A Veteran Militant Speaks Out

"I have been a member of the Party for many years and I am proud to say that I have been active in the struggle for socialism. I have seen the need for unity among the working class and have been active in the Party's efforts to bring about a revolution."

Left Wing Wins Opposition

There was a time when the Party was divided and many of its members were fighting each other. But today, under the leadership of the Central Committee, we are united and stronger than ever."

Banksers Urge Tariff Drop At Foreign Trade Meet

Lamont, of J. F. Mearns, Deliver Keynote Speech at National Foreign Trade Council, Finance Capitalists Big in Meeting

Thomas W. Lamont, of J. P. Morgan & Company, made a keynote address at the National Foreign Trade Council's meeting, where he spoke on the "need for a just and fair international economic policy." Lamont praised the "wise and far-sighted" work of the Council in bringing about "a more just distribution of the world's wealth." The meeting was attended by many leading officials of the foreign trade business. It was reported that Lamont's address was "received with enthusiasm by the audience." The meeting adjourned at 5 o'clock. The next meeting of the Council will be held at 10 o'clock on next Thursday morning.

WHAT WILL THE "DAILY" SAY NOW?

A Letter about the "Crusader" Scandal!

May 12, 1931

Editor "Daily Worker",

Dear Sir: In the issue of May 11, the "Daily Worker" published a letter from a member of the Crusader Union who claimed to have been confronted by a "Daily Worker" Worker in a fellow organization and that the Worker had threatened him with a club.

I am a member of this union and I am writing to you to inform you that the situation is not as described in the letter.

The person mentioned in the letter was not a member of the Crusader Union and he was not threatened with a club.

I am enclosing a copy of the letter for your information.

Sincerely yours,

REPUBLICAN AGE

The Story of Rackets
Mezzacaffo and the Sponging Union Racket

by E. B.

Gone are the days when our courts were open to the public and the press, and our laws were enforced with impartiality and integrity. The days of honesty and fair play are gone, and in their place we have a system of corruption and fraud that is beyond what can be understood by the average person.

Mezzacaffo was a man of influence in the community, and he used his position to advance his personal interests. He was a leader of the local union, and he was able to use his influence to bribe officials of the union to award him contracts for work on public projects.

In fact, as a result of his influence, he was able to get a contract for the construction of a public building. He used the money from this contract to bribe officials of the union and to bribe the judge who was to preside over the court case involving the union.

The judge was a friend of Mezzacaffo, and he was willing to give him a favorable verdict. The union was left without funds, and the workers were left without jobs.

We hope that this letter will be of interest to you and that it will help you to understand the situation.

Sincerely yours,

Split in the French Trotskyites

When about two years ago the crisis in France reached a peak, the Trotskyite trend was divided. The majority of the Trotskyites, led by Léon Trotsky, decided to cooperate with the Socialist Party in a "United Front" against the right-wing government of Briand. The minority, led by Blum, decided to continue the struggle against the government.

The split was not resolved until recently, when a new organization was formed to represent the Trotskyite trend. This organization, called the "Union Marxiste-Léniniste," includes both the Blum and the Trotskyite factions.

LOVESTONE AT N. J. DEBATE

Defends Communism. Hits Chamberlain and Laidler

For Communist Unity

Among the programs of the Communist Party at the recent N. J. Debate, one of the most interesting was the debate between Blum and Laidler, which took place on April 14th. Blum, who was supported by the Russian Communists, defended the principle of international solidarity and criticized the policy of Chamberlain, who was supported by the American Communists.

NEEDLE MILITANTS JOIN GROUP

A Veteran Militant Speaks Up

Needle Militants joined the group of veterans who met at the American Legion Hall on May 11th. The Militants, who were led by John O. Smith, spoke out in favor of the movement for the abolition of the Milites, and against the policy of the American Legion. They called for the immediate release of any member of the Milites who is serving a sentence for a political offense.

For all those interested in the movement for the abolition of the Milites, this meeting was an important step forward. The Militants have shown that they are determined to fight for the rights of the Milites, and that they will not be intimidated by the American Legion.

Rush Help! We Need It!

Norman Thomas ‘Abhors War’

by Ben Gillmor

Norman Thomas, national chairman, Industrial Union of District 65, was well aware of the fact that the election was over, but he still had a lot of work to do. The union had been struggling for years to win recognition for its members, and Thomas was determined to continue the fight. He knew that the real work was just beginning.

“While it is true that the election was over, our work is far from finished. We must continue to fight for recognition and fair treatment for our members. We cannot afford to rest on our laurels.”

Thomas spoke to a small gathering of supporters, thanking them for their hard work and dedication. He reminded them that the Industrial Union of District 65 was not alone in its struggle, and that there were many other unions across the country fighting for similar causes.

“We are stronger when we stand together. Let us work together to make the Industrial Union of District 65 the voice of the working class in this country.”

The crowd erupted in applause, and Thomas smiled. He knew that the struggle was far from over, but he was confident that together they could make a difference.
REVOLUTIONARY AGE

Vol. II. No. 27. June 2, 1931

GENEVA AND LONDON

The League of Nations Economic Conference at Geneva and the International Trade Union Congress in London are the most important events of 1931. The former will decide whether or not the hated System of Allocations shall be continued, the latter whether or not concessions shall be made to the ruling classes. The conference in Geneva will be held in the wake of the League of Nations' defeat at Locarno and the rise of the Fascists. The Congress in London will be an attempt to organize the workers against the reactionaries who are attempting to suppress the trade union movement.

Problems of the Negro Masses

Fifty Years of Tuskegee

by Sterling Spero

The National Negro Business League has been in operation for fifty years. In this half-century, it has done more good than any other Negro institution for the advancement of the Negro people. It has been a leading force in the struggle for civil rights and has been instrumental in the establishment of the first Negro-owned banks and insurance companies. The League's motto is: "The Negro shall have the same rights as the white man, but with different opportunities." This has been achieved through the League's campaigns for education, job opportunities, and voting rights.

Rationalization and the Workers

PROBLEM OF AUTOMATIZATION

by Hal Long

The problem of automation is one of the most pressing issues facing the working class today. The introduction of automation has led to the displacement of workers and has threatened the livelihood of millions. The workers must fight against automation, not only to protect their jobs, but to create new and better conditions for all workers. The struggle against automation is part of the larger struggle for a socialist society.

HENDRIK RISSEN

by Frank Mahler

The remains of Hendrik Rissen, the Dutch socialist leader, were brought to America for burial in New York. Rissen was a prominent figure in the Dutch socialist movement, and his death was a great loss. He was a devoted revolutionary and a tireless fighter for the working class. His memory will live on as a symbol of the struggle for a better world.

BETWEEN HAMMER AND ANVIL

"STRANGE INTERVIEW"

by I. J. Orn

I am a labor organizer and social democratic agitator. I believe in the workers' movement and the fight for freedom. I am opposed to the Communist Party and its leaders. I am a socialist and believe in the工人阶级 movement and the fight for freedom. I am opposed to the Communist Party and its leaders. I am a socialist and believe in the workers' movement.

я ем с большим удовольствием. Я считаю, что рабочий класс должен быть в центре внимания. Я не могу согласиться с Коммунистической партией и ее лидерами. Я социалист и верю в рабочий класс.

What We Need Is Better Conditions

by A. S. Adams

The workers need better conditions, not only in their workplaces, but in their homes and communities. The workers must demand a living wage, safe working conditions, and a voice in the decisions that affect their lives. The workers must organize and fight for their rights.

CAPTAIN SMALL RAINS

by B. A. Johnson

We need to demand that the government provide better conditions for all workers. This will require a strong and united workers' movement, and a determination to fight for a better world. The workers must not be satisfied with anything less than a socialist society, where everyone has a share in the wealth and where everyone's needs are met.

The workers need better conditions, not only in their workplaces, but in their homes and communities. The workers must demand a living wage, safe working conditions, and a voice in the decisions that affect their lives. The workers must organize and fight for their rights.

399 HEAR LOVESTONE AT LABOR TEMPLE

On the morning of the Sunday, the Labor Temple was packed with people. The speakers were moved by the enthusiasm of the audience and the support of the workers. The meeting was a powerful demonstration of the workers' solidarity and their determination to fight for a better world.
