Big China Loan To Tighten U.S. Grip

Senate Committee Scheme To Stabilize The Nanking, Chongqing and Wu China Market for Wall Street

PLAN TO BRING OPPRESSION AND WAR DANGER

WASHINGTON.—The proposed Senate Committee Scheme to Stabilize The Nanking, Chongqing and Wu China Market for Wall Street, which would result in increased imperialist oppression and war danger to China, has been made public.

The scheme, which was developed by the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, would provide for the creation of a nationalized bank in China that would be controlled by the United States government. The bank would be responsible for the stabilization of the Chinese currency, and would also play a role in the distribution of Chinese goods and services.

The scheme, which was developed in response to the growing economic and political power of Japan in China, has been met with widespread opposition by Chinese nationalists and labor leaders. They argue that the scheme would only serve to further increase the power of the United States in China, and that it would be detrimental to the interests of the Chinese people.

All Agricultural Experts Mobilized for Program of Spring Sowing

MOSCOW, April 8.—A mobilization of all agricultural experts in the U.S.S.R. for the program of spring sowing is under way. The mobilization includes experts from all parts of the country, and is aimed at increasing agricultural production and improving the quality of the crop.

The mobilization is being carried out in response to the needs of the agricultural sector, which is facing a challenging year due to the ongoing industrialization efforts. The mobilization is expected to result in a significant increase in agricultural output, and will help to meet the growing demand for food and raw materials.

THE POPE BROADCASTS ANTI-LABOR MESSAGE TO "ALL CREATION"

Tells Subjects To Be Obedient To Rulers, Pose To Be Content, Workers To Submit To Tax

VATICAN CITY.—The usual radio broadcast to the Pope's radio audience was given on Friday night, and the Pope made a number of statements that were critical of the labor movement and the working class.

He spoke of the need for workers to be obedient to rulers, and for them to pose to be content, and to submit to taxes. He also spoke of the importance of the family and the role of religion in society.

HOOVER PRAISES "SELF HELP"

Declares Government Will Deny Relief To Masses

WASHINGTON.—President Hoover today praised the "Self Help" movement, which has been gaining momentum in recent weeks, and declared that the government would not provide relief to those who refused to take responsibility for themselves.

"The success of the "Self Help" movement is proof that the American people are determined to take care of their own problems," said Hoover. "We have always believed that the best way to deal with poverty is to help the individual to help himself, and that is precisely what the "Self Help" movement is doing."

Hoover Approves Bill Citing "Admirable" Hoover as "Deserved" Hoover Relief

WASHINGTON.—President Hoover today approved a bill that would provide $500,000,000 in Hoover relief. The bill was introduced by Senator William Proxmire (Wis.), who said that the Hoover relief was "admirable" and "deserved".

"The people of the United States have long been aware of the greatness of President Hoover," said Proxmire. "We are delighted to have the opportunity to make this contribution to his relief efforts."
UPHOLSTERY WEAVERS STRIKE IN KENSINGTON, PA. MILLS

A Letter from a Striker

On the second day of December, the five hundred members of the Upholstery Weavers' Union are still on strike at the American Warehouse, located at 1130-1136 Lehigh Avenue. The strikers, who have been working for two weeks, have been the subject of much speculation and discussion among the weaving community. The news of the strike has spread quickly throughout the district, with many workers coming to offer their support.

SILK STRIKE IN LINDEN MILLS

On February 3, at about 3 o'clock in the morning, a group of workers arrived at the Linden Mills to begin their strike. The workers were protesting low wages and poor working conditions. The strike has caused a significant disruption in the mills, with many customers canceling their orders. The management has offered to negotiate with the workers, but so far, no progress has been made.

Texian Family Dead of Poison in Misbegotten "Food"

But No Aid for Farmers

The Texian Family, consisting of a father, mother, and two children, died of poison after consuming a misbegotten food product. The food was supposed to be "food," but it turned out to be a poisonous substance. The family had no other source of food, and they were forced to consume the poisonous product. The government has offered no aid to the family, and they are now buried in a pauper's grave.

UNEMPLOYMENT AND CHILD LABOR

by J.L.

In times of crisis and distress, all social problems are magnified into social crises. The problems of the unemployed, the child labor, and the reduction of wages are more acute than ever before. The government has offered no solution to these problems, and the workers must take matters into their own hands.

WASHINGTON—The United States Chamber of Commerce on Tuesday asked for the establishment of a new national commission to oversee the operations of Wall Street. The commission would be made up of experts in finance and economics, and would be charged with regulating the operations of the stock exchange and the banking system. The proposal has been met with mixed reactions, with some calling it a necessary step to prevent further economic crises, while others are concerned about the potential for government interference.

THE PARTY AND THE COOPERATIVES

The "Pyramid Builder" in a Discussion

The "Pyramid Builder" has been discussed extensively in the Party, and it has been a topic of contention among the cooperatives. The Party has taken a stance against the "Pyramid Builder," and has called for the implementation of a new economic system that is more equitable and fair. The cooperatives, on the other hand, have been critical of the Party's stance, and have called for a more inclusive and democratic approach to economic development.

WHAT ABOUT THE CANADIAN PARTY?

A Letter from Montreal

I see one of the most interesting things in the world to be the work of the Canadian Party. They have a program that is so far-reaching and so progressive that it is difficult to imagine how they can possibly fail. Their platform is based on the principles of social justice, and they have a clear vision for a better world. I am convinced that the Canadian Party will be a force for good in the world, and I hope that they will achieve all that they set out to do.

The Negro Slave Revolts
1. Before the American Revolution

By R. Mecklin

The economic structure of the slave society was not only a function of the slave's role in the economy, but also of the social and political environment in which it existed. The slave was not only a productive unit in the economy, but also a political entity in its own right. The slave's role in the economy was not only to produce goods, but also to provide a source of income for the master. The slave's role in the politics of the time was not only to support the master, but also to create a sense of community and solidarity among the slaves. The Economic Week

The fall of the week is symptomatic of the economic depression that is now sweeping the country. While there are still a few signs of hope in some areas, the overall outlook is gloomy. The stock market has continued to decline, and the unemployment rate has reached record levels. In addition, there is a growing sense of panic and distress among workers, who fear for the future of their jobs and their families.

The Political Week

The political week was marked by a series of important events. In the Senate, a key vote on the tariff bill was taken, and the outcome was a significant victory for the business interests. In the House, there were several important committee hearings, including one on civil rights.

The Cultural Week

The cultural week was marked by a series of important events. In the arts, there were several significant exhibits and performances. In the literature, there were several important books and poems published. In the music, there were several important concerts and performances.

The Social Week

The social week was marked by a series of important events. In the sports, there were several significant games and matches. In the entertainment, there were several important movies and TV programs. In the community, there were several important events, such as the annual community fair and the annual community picnic.

SUNHEA CONFESSION

ONE of the most significant events ever in a capitalistic period was the recent statement by the British government about the collapse of the Empire.

The statement was made by the Foreign Secretary, Mr. Edward Grey, who said that the British Empire was facing a crisis. He said that the Empire was in the throes of a serious economic crisis and that the British government was prepared to take steps to assist the Empire.

The statement was met with widespread support in the British press, and it was generally agreed that the statement was a significant step in the recognition of the crisis facing the Empire.

The statement was also met with some criticism, and some people argued that the statement was too optimistic and that the Empire was facing a much more serious crisis.
