.

One year after the trial, the workers of Gastonia are still fighting. They are still striving for a better life, for a better future. They are still fighting for the rights that they believe are theirs. And they will not give up until they have achieved their goals.

The trial was a turning point in the history of the workers of Gastonia. It was a turning point in the history of the nation. It was a turning point in the history of the world. And it is a turning point in the history of all those who believe in justice, in equality, and in the right of all people to be free.

One year after the trial, the workers of Gastonia are still standing. They are still fighting. They are still determined. And they are still strong.

The trial was a victory for the workers of Gastonia. It was a victory for the workers of America. It was a victory for all those who believe in justice, in equality, and in the right of all people to be free.
